Kennesaw to offer master's programs

by Kimberly McCormick

Beginning in 1985's winter quarter, Kennesaw will offer master's degree programs in business and education.

In business, master's degrees are offered in accounting, financial services, marketing, human resource planning and development and institutional administration. K-4 and K-8 are the master's degrees offered in education, but classes are also available to teachers who wish to renew their certification.

Dr. Harry Lasher, Dean of business, and Dean of education Dr. Robert Driscoll feel the master's degree programs offer unique opportunities which are not available at other colleges. Dr. Lasher commented, "Most MBA programs are, for one thing quantitative. Secondly, they are geared toward top management decision-making. Finally, they have similar accreditation. Same core, maybe one or two electives." Of most M.Ed. programs, Dr. Lasher said, "Very little emphasis is placed on the integration of different disciplines. History teachers know history, and very little else."

"Our program," continued Dr. Lasher, "offers a unique core including courses in international management, effective communication and business ethics. We offer five electives instead of just two. Industry has told us they want these classes offered. They want people who can scope out their own projects, identify and solve problems systematically." He also said he would work with individuals who wanted to "scope out their own track" instead of following the regular coursework, if, he emphasized, it is within reason.

Another feature of this program is the emphasis on effective communication through developing good writing skills. Developing a thesis to complement coursework is recommended but not required.

Dr. Lasher stressed that this program is for the working professional. Classes are offered only in the evenings and on Saturdays. "We want to build on the experiences of others to keep the program relevant and innovative. It is not for the student who has no work experience, although we will by no means turn that student down because of lack of experience. I suggest the student work first, however."

"With computers giving us a broad knowledge base, we must have the ability to relate facts and ideas," he continued. With this idea in mind, students who just want knowledge "for knowledge's sake, do not belong in this program. We do not expect our students to forget a business class when they go to an education class. They must know how those two classes relate."

In education, Dr. Driscoll believes teachers working toward their master's should become "masters in the field." Instead of concentrating on only one area, teachers should become versed in all areas. "There is a need for students to be able to integrate the knowledge they acquire, to fuse ideas together. For this, an integrated, holistic approach is badly needed," says Dr. Driscoll. For instance, basing the master's program on a liberal arts and sciences foundation.

The typical student of this program, Dr. Lasher believes, should provide leadership, be interested in integrating information through problem-solving, and be willing to be an integrative teacher. In other words, as he said, "It is not for everyone." Both deans believe that Kennesaw's future lies in "quality master's degree programs." As Dr. Lasher put it, "Kennesaw must find its own unique niches, which right now is in developing quality, relevant master's degree programs."

Interim Dean of Students named

by Rose Kovacs Hochman

Dean Eleanor "Toby" Hopper's office is not quite ready, but the new Interim Dean of Student Development is already initiating programs that will affect the quality of student life at Kennesaw College.

After a warm greeting from Dean Hopper as she stood amidst a carton of books piled on the floor she said "This is the first office I've ever had, while working in education, that has a window."

The window seems almost symbolic of the new role Dr. Hopper is assuming. As Dean of Student Development she wants to keep an eye on what is going on with the student body at the college.

The Dean of Student Development reports directly to Dr. Siegel. Her office oversees the activities of three main divisions of the college (Student Activities, Director of Admissions, Director of Financial assistance) and jointly, with the Vice-President for Academic Affairs, supervises the CAPS Center.

Dean Hopper was asked to step in and fill the role of Dean of Student Development for an interim period after a year-long job search by Kennesaw College failed to produce a person to fill the position. Rather than start the job search at the end of the academic year administration decided to look in house for someone to fill the position for this academic year. Dr. Hopper accepted the position.

"I am interim Dean of Student Development for this academic year. Whether or not I'll apply for the position, I don't know, it depends on a number of factors. When that time comes around, if I feel I am accomplishing the long-term objectives I have set, I may very well seek this position. I'll just have to wait and see."

Dr. Hopper sees the role of Dean as the center of a network between students, faculty, and administration. She tells of the change in title from Office of Student Affairs to Office of Student Development.

This change in organization reflects Dr. Hopper's thoughts on the subject "Development encompasses all facets of a student's life, not just the academic or social. I want to establish and tighten the communication lines between all parts of college life that the student experiences. I want to do this through this office."

Dean Hopper is well suited to accomplish this task. After many years in the education field, she has a wide background. Her past activities include the position as Director of Intramurals and participation in community recreation programs. These and other experiences put her in touch with the student activities part of the job. Her past experience as a physical education teacher and as Assistant Academic Dean fill out the teaching and administrative portions of her background.

When discussing plans to increase student involvement in campus activities the Dean expresses concern that students become involved. Dean Hopper's interest in students is evident as she speaks about how activities outside of class actually help a student become more grounded in the college experience and more likely to stay in college.

KC prepares self-evaluation

Kennesaw College has initiated a campus self-study to evaluate its goals, programs, and services. The two-year examination began in February 1984, and will culminate in a visit to the campus during Spring Quarter, 1986, by a team from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).

SACS is the accrediting agency for colleges in the South. Periodically all institutions are required to conduct intensive self-studies to maintain their accreditation.

A positive report from SACS means that a college is recognized nationwide as being sound academically, fulfilling the mission for which it was chartered. From the student perspective, reaccreditation means that other colleges and graduate schools will continue to accept transfer credits earned at Kennesaw College and that employers will continue to recognize the validity of K.C. degrees.

The Self-Study Steering Committee has now completed a half-year of planning. The eight Criteria Committees are ready to embark on another half-year of data collecting. Most of 1985 will be devoted to writing and editing the Self-Study Report. Updating and printing will occur during Winter Quarter, 1986.

Kennesaw welcomes new students at summer orientation sessions

Mama Cat is missed

Kennesaw College's unofficial mascot, Mama Cat was put to sleep July 27 at a local veterinarian's office. The approximately eight-year-old tabby and white cat, who lived between the Library and Science Buildings, was in failing health all summer quarter.

Seven years ago, the library staff decided to have the cat spayed and to give her shots after her litter of kittens died of the cold that winter.

Mama Cat never lost any of the toughness that got her through freezing cold winters, spare rations over holidays, cruising dogs and cars. Often found waiting on the sidewalks around the library, well fed but hungry for a gentle rub on the head, Mama Cat would run up to students and staff who had come to know her.

But on July 27, Rebecca Carter, acquisitions librarian, took her to the vet for tests. Mama Cat was diagnosed positive for Feline Leukemia Virus and euthanasia was recommended.

Mama Cat was our official greeter, if not our official mascot. We will miss her.

CETL welcomes new director

by Jo Dilbeck

CETL, The Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning, welcomes its new Director, Dr. Joseph R. Kelly. Dr. Kelly comes to Kennesaw from his position as Associate Director for Faculty Development and Computer Based Learning in the Center for Instructional Development at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia.

Dr. Kelly received his Bachelor's degree from Albany State University of New York, his Master's degree from Cornell University, and his Ph.D in Education from Oregon State University. He has taught in public schools and universities, has extensive experience in computer education and faculty development, and has published extensively.

Dr. Diane Willey, for the last year the Acting Director of the Center, will return full-time to the Department of Curriculum and Instruction, in the School of Education, where she is an Associate Professor of Education. Dr. Willey served as Acting Director while the search for a permanent director was being made.

An umbrella department, CETL encompasses the Media Center, the Teacher's Center (a resource center for the elementary, middle, and secondary schools in the area, public and private), and the Curriculum Library. CETL also provides for faculty and staff development programs, workshops, and the Faculty Development Grants.

In the Teacher's Center, there is equipment such as laminators, dry mount machines, bookbinders, badgemakers, and others, which are used by students, administrators, faculty, and staff. The Curriculum Library holds textbooks that are used in the public schools in the area. The Media Center contains the learning labs, where students can view video tapes or utilize software and cassette tapes. There is a high speed audio tape duplicator on which the student can duplicate tapes to use at home.

CETL also has a store from which the patrons may purchase floppy disks (IBM and Apple), audio cassette tapes, and poster board, all at cost. The most recent addition to CETL is the record collection, record players and carrels from the Music Department.

Planned Parenthood clinic opens

by Julie Cotton

The Planned Parenthood of Cobb County, located at 615 Roswell Rd. in Marietta, opened in April and is operating despite the efforts of protesters who wish to close its doors. So far this clinic has received about 300 visits. On the average, the 220 different clients have been women between the ages of 20 and 30 seeking preventative birth control.

The Marietta clinic provides complete medical examinations for women, contraceptives, counseling, and family planning. It also provides referrals on prenatal care, adoptions, special medical problems, and abortions. Although the protesters carry signs reading, "Every abortion has two victims" and "Stop the holocaust," Planned Parenthood of Cobb does not perform abortions, but rather educates women of their three alternatives: Raising their child, having an abortion, or putting it up for adoption.

The demonstrators formed the Concerned Citizens Coalition of Cobb County upon the clinic's opening. Many of the protesters also belong to a local chapter of the Right-to-Life organization, and call their group the Cobb Right-to-Lifers. They oppose any government funding of the clinic and are against abortion.

The Cobb facility will not perform surgery, provide abortion procedures, treat diseases, or ask Cobb county for a government grant of appropriation.

Teresa Connell, the coordinator of the Cobb branch, said that although it is a shame that the protesters may inhibit people, especially teenagers, from visiting their clinic, they are actually good for the purpose of publicity.

"The picketing is unsolicited advertising; it's free advertising for us. I'm sorry they're there in a lot of ways, but you would be amazed at how many people come here having only known about it through the publicity of the picketers," Connell said.

Planned Parenthood, established in 1916 by Margaret Sanger, is the largest health agency in the world. In 1964, Ms. H. Taylor organized the first local Atlanta Planned Parenthood in response to the high rate of infant mortality and inaffordable medical care. At that time, Fulton County had one of the highest infant mortality rates in the country. Now, in response to other needs for family planning services in this area, the Cobb facility gathered its initial funding from the United Way and opened.

According to Planned Parenthood, Georgia has the third highest teenage pregnancy rate in the country. From 1970 to 1980, the rate of female population growth in Cobb was 51.1%. The number of teenagers in Cobb who in 1980 were at risk of unintended pregnancies was 6,020. That year, 1138 of those adolescents, or nearly 19% had unintended pregnancies. During that year in Cobb, there were 378 live births to unwed mothers, 597 women between the ages of 15 and 19 had induced abortions, and 163 women in the same age bracket has live births.

Planned Parenthood saw other indications of a need for a family planning center. There were continual occurrences of adolescent pregnancies, increasing incidences of sexually transmitted diseases, and rises in the school drop-out rate.

For financial support, the Cobb facility now strictly relies on patient fees, which are very affordable. A medical examination by a private doctor may range from $35 to $75. At Planned Parenthood students are charged $15 for the same service, and for non-students, it is $20. A prescription of birth control pills filled at a drugstore costs between $7 and $10 per month. Planned Parenthood of Cobb County charges $3.50 per month.

Connell said Planned Parenthood provides high quality care in addition to their low fees. Their staff includes Connell, who has a Masters in Counseling, a Nurse Practitioner, who performs medical examinations, and a licensed doctor, who acts as a Medical Director and Consultant.

All patients' records and visits are kept confidential. Connell said she always encourages minors to talk with their parents, but she "certainly doesn't encourage them to be sexually active." Connell said it is very important to educate teenagers because "Teenage pregnancies are, of course, devastating to young women's development. It means," Connell continued, "dropping out of school all the time, interrupting education, interrupting career goals, and for some people, staying in a welfare dependency status."

Erik Peterson, a member of the Concerned Citizens Coalition of Cobb County, was quoted in the Atlanta Constitution's Cobb Extra, as saying that the coalition's "overall aim is to uphold traditional family values and that they do not want Planned Parenthood "providing sex education for our children."

Connell said Planned Parenthood is "not in favor of teenagers being sexually active, but the fact is many of them are. The statistics indicate that teenagers who come here have been sexually active for 6 to 9 months before they come (to the clinic). In fact," Connell added, "most of them come because they are afraid they are pregnant."

Many of Planned Parenthood's protesters accuse them of encouraging sexual activity. Connell said the family planning organization feels it is the media and "the world" that is responsible for increased sexual activity. "We're trying to address the problem," Connell said, "not trying to get people to do it."

Planned Parenthood often sets up facilities in college communities because college students are usually more responsible for their sexual activities and are more receptive to the service and education the centers provide. The Cobb branch is opened from 9 am to 5 pm on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays, and holds evening hours on Tuesdays. Their phone number is 424-1477.

CETL Director

The Center is used heavily during the quarter, to view and listen to tapes and use software. Last year, CETL had 500 teacher-members from Cobb, Cherokee, and Bartow counties. Faculty members also use the center with frequency, for workshops, checking out Audio-Visual equipment for the classroom and for presentations off campus.

An expanding, growing department, CETL is in the process of hiring an additional full-time audio-visual technician and a half-time Teacher's Center coordinator. Staff member Anne Johnston says, "It is an innovative concept to be able to pull all these areas together under a single umbrella, to be of service to the campus and the community. All new students should be encouraged to come up to the facility and tour the center and see what we have to offer."

"If students know that these places exist, and that these facilities and resources are here, and how helpful we will be to them, it will behoove them to come up on their own, and not wait until an instructor sends them. There is always a student assistant here that can give them a tour and let them know what we have to offer, and show them how to use the equipment (CETL has six to seven student assistants). There is a catalog that is listed by department for the software. It is just like using the library, the only difference being that the equipment and software cannot be checked out to students, it must be utilized in the center."

CETL is located on the Fourth Floor of the Main Library. Its hours are 8am-5pm, Monday and Friday; 8am-8pm, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday; and 1pm-4pm, on Saturday, excluding holidays.

Kennesaw students participate in Miss Cobb County Pageant, take many top awards

Kennesaw College was well represented recently in the Miss Cobb County Pageant, held at the Cobb Civic Center. Eleven of the 21 young ladies who vied for the local title are KC students.

The KC women competing were Elisabyth Honeycutt Harris of Acworth, Christine Louise McAbee of Kennesaw, Paula Sue Reeves of Marietta, Melissa Renee Barrett of Kennesaw, Shery Lynn Hall (a recent graduate) of Smyrna.

Also in the pageant were Kimberly Dawn Hancock of Kennesaw, Faith Anne Brown of Marietta, JoAnn Carter of Marietta, Kelly Marie Taylor also of Marietta, Bernadette Bowen of Smyrna, and Erica Christine Chelline of Roswell.

Four of the top six awards were taken by KC students. Faith Anne Brown took first runner-up honors. The 18-year old, freshman at KC enthused the crowd with her vocal rendition of "Lady is a Tramp."

Sherry Lynn Hall, a June graduate of KC with her degree in music education, was chosen second runner-up.

Miss Hall was heard by everyone when who sang "We Shall be Holy" and interpreted herself in sign language.

Kelly Marie Taylor was chosen third runner-up. This 20-year old sophomore at KC excited the audience with a medley of "Get Happy", "Accentuate the Positive" and "Great Day."

Christine McAbee, 22-year old senior at KC was chosen "Mis Congeniality". This award is often most coveted because its recipient is chosen by all of the girls in the pageant. Miss McAbee sang the Amy Grant tune, "Doubly Good to You," and accompanied herself on the piano.

The top six awards were not the only awards given in the pageant.

Sherry Lynn Hall was the Preliminary Talent winner with her beautiful vocal/sign arrangement.

Faith Anne Brown won the Fashion Award for her wardrobe worn during the week at pageant engagement.

Plaques were given to the women with the most ticket sales. All were KC students. They were Paula Reeves, Sherry Hall, Faith Anne Brown and Christine McAbee.

All Pageant Sweethearts chosen by members of the pageant staff were KC students. They were Faith Anne Brown, Sherry Hall, Melissa Barrett, Christine McAbee, Elisabyth Honeycutt and Paula Reeves.

These young ladies not only became involved in their community, but swept the rewards from that involvement.

ROTC student carries on family tradition

The tradition goes on.

When Jeff Walker, a recent Kennesaw College graduate, was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the U.S. Army on August 22, it was his father, retired U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Leo R. Walker who administered the oath. Walker's bars were pinned on by his mother and his sister Kim.

After transferring to Kennesaw from The Citadel, Walker graduated as a distinguished military student. He completed the Officer Basic Course at Ft. Benning, Georgia and is a 1983 graduate of the Air Borne School at Ft. Bragg, North Carolina.

Col. Richard Scharf, Professor of Military Science at Georgia Tech who spoke at the occasion, praised Walker for his achievements and said that he was pleased to see him "continue a family tradition." M/Sgt. John Woodham, Operation Training Instructor at Georgia Tech, offered the traditional first salute.

Walker, a management major who lives with his family in Roswell, will begin active duty with the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii.

"I'm really looking forward to active duty," Walker said. Smiling, he added, "And I'm saving money for a surfboard."

VIEW POINT

Bull's Eye

by Jeffrey Bull Grable

Deaths cause Reflection on life

My mother is a nurse. She has told me my share of stories about dying children and broken young people. Such tales leave me unaffected. I have an emotional callus.

In a way this callus is a protective device. My mother has more tales of dread and death than any of the other nurses I know. Whatever tenderness there is within me would be injured if I were unable to shrug off her accounts of the deaths of strangers. I am glad to have the callous. It serves me well.

But at times I feel the callus dulls my sensitivity to the people those stories are about. Sometimes I want to be moved by the tragedy or opportunity other people find in life. When I reach out to others the callus often allows little to be revealed. I have come to find that it takes something unusually piercing to break through the thick skin around my emotions. I am sad to report that it took the deaths of two people to make me feel the loss and compassion that my mother's stories should have stirred in me. The deaths of Pam Cheek and Billy Canada struck a nerve.

Neither person was a friend of mine. I vaguely remember Billy, who was a past president of the Kennesaw College SGA, and Pam was a freshman at Osborne High School when I was a senior there. I believe I knew her brother. His locker was near mine. I doubt that either Pam or Billy knew me. However, I feel a connection to each of them: We all were students at Kennesaw.

Sometimes I think about the death of Pam Cheek when I pass the place where she wrecked. It is not very far from the college. She was on her way home when she died. More than once the thought of another student, dead in a traffic accident, has made me clip together my seat belt. I am sometimes afraid a similar accident could happen to me. That thought makes that intersection difficult to pass.

Billy Canada's death brings many different images to my mind. His struggle against liver cancer was widely publicized in the media and I remember seeing his face on Channel 5 many times. His friends raised over $100,000 to pay for a liver transplant and Billy had the operation. He died several months later from secondary complications from the new liver.

While sorting through old photos from the files of the Sentinel, I have found several pictures of Billy Canada. He did a lot of work while he was a student at Kennesaw. He had a lot of friends. It is "friends" I think of when I see the pictures of Billy. I wonder how his friends feel without him. I know they loved him. They worked too hard to raise the $100,000 for him to have been just a "nice guy." Billy must have been something special; he had friends. It makes me wonder if I am doing those things which make others love me. I wonder if I am making friends.

The deaths of Pam and Billy have made me reflect on my life. While the deaths of the two did not move me in the same way as their family and friends were moved, I have felt something. It is a realization that I can learn from the tragedy of others. It is emphasized the fragility of life.

I realize that I do not want to be so calloused that I cannot be sensitive to the plights of others. I would like to change my callus into something semi-permeable, so I could take from my mother's stories those things I could grow from, and reject those items which hurt.

I am sad that it took the lives of two people to help me to realize these things.

THE BUTT OF THE PARKING PROBLEM!

The Sentinel not into 'The Big Rejection'

by Sissy Bowen

Allow me to introduce myself, I am the Unofficial Official Acting Managing Editor of your newspaper. I have held this position for about five weeks.

I was minding my own business, being the good KC cafeteria cashier that I was expected to be, when suddenly I was approached!

For 15 long months at KC, I had been wondering if The Sentinel staffs ever needed anybody. I certainly never felt confident enough to ask. Rejection is not one of my favorite responses. From what I had heard, that response seemed to flow from The Sentinel office. There I was, suddenly being approached by Cheryl Segal, the Publications Coordinator. She asked me if I would be interested in working for The Sentinel. Still wary from first impressions, I told her I would consider it. At least an hour later, Cheryl came back from her office with a publications application. My wariness diminished rapidly when I realized that I must really be needed. I gave The Sentinel my "three-day mandatory consideration period." On the fourth day, I took a deep breath and dove right into The Sentinel. I haven't regretted it since.

The Sentinel staff I joined consisted of seven enthusiastic people including faculty advisor, Pat Johnston and Cheryl Segal.

In only eight days, with contributions from staff writers Julie Cotton and Rose Kovacs Hochman, the Acting Editor Jeff Grable, Acting Production Manager Michael Martinez, Cheryl Segal and myself put together and released the first of what we hope will be the annual Orientation issue.

Within another 10 days we held two open staff meetings, inviting students who expressed interest at the summer's sessions and any student, faculty or staff members on campus who wanted to "be a part of the movement."

As a result of those meetings, The Sentinel staff now has 21 members who are excited about the direction in which we are headed. We haven't grown, we have just begun to grow.

Let it be known that this Sentinel staff is not for "the Big Rejection." We are proud to be a student publication. That means that The Sentinel is in the hands of the students. Any student who is interested and who has anything to offer to this newspaper is welcome to become a part.

A student newspaper at any college is vital in keeping unity and continuity within the student body. Being a commuter college, KC is one school that particularly needs this consistency. I consider myself very fortunate for having the opportunity to contribute what I can to this important means of communication. The same opportunity is available to anyone interested.

You can be officially, unofficially active! If you don't like titles, just be active!

SGA Encourages Participation

by Don Sams

To those of you attending Kennesaw College for the first time, welcome. To those of you returning from summer vacation, welcome back. And to those of you who attended classes summer quarter, congratulations, you are another quarter closer to graduation, so hang in there.

"Student Government... is the spokesman for the Student Body"

I would like to take this opportunity to express to you some of my thoughts concerning the Student Government Association. The Kennesaw College Student Government Association was founded in 1966 under the guidance of Dr. Mark E. Meadows. When asked his views on the importance of the Student Government Association, Dean Meadows replied, "I believe that the Student Government Association is the spokesman for the Student Body and is therefore the most important student organization on campus." He further stated that "...the Student Government Association will play the key role in promoting the growth and well-being of the students of the college."

I find that I feel very much the same way Dr. Meadows did when the S.G.A. was founded. I also have high hopes and expectations for the S.G.A. and subsequently for you the students of Kennesaw College, for you are the Student Government Association. In order for the S.G.A. to function at its maximum potential, you must be involved. There are several different levels of involvement, and you should choose the level that best fits you; but be involved!

"A lot of you probably do not realize the effect you have on policy development"

The first and probably most important way that you can be involved is by speaking out. Attend the S.G.A. meetings and forums and let your thoughts, your needs, and your concerns be known, for if the question is to be answered, it must first be asked.

Second, get involved with one of the S.G.A. committees, or be a student representative to one of the school-wide committees or councils. These are the policy-making bodies on campus. A lot of you probably do not realize the effect that you have on policy development here at Kennesaw College, but if you will refer to the article on the Student Activities Budget process, you can see that you do have a voice in the budget process, as well as other policies that effect student well-being.

Third, hold an office in the S.G.A. Senatorial elections will be held the 8th and 9th of October; so you still have time to submit your petition for office. Petitions may be picked up at the S.G.A. office between the hours of 8:00 A.M. and 9:00 P.M. Monday thru Thursday, and between the hours of 8:00 A.M. and 2:00 P.M. on Friday. As a senator you have the opportunity to interact with students throughout the campus, to find out how they feel about the issues at hand, and to see that their voices are heard.

So you see, this is YOUR Student Government Association. How effective it is depends on YOU. So speak out, and be heard.

Many careers open to English majors

New students at Kennesaw College as well as those who either have not decided upon a major or are contemplating a change in major have been urged to consider the career possibilities for English graduates.

Some of the possibilities were outlined by Dr. Karen Thomson, acting chair of the English Department.

"First of all, an English major can prepare a student for many opportunities in the business and/or professional world," Dr. Thomson noted.

"Composition, an integral part of virtually every English course, stresses logical and analytical thinking as well as synthesizing," she explained.

"Of course, reading literature reinforces these same skills," Dr. Thomson continued, "essentially the skills most needed in today's world outside the classroom."

Several courses focusing on writing are included in the English Department's offerings, including English 310, Advanced Grammar.

These courses, Dr. Thomson pointed out, help prepare students for all kinds of expositions where writing is involved, those in various aspects of journalism, both print and electronic, as well as advertising and public relations.

In addition, she stated, many positions in merchandising, insurance, banking, and social services require writing skills.

Since literature deals with all aspects of life itself," she said, "in reality, a major in English can help prepare a student for many different kinds of careers.

"Our objective in the English Department," Dr. Thomson added, "remains that of helping students achieve their career goals while also giving them the means of enhancing their own personal lives."

Dean Hopper expresses plans

Dean Hopper radiates energy and enthusiasm. Her eyes come alive when she explains some of the plans she is setting in motion. She explains that from the highest administrative positions through the ranks the school is committing itself to creating a network of people that a student can go to, no matter what they need. Dean Hopper sees communication as the key to accomplishing this task.

She says, "I want to get to know students. I don't want this position (Dean) to come between me and students. I want student contact. The entire administration wants to develop a more one-to-one relationship with students. We are committed to providing assistance."

The Dean has some specific plans already started. She reveals that "One of my primary goals is to extend the services of the college to night students. We want to extend the hours that the college is available. In just the past week we have reached an agreement about the business hours--Records and Admissions will be open till 8:30pm. We plan to have campus wide hours till 8:30pm. This office will be open four nights a week till 8:30pm.

President of Student Government, Don Sams, and Dean Hopper have planned to provide coffee and donuts at night after class so that students could meet to talk ideas over, and share their input with SGA and Student Activities. People from all parts of the school have expressed interest in this idea.

Dean Hopper repeatedly expresses her desire for input from students. She stresses the importance of students getting out and talking to people at the college.

She says "Get to know the people that are going to make decisions. They want your input."

One of her final remarks underscores her feelings about being in this role "I have never been as excited about a job as much as I am about this one."

Many may ask: Why car pool?

That is a fair question. Let's face it, this is a commuter college, and many of the students attending school have to go to work in the afternoons.

Consider this scene: It's 11:05 am, you have just finished class for the day, and you walk out to where you parked your car. But, instead of finding your car, you find someone pulling into the space where you thought you parked the car.

A quick search of the area tells you the car is not in this lot, panic is beginning to overtake you, you run to the other lot, hoping you simply forgot where you actually parked the car.

Now it's 11:20, you have not found your car, your stomach begins to tighten, and you are beginning to get a headache. You rush to the Security Office to report your car is missing. The Officer asks for your name, tag number, car registration, parking decal number....

It's 11:40, you are due at work in less than an hour. The officer informs you that your car has been towed to the garage by the XXX Wrecker Company because you were illegally parked for the third time this quarter. You argue that there were not other places to park; this isn't fair; the school has no right having your car towed away!!!!

The cab drops you off at the XXX Wrecker Company, "That'll be $12.50, thank ya."

Time has moved on, it is 12:45 when you see your car in the third row back in the lot. A gentleman in grey coveralls approaches, "Can I help ya?"

You explain your car was mistakenly towed away and you have come to claim it. He tells you the tow charge is TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS, and he cannot accept personal checks. You call work..... Kennesaw College now has some 1600 legal student parking spaces on campus. A quick look at the graph will indicate a very high possibility that these spaces will be filled by 9 am every day of the week.

To help the overcrowding situation, the school has rearranged the schedule, thus classes meet every other day. But even this measure will not turn the tide; the school is expanding this year. Enrollment is expected to be between 6,000 to 7,000 students. If one looks at the class schedules, counts the number of classes for each period in the day, and uses some averaging formula, one can predict there will be more cars on campus than there are parking spaces. (The formula used for the graph was as follows:

Average class sizes were determined by the class level; the number of OXX times 35; number of 100 level classes times 40; number of 200 level classes times 30; number of 300 level classes times 20; number of 400 level classes times 15.)

What can be done to correct the parking problem? CAR POOL!!! The SGA (Student Government Association) is hoping you will fill out a CAR POOL FORM.

The data on this form will be compared to other student forms and hopefully you and one or two others will be able to drive to school together, thereby reducing the number of cars on campus. Of course this is a free service brought to you by the SGA, and use of this service is strictly voluntary, but, with parking conditions as they are now, it is a recommended service which can save you time and money in the long run. Please fill out the form and return it to the SGA office.

Task Force formed to study KC growth

Last spring rumors spread through the college of wholesale removal of trees to accommodate the increase in student enrollment.

Because of these rumors, a few students began to question the problems of parking and expansion. As a result of these questions, the SGA has formed a new Task Force.

The original purpose of the Task Force was to look into the parking problem on campus and to help voice student concern over the possible removal of trees from the campus.

After its initial meeting, the Task Force talked with various administrators, and read documentation from the Board of Regents about the plans for parking expansion at Kennesaw College.

The Task Force examined the facts presented by the members and expanded its scope to include proposed expansion of the college.

At this point the acting chair, Eva Johnson, requested the help of the Kennesaw College Foundation and Alumni Association. Mr. Campbell Dasher, Vice Chairman of the Kennesaw College Foundation, and the Alumni Association have promised some assistance.

The Task Force is looking into the possibility of acquiring adjoining property for parking expansion, without the removal of trees from the present campus.

The Task Force is also helping to sponsor a trial car pool service, which will help connect people with similar class schedules and home locations so they may share rides to and from the campus.

The Task Force asks all students interested in maintaining the aesthetic surroundings of Kennesaw College, or who want to know the plans for the future of the school, to join them in the maintenance of "Harvard In The Pines."

The graph is based on the following averaging formula:

- All classes for each hour, at each level were counted.
- 009, 020, 098 classes for each period were given an average class size of 35 students.
- 100 level classes were given a class size of 40 per class.
- 200 level classes were given a class size of 30 per class.
- 300 level classes were given a class size of 20 per class.
- 400 level classes were given a class size of 15 per class.
- The total number of classes at each level for each period were multiplied by the class level size factor, giving a total number of students in each level at each period.
- The total number of students for all levels were added together to get the final number of students on campus for each period.

Note: The classes are longer on Tuesday and Thursday, therefore the 5th period has no TTh students indicated. The second period on Tuesday and Thursday is used as student activities period, and there is no way of telling how many students will be on campus.

Co-op program gets $95,600 grant

by Rose Kovacs Hochman

Kennesaw College's co-operative training program got a boost with the receipt of a $95,600 federal grant earlier this month.

The co-op training program is designed to allow students to work in a business setting under the supervision of an academic advisor while pursuing their schooling. Students are placed in local job sites and alternately work and attend school on a full-time basis.

Traditionally, most of the jobs in co-op have been filled by business school students but there are opportunities for students of all academic backgrounds.

Students are currently placed with I.B.M., the Federal Government, and Lockheed. The Federal Government being the largest employer of people with liberal arts background.

Co-op provides financial assistance to students while allowing them to continue their educations. A student enrolled in co-op can alternately be 100% student or worker.

Waller says to be eligible for co-op a student must have 45 quarter hours of credit and a declared major. While most co-op students have a good idea of career goals the program can help a student to find out what is the right or wrong job. Age is not a factor when considering co-op. Students are expected to maintain at least a 2.5 GPA.

Both the college and students gain from having a strong co-op program," says Waller. She explains, "the strong student-advisor relationship that develops from the co-op helps a student to remain in college. Also the six-quarter length of co-op makes the student commit to remaining in school."

The bulk of the grant, $85,600, is allotted for personnel, of this, $35,000 is being used towards paying four faculty members to work one-third time for the co-op program. These faculty members will represent each of the schools. The School of Business will have 2 faculty advisors, Betty Presnell and Bill Goodman. The School of Arts and Behavioral Sciences will have Dr. Tom Scott as its advisor. Dr. Dick Gayler will represent the School of Science.

An assistant director of co-op will be hired to work with Deborah Walker. A secretary for the assistant will also be hired. Maxine Prince, new job location and development specialist, will also be working in a limited capacity with co-op.

The remaining portion of the grant will be used for travel expenses and office supplies.

The greatly expanded staff will allow the number of students participating in the co-op program to increase from 60 to an estimated 200 by August 85.

To become part of co-operative training, the student must first attend an orientation. After this the student is peer counseled by a student already in the program. At this time, the interested student is encouraged to do some self-assessment of personal goals and needs. After peer-counseling the student must interview with the appropriate faculty advisor.

After the faculty advisor gives formal approval the student is ready to begin interviewing for a position. The interviews are conducted in a business-like fashion and the prospective employer makes the final decision regarding hiring.

Once a position is accepted the co-op advisor becomes the student's academic advisor. They work closely together while the student is enrolled in the program.

Students interested in co-op should go to the CAPS Center on the 2nd floor of the old library and plan to attend one of the on-going orientation sessions offered each quarter.

Area children attend Kennesaw's 'Summerfest'

The campus of Kennesaw College was filled with activity this summer thanks to the presence of nearly 800 children from around the metro-Atlanta area who participated in "Summerfest," a festival of learning for children and teens.

Coordinated through the Continuing Education Center at Kennesaw College, the programs offered students a variety of activities including art, dramatics, computers and science exploration. Instructors were KC faculty and staff and special guest instructors visited from the Alliance Theater School and Chattahoochee Nature Center.

"I felt Kennesaw College could offer a good all-day children's program," said Ann Jones, program coordinator for continuing education. She added the first all-day summer program for children at the college has been a huge success and plans are underway for next year's courses. "A program like this offers supplementary enrichment to the academic area as well as recreation. First of all, it has to be fun - the children must want to be here."

Hidden behind the trees of Kennesaw College, a group of children listened as Lee Schuster, education director at the Chattahoochee Nature Center, introduced a six-week-old baby raccoon and explained how he survives in the wilderness. Snakes and possums also visited with the children through the educational outdoor experience.

Another highlight of the summer program at Kennesaw was Graham Tutt's soccer camp. The five separate clinics for boys and girls ages 6 to 19 were designed to teach the discipline, skill and technique of soccer. Graham Tutt, head coach, played professional soccer and guided youngsters through drills and intersquad games in the KC soccer field.

For more information on the 1985 summer children's programs at Kennesaw College, call the Continuing Education Center at 429-2958.

Atlanta area youths spent their summer at Kennesaw, when they participated in "Summerfest." The college's faculty and staff provided instruction.

NEEDED: Interested students to form a College Bowl team for Kennesaw College.

COLLEGE BOWL is the question and answer game in which students demonstrate their knowledge in various academic fields. Teams of four compete against each other to score points by answering toss-up and bonus questions.

Management is on New Track

Five new courses have been announced to begin Fall Quarter for Management students. One of the courses, BA 407, Public Relations, will be offered to students throughout the college since knowledge of this particular area is relevant to all majors. There are no prerequisites for BA 407. The course provides an understanding of the profession, the practice, and the process of public relations as it relates to influencing public opinion, publicity, communication with critical publics (employees, communities, media, investors) and organizational decision making. PR has become a crucial aspect of the relationship between organizations and their publics.

Management 471, Labor Relations, will be offered as a management elective. This course provides students who aspire to careers in human resource management an understanding of the crucially important dimensions of formalized labor/management relations.

Additionally, three Management System courses will be offered. These courses will provide students with the means of managing the explosion of knowledge and information now taking place in the United States and the world. These courses will provide skills in information processing and information handling and storage. In addition, students will learn how to analyze information flows within functional areas and how to control it for maximum productivity, planning, and control. These courses begin with MS 205, Business Computer Applications which consists of a brief study of business computers and how and where they can make a valuable contribution to the business process. The course will be devoted to study and "hands-on" experience with micro computers in the various business areas.

MS 307, Advanced Business Computer Applications, (formerly called BA 207, Computer Applications) has a prerequisite of MS 205. It is an in-depth course to develop advanced proficiency with a selected number of commercial software packages. This course will be especially recommended for accounting students prior to taking ACC 331/332.

MS 367, Management Information Systems, will integrate topics of management and systems theory, relevant to managing an organization's information resources. It includes computer and data base concepts, and emphasizes the design, analysis, operation, control of information systems and decision support systems to aid management decision making.

New Faculty

Dr. Christina Christenson will join the Management faculty this fall. Dr. Christenson has her Ph.D. from Georgia State University in the area of Personnel and Industrial Relations. She has been teaching at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio. She has extensive research experience in Latin America, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Thailand, and Japan. She will be teaching Personnel Administration and Labor Relations.

New Track, Production and Operations Management

Production and operations management is making a comeback among students and business schools across the country as companies are refocusing on making a better product faster and cheaper. Companies are recognizing that the best-conceived strategic plans, marketing analyses, or financial tactics are ineffective if products are too costly to produce, are of inferior quality, or not priced competitively in domestic and world markets.

Kennesaw College's new production/operations management "track" will give students the abilities to integrate financial, technical, communicative and managerial skills. This combination of a broadbased business and technical background will prepare graduates to enter these new and expanding positions in production/operations management.

The program consists of 23 credit hours to be taken at Southern Technical Institute and transferred to Kennesaw College as part of the junior/senior electives of the management major.

Students interested in the production/operations "track", please see Dr. Lloyd Southern for details.

Arts, languages offered by Liberal Studies Dept.

If you are a returning student to Kennesaw College and a new student were to ask you about the Department of Liberal Studies, would you know what to respond?

This department came into being when Kennesaw was reorganized only a year ago.

Headed by Mr. David M. Jones, it includes art, foreign languages, speech, and philosophy.

Although the department currently does not offer a degree, a major has been proposed in art, with the program to be submitted to the academic council this fall.

"We anticipate," Mr. Jones said, "campus and Board of Regents approval of this program sometime this year."

He also noted that a committee is working to develop a degree in communications, a program to be housed in the Department of Liberal Studies.

Minors are now available in both art and language.

Discussing the four disciplines in his department, the chair explained that the proposed major in art would enable students to obtain a B.A. Degree in one of three areas of interest: studio art, commercial art, and art education.

Not only has the art faculty sponsored a series of lectures by visiting artists, it has secured a grant for an artist-in-residence and has re-activated a student art club, Visions.

The art faculty attempt to keep an exhibition in the gallery located in the library, Mr. Jones continued, with a major exhibition last year by the internationally famous Georgia artist, Lamar Dodd.

Turning next to languages, the chairman pointed out that a language lab under the supervision of a full-time director is an integral part of the language program.

"Language students and faculty," he continued, "play major roles in hosting and interpreting for foreign visitors to the campus."

He recalled that last year French professors from Toulouse and Germans from Marietta's sister city of Linz visited the campus.

New courses are being offered in Commercial French and Spanish, according to the chairman, with another new course leading to certification of proficiency as a part of a minor in International Studies.

New courses have also been added in the area of speech and communications, the chair noted, listing them as Speech 209--Voice and Diction; Speech 301--Group Interpretation of Literature; Speech 308--Advanced Public Speaking; and Mass Communications 101--Introduction to Mass Communications.

Readers' Theatre presentations, he explained, are an important part of the speech program, giving students the opportunity to act and do oral interpretations in public performance.

Finally, the area of philosophy contains, in addition to the introductory course in philosophy, courses in religion, ethics, and logic.

"We invite students of all majors to become involved in the Department of Liberal Studies," Mr. Jones concluded.

CAPS offers Fall programs

Each quarter professional counselors lead a variety of groups and workshops about many subjects relative to student social and educational development. These activities afford the student an opportunity to learn more about themselves in an atmosphere of confidentiality and mutual support from other students and a counselor. A student can register for these groups in the CAPS Center, located on the second floor of the former library, or telephone the CAPS Center secretary at 429-2966. Descriptions of the groups and workshops are listed below.

GROUPS

Functioning successfully as a student and person often depends on improving personal and interpersonal skills. Students may participate in groups that normally meet once a week throughout the quarter. Participants may register between September 24 & 28. Groups begin the week of October 1.

CAREER DECISION-MAKING: Learn the role interests and values play in choosing a career and gain information about availability of jobs in Georgia. These groups are formed every two weeks to examine career planning through vocational testing and computer-assisted information retrieval. These groups will meet on WEDNESDAY, 2:00-3:00 p.m.

CHANGE AND GROWTH: Five to eight students meet weekly to talk about changes in their lives—both on and off campus. Discussion focuses on awareness, options in behavior, personal satisfaction, and taking charge of themselves. This group is particularly supportive for students seeking or going through personal changes. The group will meet on WEDNESDAY, 1:30-3:00 p.m.

NONTRADITIONAL STUDENT SUPPORT GROUP (NTSS): This group is for those students over the traditional college age of 25 years who are returning to school after devoting time to home, job, or other interests. The concerns and relevant issues of non-traditional students are discussed in an atmosphere of support and acceptance. (Students signing up for this group are required to make an appointment for an intake interview. See the secretary in the Counseling Center to arrange a 10-minute appointment.) NTSS will meet on MONDAY, 11:00-12:00 p.m.

RELAXED POWER FOR ATHLETES (Women's Intercollegiate Basketball Team): Success in sports requires preparation. New information and techniques have enhanced athletic performance through mental preparation. This group will learn about relaxation, balance, and mental rehearsal. The group will meet on THURSDAY, 4:00-5:00 p.m.

STUDY SKILLS: This group presents information that students can use to more effectively succeed in college. Most students who enter college know how to study; however, the habits and approaches used in high school do not always accomplish the same results. It may be simply a matter of not knowing how to accomplish it in college. Study Skills will meet on MONDAY, 1:00-2:30 p.m.

WORKSHOPS

Joining a counseling group may not fit into a student's schedule. Consequently, a series of mini-workshops, lasting one to two hours, is offered. No prior registration is required. Students may attend any or all of the workshops described below. All workshops are held at 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. during the T'N'T period.

ROTC is on the move

The 25th day of March, 1984 was a memorable day in the lives of three Kennesaw College Students. 2LT Roger Hackler, 2LT Terry Greenfield and 2LT Shawn Faulkner received their commissions in the United States Army. 2LT Jeffery Walker received his commission on the 21st of August, 1984.

2LT Hackler, a management major was branched aviation and will report to Fort Rucker, Alabama for Aviation Officers Basic Course and Helicopter Flight School.

2LT Greenfield, who majored in marketing and was a charter member of Blue Key, reported for six weeks temporary duty at Fort Bragg, North Carolina and is presently attending the Air Defense Artillery Officers Basic course at Fort Bliss, Texas. He is assigned to the famous 101st Airborne (Air Assault) Division at Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

2LT Faulkner, a history major and a member of the 273rd Military Intelligence Company at Dobbins AFB will attend his basic course in Fort Huachuca, Arizona.

2LT Walker, who chose Infantry as his branch, will attend his Officers Basic course in September. He will then report to his regular duty with the 25th Infantry Division (Tropical Lightning) at Schoefield Barraks, Hawaii.

All of the Lieutenants received the Distinguished Military Student award from the Department of the Army. They are looking forward to entering the military service. The ROTC program at Kennesaw College, under the direction of Major Barry Wingard, is a dynamic program designed to commission only highly qualified individuals in today's Army.

In other ROTC news, Three members of the Cadet Company at KC were fortunate enough to receive slots to attend Airborne training. They are Cadet Gary Robinson, the Cadet Company Commander for 1984-85, Cadet Curtis Reidy and Cadet John Blanck. The Airborne students will go through three weeks of physically and mentally demanding training. Their training will end with five jumps from aircraft at altitudes greater than 1000 feet. At the completion of "Jump School" each will be awarded the distinctive insignia of Airborne Soldiers.

From The

Chairman of the Board

To all the returning students welcome back, to all the Freshman welcome to Kennesaw College. I know it's corny to say that or even to write it. But tradition and the editor said I had to do it.

What I really want to write about is the many diverse and entertaining events we in the Union have planned for this Fall.

Chautauqua and Forum, the committees that bring National and local speakers to our campus, will host an old fashion political rally and debate with many local politicians on campus "pressing the flesh" and "climbing on top of the old soap box."

Chautauqua will host Richard Reeves, a writer for the New York Times magazine, and Jeff Greenfield, syndicated political columnist. Reeves and Greenfield will be in the Kennesaw Gym, Thursday, October 18 at 9:00a.m. They will be speaking on the topic of "Impact of Media on the 1984 Presidential Election."

Forum is still working on an old fashion debate with many of the local candidates participating. Keep your eyes open for this political rhubarb of pragmatism.

For those people with and without the luxury of cable television, Cinematic Arts has got the movies you won't be seeing right away on HBO.

With the "T'n'T" hour still with us (Tue., Thur. 10-11 no classes), one day you may walk into the Student Center and find a musician, magician, juggler, hypnotist, or mime on a portable stage for your enjoyment. These entertainers are brought to Kennesaw College by the Entertainment Committee. Also in the works is the Freaky Fall Friday with Intramural Games in the afternoon and a bonfire & plans for the Dramatics area are surfacing, I suspect great theatre classics to emerge soon.

Indoor Recreation will again be running it's normal tournaments. From games that require the skills of eye and hand such as billards or darts to intriguing games of mental mastery as chess or backgammon.

Trips around for Nature Bound from canoeing the rapid rivers of our native Georgia to snow skiing the slopes of Steamboat, Colorado. The myriad of trips and the diversity of activities that are possible can only be accomplished by participation in the planning of the trips and activities.

It is a lot of fun to participate in the activities and entertainment. It requires no skill, no investment other than time, and is free to students, faculty, and staff of Kennesaw College.

Recruitment Message

In the words of Christoph M. Wieland, "Man really knows nothing save what he has learned by his own experience." That is basically what the Student Union offers to you, the chance to put into practice some of the theories of the classroom, and the chance to experiment with your own ideas. Along with the opportunity to show your leadership skills, you will learn other skills to help you grow and develop into tomorrow's leaders. All of this within the frame work of programming for the college's entertainment needs.

The Kennesaw College Student Union Board's first meeting will be Tuesday, 25 September, 1984 at 2:00p.m. in the Student Activities Room, located on the second floor of the Student Center.

Hope you have a better than average academic year.

dance on the 26th of October.

The Cultural Affairs Committee will once again be bringing us the finer things in life, at least in the areas of genteel intertainment. The Musical Arts series, which includes Nationally acclaimed and local artists, brings to our rolling campus the sweet melodic notes of instrument and voice. The Dance Ensemble will once more provide the fluid motion of Ballet, the surprising step of Jazz, and the ever changing movement of Modern Dance, into their Fall program. While no definite

Chautauqua Presents

A debate on "The Media Impact on Presidential Elections" with JEFF GREENFIELD and RICHARD REEVES.

Jeff Greenfield is best known for his commentaries on politics and the media on CBS and ABC news. He is the author of six books, and writes a twice-weekly, nationally-syndicated column. He is a graduate of Yale Law School, was a legislative aide for Senator Robert Kennedy and chief speechwriter for New York Mayor John Lindsay.

Richard Reeves is one of the nations' top political columnists. His twice-weekly column appears in over 170 newspapers. In addition to frequent television appearances, Mr. Reeves' writings have appeared in such magazines as Esquire, Harper's, the Washington Monthly, and the New Yorker Magazine.

The Chautauqua Committee has, as its purpose, the duty of presenting lecturers that contribute to the service area and the college community and generate thought on local, state, national, or global ideas and issues. This presentation will shows how, in the synergistic political environment, the media can enhance or detract from a candidates' appeal or, by a one-sided presentation, make a candidate appear to enhance or detract from his or her own recognition factor.

SPORTS

Kennesaw Owls field twelve teams

In only two short years, Kennesaw College has gone from a school with no athletic program to member of the N.A.I.A. (the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) with 12 athletic teams. Our program continues to grow each year, and has a wide variety of sports for both men and women. The following is a list of the sports that we presently have here at K.C. as well as the coaches for the particular sports.

- Baseball
John Barrett
"Cooter" Swanson
Jim Nash
- Cross Country (men and women)
Dr. Dave Morgan
Dr. Tom Roper
- Men's Basketball
Dr. Dave Harris
John Barrett
- Women's Basketball
Ronda Seagraves
Beth Horne
- Golf
Spec Landrum
Dr. Dird Romer

- Track (men and women)
David Poteet
- Tennis (men and women)
Bob Mainor
- Soccer
Louis Sastoque
Bob Mainor
- Softball
Medra Ashmore
Ted Cochran

Any student interested in any of these sports should contact the Athletic Director, Spec Landrum, or the Secretary of the Athletic Department, Glenda Reagan. Both are located in the Athletic Office, which at the time of this writing was located on the first floor of the Old Library. However, sometime at the beginning of Fall quarter, the Athletic Offices will be moved to the second floor of the Student Center.

Poteet Runs Track Team

It would be wrong to say that David Poteet is taking over the responsibilities of K.C. Track Coach this spring.

Poteet is in fact replacing Roscoe Gooze as track coach; however, the team will begin practice as of October 1. Poteet plans to begin practice early in order to be ready for the out-door and possibly the indoor track seasons. This year, the track teams will compete in at least 9-10 out-door meets, including the Georgia Relays, Rome News Relays, and the Gatorade Classic.

Poteet has already done a great deal of recruiting. "This years men's team will have a minimum of 15-20 members, and the same will be true for the women," said Poteet. The team presently has three high school state champions and at least ten others that qualified for state. Although the teams contain many quality members, Poteet encourages both beginning and experienced runners to come out. "I'm looking for people, but they have to be serious and want to work hard."

As the new track coach, David Poteet is someone who clearly knows track. He ran track at Southern Tech 2 years and was named most valuable both years. He then went on to Berry College, where he ran 2 more years and was named most valuable one year. He was then the assistant track coach at Berry before coming to Kennesaw two years ago.

While being a runner in college, Poteet says that he "had to do everything by himself." As a coach, he wants to help his athletes with all areas of college, which is something that he never got.

David Poteet has very high hopes for his first season as track coach at K.C. "Most people run to lose weight or just for fun, but we are serious about it. We are going to have a nationally competitive program."

KC hires full time coaches

by Curt McKinney

Kennesaw's athletic program will receive a boost this fall with the addition of two full time coaches, Ronda Seagraves and Robert Mainor, Jr.

Coach Seagraves, who resides in Woodstock with her husband of two years, will be responsible for many duties. Her principal job will be to head the Women's Basketball coaching staff, but she will also keep tabs on the eligibility of all Golden Owl athletes. Coach Seagraves will be the academic advisor for women athletes and will supervise the purchase of new athletic equipment.

Coach Seagraves, who graduated from Ohio State University in 1981 with a Bachelor of Science degree, worked at Allegheny College as head volleyball coach and as an assistant women's basketball coach. She gave up those duties when she relocated to Woodstock.

Coach Mainor, who is 28 years old and single, will primarily coach the men's and women's tennis teams. However, Mainor is the head of the weight training program for all sports as well as the academic advisor to male athletes. When you add soccer team coach, to the list of his duties, you'll have only a partial grasp of his role in the athletic department.

Mainor, who holds a Master's Degree in Education from Auburn University, taught tennis for nine years prior to his arrival at KC. Before going to Auburn, Mainor attended Young Harris Junior College on a partial Tennis scholarship.

Both Seagraves and Mainor believe that the addition of two full-time coaches to the Kennesaw College athletic staff is a positive move.

It proves that Kennesaw wants to make a commitment to the athletes and the community. It really speaks about the direction Kennesaw's athletics are taking," Seagraves commented.

"It would obviously upgrade the (college's) program. Having two full-time coaches would give present athletes and incoming ones additional seriousness about their particular sport," Mainor said.

What does the future hold for Kennesaw College's athletic Program? "It's booming. Kennesaw's tremendous growth really speaks well for the future. It's a big plus knowing that the administration is behind you," said Coach Seagraves.

"As KC grows and becomes more known and support from the administration increases, the athletic situation at KC can't help but get better," Coach Mainor said.
