

Foundation to provide support for K.J.C.

Newly approved articles of incorporation for the Kennesaw Junior College Foundation were presented to the Board of Trustees in a special meeting held Wednesday on the college campus.

Robert T. Garrison, Chairman of the Board, accepted the Charter from attorney G. Conley Ingram, also a Board member, who explained that the articles had been certified by the Georgia Secretary of State, Ben Fortson, after having been legally approved in Cobb County.

Dr. Horace W. Sturgis, President of Kennesaw Junior College, hailed the occasion as "one of the most significant events in the development of our college," and pointed out that the Foundation "will give the additional support needed for the continued growth of the college." He commented further that similar foundations have contributed greatly to the growth of such institutions as the University of Georgia, the Georgia Institute of Technology, and Georgia State College, as well as many other public and private colleges and universities.

The five counties of Bartow, Cherokee, Cobb, Fulton and Paulding will be represented on the Board of Trustees of the Foundation, which is a non-profit organization dedicated to the expansion of the educational opportunities offered by the college.

There are 23 members of the Board of Trustees. In addition to Mr. Garrison, other officers are R. Steve Tumlin, Vice Chairman, and Wilder G. Little, Secretary-Treasurer. The Executive Committee includes these three officers and Howard Ector, a member of the Board.

The organizational meeting of the Board was held on April 17 at which time the charter members approved the bylaws and the articles of incorporation.

Dr. Sturgis pointed out that while Kennesaw Junior College is a State institution receiving a major portion of its support from public funds, the future of the college will depend to a large extent upon the additional support it receives from the community which it serves.

"If Kennesaw Junior College is to be truly an institution of excellence," he continued, "providing quality programs of education and service for the community, additional resources are needed in order that the college can be more than a mediocre institution of public higher education."

He further noted the necessity for attracting individuals with outstanding abilities and qualities of leadership to the faculty and staff. "Where State funds are insufficient to bring such people to the Kennesaw Junior College campus," he explained, "the Foundation will be able to help the college meet these needs."

It was pointed out that a quality institution providing a climate of educational excellence must have the means to support a program which will bring annually to the campus a number of distinguished visiting professors and lecturers from other college campuses. Such programs will serve to stimulate the interests and activities of the faculty, the students, and interested individuals in the community. Adequate funds for such activities are not available through the normal source of State appropriations.

In connection with faculty recruitment, the very existence of the Foundation will be evidence to prospective faculty members of the interest and support of the community for the college.

In still another area, the Foundation will be able to provide financial assistance in the form of scholarships and loans for deserving students.

Kennesaw Junior College

Dean Roberts awarded grant

Dr. Derrell C. Roberts, dean of Kennesaw Junior College, has been awarded a National Science Foundation grant to study for three weeks at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

The dean, who holds a doctorate with a major in history from the University of Georgia, will participate in an institute devoted to the study of quantitative methods in political science. He explained that his purpose will be to determine the usefulness of computers in areas such as the social sciences and the humanities.

A number of important professors in political science at the University of Minnesota will take part in the institute, which will run from July 7 through July 31. It will begin with a broad survey of the field and move into more specific areas.

A portion of the institute will be devoted to individual projects. Dr. Roberts said that he is especially interested in how such systems can be utilized in a junior college.

R.J.T. scores compiled

The Rising Junior Test was given at K. J. C. on May 21st. This test is designed to measure the general background and growth of students that have had one or two years of college instruction. Required by the Board of Regents, the test was given to students that have had at least 80 and not more than 100 quarter hours credit. The Rising Junior Test consisted of two general areas: General Examinations and Subject Examinations.

Scores were sent to the homes of the students. To have these scores interpreted by a counselor, call the Counseling Office for an appointment.

K.J.C. Foundation receives gift

MARIETTA—The recently incorporated Kennesaw Junior College Foundation has been presented its first gift of funds, a check for $1,000 from the Smyrna Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The presentation was made by W. Wyman Pilcher to Robert T. Garrison, Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

At the same time, Mr. Garrison announced the formation of a committee to organize a fund drive for the Foundation. Members are: Sidney Clotfelter (Chairman), Campbell Dasher, Howard Ector, and J. E. Massey.

The establishment of the Foundation was hailed by Dr. Horace W. Sturgis, President of Kennesaw Junior College, as "one of the most significant events in the development of our college."

The chief purpose of the Foundation will be to give the college the additional support needed for its continued growth, and especially to provide funds to finance programs and projects for which State appropriations are either insufficient or unavailable.

Dear Mister Editor,

Col. Bull and I have been together for a little over a hundred years now and we've seen quite a few tragic incidents that could have been avoided.

Take the Great War of '61' where the Col. and I met. You know, if old Henry Clay and the rest of the Senators had gotten together on the front step and whittled for a while, a lot of good boys wouldn't have died.

When I look down from the mountain and see as beautiful a place as KJC, I just can't imagine that there could be so little understanding between students and faculty.

A story on the Summer Dance had been planned for the front page. But since very few people cared enough to come, we felt that you wouldn't want to read about it either.—THE EDITORS.

Jim Keith is Sentinel Advisor

At the beginning of Summer Quarter The Sentinel acquired a new advisor in the person of Mr. James F. Keith, Jr. Mr. Keith replaced Mr. Morgan L. Stapleton, the former advisor.

Mr. Keith is the Assistant Professor of Sociology here at Kennesaw Junior College. He holds an A.B. degree from Wheaton College and obtained his M.A. degree from the University of North Carolina. Mr. Keith conducts classes in education as well as sociology. He presently makes his home in Sandy Springs.

As Sentinel Advisor, Mr. Keith is responsible for the content of the paper each month. He helps correct mechanical errors and tries to insure that the journalistic standards of the newspaper are kept high.

The last Sentinel Advisor, Mr. Stapleton, is an Instructor of Mathematics at KJC. He is presently working on his Ph.D. in mathematics at Georgia Tech. Mr. Stapleton still teaches one night class.

T.H. Rogers promoted

MARIETTA—Thomas H. Rogers, Jr., formerly Registrar of Kennesaw Junior College, has been promoted to the office of Registrar and Director of Admissions, President Horace W. Sturgis has announced.

Mr. Rogers will be filling the position formerly held by Mr. Ronald R. Ingle, Director of Admissions and Student Aid. Mr. Ingle is returning to graduate school to complete a program of graduate study leading to a doctorate.

A native of Dallas, Georgia, Mr. Rogers came to Kennesaw Junior College from McEachern High School in Powder Springs, where he served as a counselor.

After receiving his Bachelor of Science degree, with majors in chemistry and psychology, from the University of Georgia, Mr.

Rogers was awarded his Master of Education degree by the University of Virginia, with a major in guidance. He has done additional graduate work at the University of Georgia and Georgia State College.

Mr. Rogers has served with the United States Marines, from which he retired with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

A member of the First Baptist Church of Marietta, Mr. Rogers lives with his wife and their three children, Patricia Lynn, Thomas Howell II, and Marcia Ruth, at 317 Keeler Woods Drive in Marietta.

Can Anyone Be Blamed?

Josh Langston

It cannot be said that any one group, faction, organization or what-ever is to "blame" for the obviously existing problem in the Nursing Department. It is not a situation where there is one side that is 'right' and one side that is 'wrong'. I have tried to follow the developments in the Nursing Program with a somewhat more than interested eye.

From all outward appearances, there would seem to be some "great evil" lurking in the Science Building. I can hardly believe that. What comes to mind after the discussion and soul-searching and truth-hunting are over, is that the program is experiencing growing pains. . . and nothing more.

It is generally accepted as fact that the most strigent critic of a given topic is one who has been involved in the situation, yet has somehow failed to derive from that situation the expected end.

This is not to say that the students are at fault (is there really a fault?) Are we at an impasse? What exactly is the situation?

WHAT FACTS ARE KNOWN?

The first and probably the most revealing is the decreasing number of students enrolled in the program. With the advent of the Fall quarter, there were 46 students in the Nursing Program. After three quarters, there were only six left.

Portions of the training were tested on a "demerit" type system. In other words, if a student failed on these tests, the grade would count against her. But if the student did well on the test and passed it, the grade would not be averaged in with the others.

Many other facts have been brought to light. A great deal of conjecture has been made as to the fairness of tests, the importance of 'how the instructor feels toward the student personally', etc.

All of these things can be argued from an intellectual standpoint for hours on end. The real problems should not stem from personal feelings in and among these people involved with the program, rather they arise from the fact that no one has taken the time to iron them out in a manner suitable to everyone.

For these reasons I can only suggest a meeting of all the parties involved. This meeting could be organized in such a manner that there would be representation for each of three factions. . .the faculty, the administration, and the students.

Any other situation would be somewhat shallow. Nothing can be done unless arbitration is achieved and achieved soon. If all the facts are brought to light, then changes or explanations can be made. It takes a great deal of work to reach a point where a group of people can function together. Anything less than a group approach would do nothing but harm the program.

WHY NOT WORK TOGETHER? IT MIGHT HELP.

Library Replies

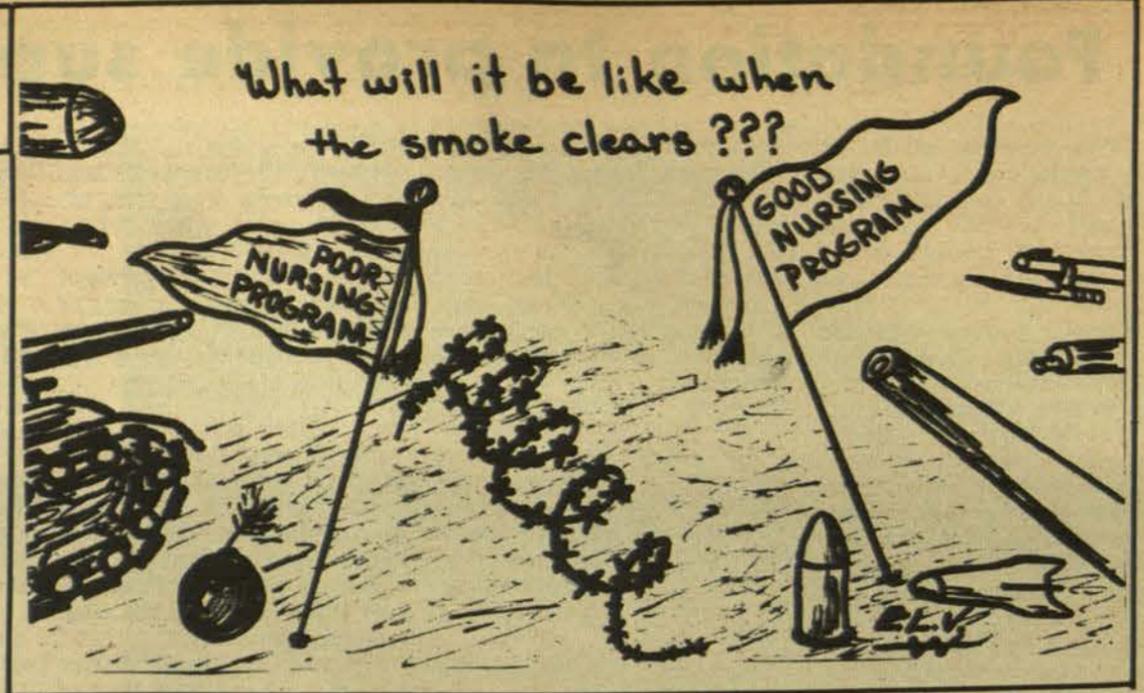

In the last issue of the Sentinel, the library was criticized for not allowing students to play their own records on the library equipment. This reporter spoke with the Assistant Librarian, Mrs. Marty Giles, and found out the reasons for this rule.

When the equipment was first purchased, the library allowed students to use their own records. This equipment was purchased for educational purposes. Both the English and Music students are required to listen to many pieces of music, plays, etc. Music students alone have to listen to approximately 100 different pieces of music, and as a result the listening equipment was in constant use. Mrs. Giles said that a problem resulted when students who needed to listen to this music could not use the equipment because of other students listening to their own records. As a result the rule of "library records only" was put into effect.

The library has several albums of popular and contemporary music and as new albums come in, a list of them will be published here in the Sentinel.

There has been one other major complaint directed towards the library, this being the 25c a day fine. This policy

"Okay, 93 cents from one dollar. Here's a nickel change."

THE DRY OASIS

Mike Anderson

Recently, the Columbia Broadcasting System canceled "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" television show shortly after the program had been renewed for another year. CBS gave its reasons as a "breach of contract." The network claimed that the Smothers Brothers had not submitted tapes of upcoming programs for the network and affiliate stations to review for questionable material.

At the time of cancellation, CBS carried something like 45 hours of prime-time evening network programming, yet the CBS executives refused to allow even 1 hour of programming that really said something. Regardless of how one feels about the Smothers Brothers political leanings, one must admit that they tried to make television meaningful. They really said something in their one short hour each week. Yet CBS could not allow any dissent. Obviously, CBS really thinks that the public's welfare is best served by such inanity as "Green Acres", "The Beverly Hillbillies", and "The Lucy Show", all of which could be enjoyed only by an 8 year old mentality.

The fact still remains that television's main oasis in the desert has been dried up. The network defended its actions by claiming that the show constantly flaunted public decency and did not meet the network's standards of morality. What CBS never said was that never once in the short history of "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" was a "hell" or "damn" included in the script. The public should now see that the only reason that the show was cancelled was that the higher ups in the Establishment felt endangered by one tiny fraction of prime-time television and arbitrarily silenced it. What is even more enlightening, however, is that the pro-establishment pro-Vietnam comedians such as Bob Hope are still on the air, while holders of dissenting views, such as the Smothers Brothers, David Steinberg, and Mort Sahl are rarely, if ever, allowed on prime-time shows.

"That's fine," you say, "how does that affect me?" It affects you more than you think. Your tax money subsidizes the big networks. They couldn't risk operating unless the government backed them. Your tax money is being used and dissenting viewpoints are being suppressed. As of now no minority group, Youth, Black, Indian, Puerto Rican, etc., is being allowed to express itself over network television. The networks are intent on using your tax money to sell tasteless gruel as programming and continue to make huge profits while doing it.

There is a second, and much greater danger here. Those who control the mass media are quickly becoming the most powerful people in this country. If we continue to allow those in power to enforce their standards of mediocrity on American mass media, these people will slowly rot the collective minds of Americans.

Remember, the first thing a totalitarian government does when it assumes power is to silence all dissent in mass media.

to the Editor:

You seem to imply in your past issue that the students of Kennesaw Junior College have a high degree of apathy. I think that this is untrue. Anyone with any amount of intelligence will care what goes on in a world as troubled as ours.

Did you ever pause to consider that maybe they do not know what is going on or that they are misinformed on the world's problems? Both of these answers could be true as Big Shanty U. is pretty far back in the woods and maybe the news of Viet Nam has not reached them yet. Or maybe it is because all they are reading is the Marietta Journal with its local gossip column. Maybe this is true...can it be that the students know nothing of what is going on in the world.

Could it be that these students are, in reality, junior members of the John Birch Society who merely wait for the left or the middle to move so that they can lead a violent counter-revolution and kill all of the "Commie punks and their black dupes?"

Maybe the students of K.J.C. do care. Perhaps they are waiting for someone to start some needed movement. No one knows, but if someone doesn't do something soon, the rest of us will never know just what the hell IS going on in their minds!

Bill McClain

Dear Editor,

Though I am appreciative of the Sentinel's interest in my year of absence from K. J. C., I would like to set the facts straight and point out the errors in your last issue's article.

1. I spent 1968-69 in Bologna, Italy where Mr. Larsen taught at the university under the auspices of the U.S. Fulbright program. I was NOT at the University of Iowa working towards the doctorate degree. (I did this in 1963-64.)

2. I was elected to Phi Beta Kappa while a senior at Agnes Scott College, NOT while working on the M.A. degree at Emory.

I urge your reporters to be sure of the facts before writing their articles, though I am certain errors of this type occur rarely. You have a fine staff, and I look forward to reading each issue

Sincerely,

Judith C. Larson

The Sentinel "honored" the Nursing Program in its July 3rd edition with a cartoon as well as a story by Linda Allen.

I appreciate the right of students to express their opinions and feelings. I do propose however, that your paper investigate FACTS before publishing stories. Students who fail a course usually are not the most objective reporters!

I wonder how many of your readers have considered by whom they would want to be cared for if they or their families required skilled nursing care: a nurse who passed because pressure was put on the administration and faculty to produce NUMBERS, or a nurse who is skilled in her profession and able to meet her patient's needs?

Remember, reader, you may be the one requiring the expert nursing we are teaching.

Moby Chimp (or is that chump?) has many problems. But they are too numerous to mention. He has the personality of a wet sponge. At the age of seven, he organized his first musical group, the Canary Street Catawallers. However, one member of the band was run over by a pie wagon in upper Sawduskey. Perry Milkbottle White, or Josh, has many outstanding points—his cantilevered, overhanging, stomach for one (this is the result of Dunlop Syndrome in which the belly has Dun Lopped over the belt), the second outstanding point being his ever-outstretched empty palm.

Mr. Langston's academic achievements include "Best overall finger painter P.S. 47" (note: this award was forfeited in the next years competition because he was caught using his nose).

Mr. Langston was runner up in last year's Tiny Tim contest and received special recognition for being the only soprano vocal contest not singing in a falsetto voice. Josh has labor pains, i.e. it hurts him to work. In 1965, the title of "Sir Rosis of Liver" was bestowed on him.

One can be very sure that Mr. Baker does not suffer from a lack of that strange ionic substance, salt. About one night out of each month Mike takes leave of his senses and travels to downtown Atlanta for pleasure driving. Art sales-exhibit planned

Plans are now being formulated to bring to KJC an Art Sales-Exhibit on Tuesday, August 5, from 10:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M. in room 121 of the Humanities Building.

The Gremur Original Graphic Art Company of Atlanta, Georgia, headed by Mr. Gregory Murphy, Jr., will bring to KJC some 200 works of art—drawings, painting, posters, silk-screens, prints—to be sold to both faculty and students alike. KJC and Mr. Murphy want students and faculty to have the opportunity to see and to purchase original works of art at reasonable prices. Prices of these art pieces range from $5.00 to $50.00, with some items being offered at a higher price.

Mr. Murphy has had similar art sales-exhibits at Emory University, Agnes Scott College, DeKalb Junior College, and Oglethorpe College. All of these exhibits were successful and many students had the opportunity to purchase works of art that interested them. Mr. Murphy has had other exhibits in all sections of the country; he has been selling art works to students for many years. Students and faculty are encouraged on August 5 to browse around, look and see, and buy any of some 200 works on display. There is no obligation on the part of anyone to buy any of these works, but many fine works of art will be available for students to see. This sales-exhibit will be at KJC for only one day, all day August 5, so make your plans now to drop by and see this display of art—and purchase some of them if you want to. Dr. John C. Greider, Chairman, Division of Humanities, Mr. Thomson Salter, Assistant Professor of Art, and Mr. Roger Hopkins, Controller, have worked together to bring this exhibit to our college and to give to students the opportunity to see and to purchase original art works at reasonable prices.

Col. Bull visits K.J.C.

On Friday, July 17, 1969, Colonel Bullford Shite (C.S.A. retired) visited the campus of Kennesaw Junior College. His arrival was heralded by rumors that told of various campaigns in the 20 mile area surrounding Marietta, Georgia.

The stately Colonel was dressed in his full battle uniform which was adorned with many medals and ribbons from the numerous battles and conquests that he has participated in. It is reported though, that he wore no ribbons or medals to commemorate his only defeat. . .the battle of Cesspool Creek.

The local citizenry was given plenty of warning, but somehow the arrival of this auspicious gentleman came as a complete surprise. Several shots were fired as the Col. and his loyal aide, Cpl. Clem Hennessee, were running across a man's corn field. The only damage reported was a small hole in the Col.'s tobacco pouch, an item lovingly referred to as the "Grass Bag."

All in all his stay at K.J.C. was fairly uneventful and resulted in little more than some good natured chuckles. The Col.'s parting words were. . ."Once again let me apologize for the unfortunate episode involving the young man who tried to strike me. I don't really think I can be blamed for the fact that his female companion found me more interesting than she did her boyfriend."

Jerry Roseberry Appointed

Dr. Horace Sturgis, President of Kennesaw Junior College, recently announced that Jerry D. Roseberry has been appointed as Assistant Director of Admissions and Director of Student Aid at K.J.C. Mr. Roseberry has had wide experience as both a teacher and a counselor. He has been employed as a teacher in Laurel, Mississippi, and in Green Cove Springs, Florida. Before joining the Kennesaw Junior College Staff as the new assistant, Mr. Roseberry served as a counselor at Wills High School in Smyrna, Georgia.

Mr. Roseberry is a native of Laurel, Mississippi and is a graduate from Mississippi's Jones Junior College. He holds a Bachelors Degree from the University of Southern Mississippi. Mr. Roseberry also holds a Master of Education degree with a major in counseling which he also obtained from the University of Southern Mississippi. He is also a member of Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Roseberry and their three month old son, Richard Todd Roseberry, now make their home at 103 Olive Springs Place in Marietta.

Dr. Ahern heads Dev. Program

The Developmental Program, a pre-college program held during Summer Quarter, is designed for those students who want to improve their skills in studying. The forty-six students enrolled take developmental English and developmental math, with no credit given. The Instructor of English is Mrs. Swain, and the instructors of mathematics are Mrs. Gustafson and Mrs. May. These students are not required to take P. E., but are allowed to use the facilities in the gym during an hour set aside for their use. A reading and study lab is held and directed by Miss Mary Dial, language teacher at Dykes High School. Math lab meets every day with teacher aides Priscilla Harrison and Keith Smith, both graduates of K. J. C. Group counseling sessions with nine students are held twice a week, to discuss their vocational and educational plans.

Dr. Ahern is acting as the director of counseling. Mrs. Morgan and Mr. Keith are acting as counselors.

Dear Colonel Bull,
 Why did the Sentinel attack the nursing program?

My Dear Colonel Bull,
 Is it legal and proper, sir, for the book store to charge over the Publishers' List Prices for our beloved text books and lab manuals?

Your friend,
 Perry Mason

Dear Perry,
 The prices listed in book journals that have a listing of prices are only a guide to "suggested" prices. Our bookstore is good, but is operating on a smaller scale than most.

Thus the small quantity orders that are placed by Mr. Howland to fill our small demand, do not bring greater discount prices to lower the cost of supplies.

Dear Col. Bull,
 What connection does C.B. have with the glorious war for Southern Ind. fought over a century ago? Was he in it, or what. . . .

Dear W.P.,
 I (Col. Bull) am the only survivor of the battle of Cess-pool Creek, Georgia, in 1862. Both men under my command were killed in the defense of Cess-pool Creek. I am the remaining unsung hero of that battle. I retired immediately after the struggle, for someone was always trying to "shoot the Bull".

Softball at K.J.C.

Under the able direction of Mrs. Waters, instructor of Physical Education at K.J.C., co-ed softball games have begun for the summer quarter. Though the turnout has been minimal, two games have already been played. These games are open to all students and faculty members.

The first game was played on Friday, July 11, with sixteen students and faculty members participating. The second game, played on Wednesday, July 16, had seven students and two faculty members participating.

Jim Martin, who recently recovered from a broken leg, served as pitcher for both teams since he is still unable to run. Other students playing were Mary Smith, Nita Anderson, Marena Godwin, Howard

The United States has landed a man on the moon. Much of this mission depended on quick answers and precise calculations. To accomplish this task, computers have become a major and crucial part of the Space Program. Computers have also become a basic part of the education of scientists, engineers, and businessmen.

Within the last few weeks, KJC has acquired part of a Conversational Programming System (CPS). In everyday language, this means that we have acquired a communications terminal with the IBM 360 computer located at the University of Georgia in Athens. At the time of this report, the terminal has not been hooked up nor made completely operational.

This terminal is located in the Math and Science building, and is for both research and student use. Long range plans include the addition of a high speed card reader, a high speed printer and a key punch machine. With these additions, KJC will have a complete Remote terminal.

For the present, the terminal will be used for those courses which come under the heading of Math and Science. It is hoped that the Business Administration Dept. will take an interest and include some instruction in the use of computers in their curriculum.

The CPS terminal provides simultaneous use of a large computer while giving the illusion that it is working with a single programmer at a time. The CPS also provides immediate analysis of each line of a program and points out mistakes in language and operational use.

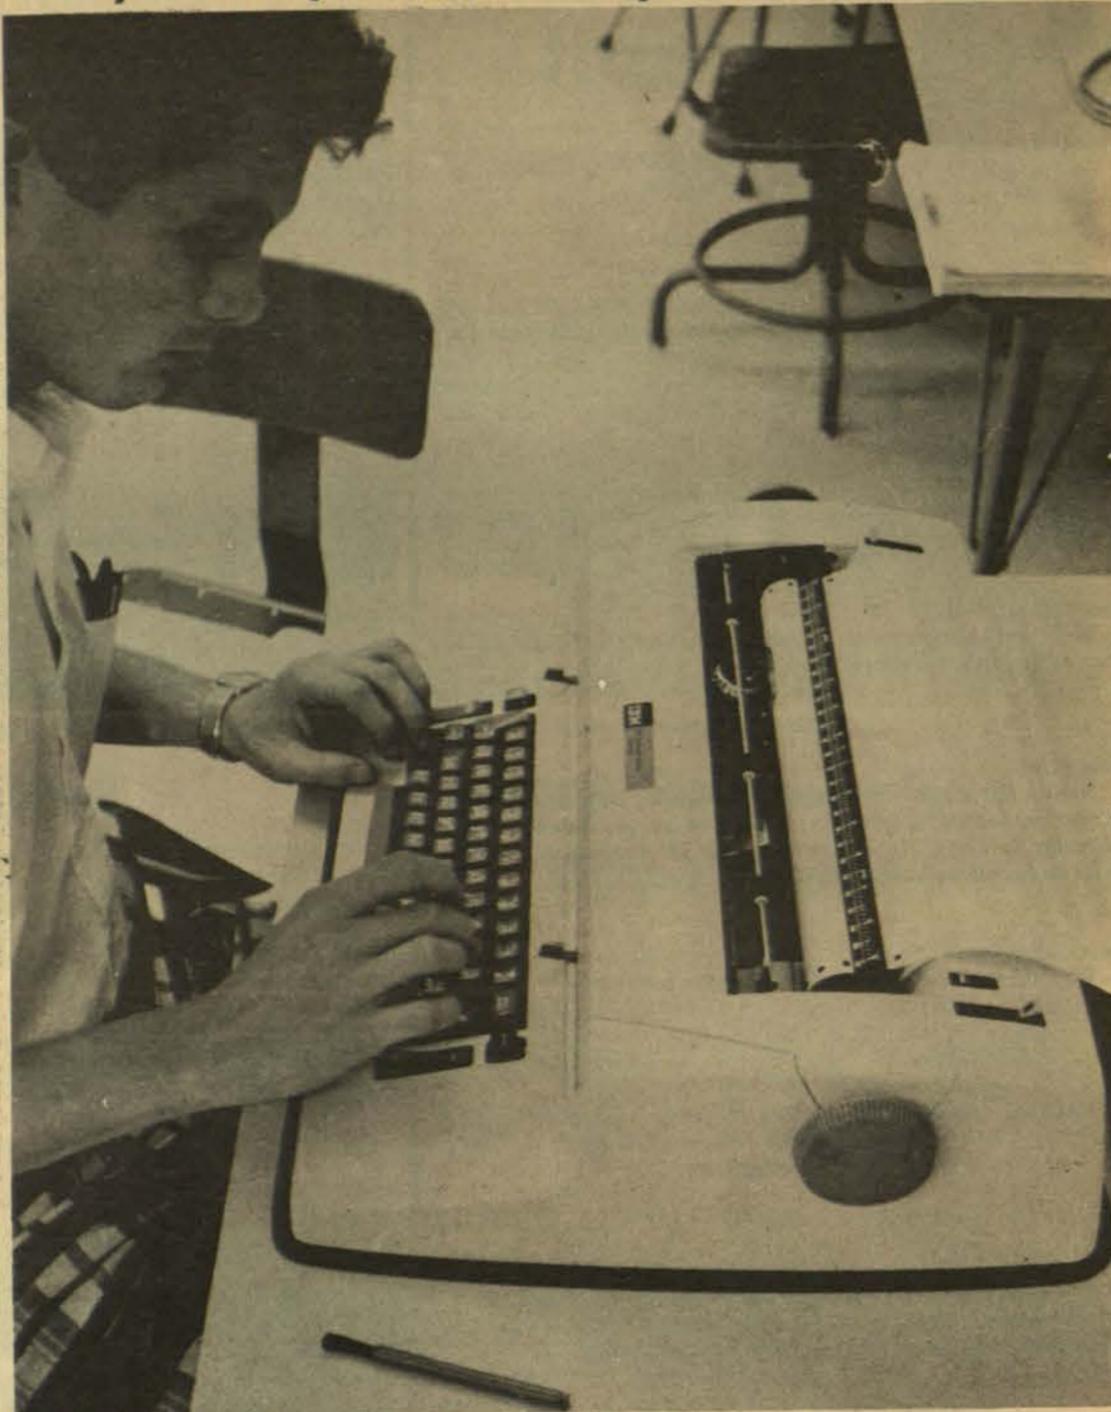

KJC is one of the first Junior Colleges in the state to have a communications terminal and it is hoped that KJC students will take an active interest in its use.

Along with the regular math and science courses, it is expected that a Computer Science course will be offered in the near future. This course would teach individual students programming and computer operations. Beginning this month there will be several seminars on the programming and operation of the CPS unit. These seminars will be conducted by IBM personnel. The dates of these seminars will be announced in the next few days.

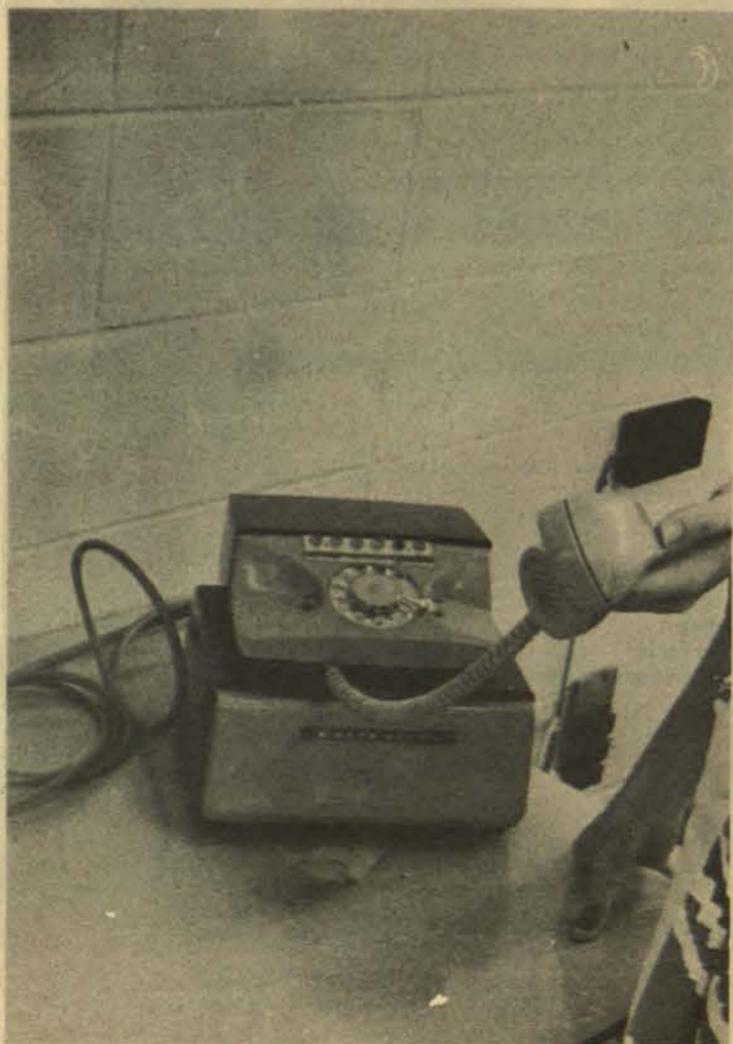

It can readily be seen that this new addition is a major step in making KJC one of the best schools in the country. An open invitation is extended to anyone wishing to know more about this system by the Science Department. It is also hoped that everyone in all fields of study, will take an active interest in this system.

ENTER: HOSIMUS MAXIMUS

Distinguishing Characteristics: Usually very original in looks due to customizing, beautiful feet (wearing American, Fenton, or Micky Thompson Mags topped with Mohawk, Denman, or Pirelli Tires), and eye-grabbing performance.

The Hosimus Maximus (sometimes referred to as the "Hoss") is recognized by its powerful cry and occasional screeching.

Habitat: The "Hoss" is sometimes found in among less splendid of its species, the Heapus Norollimus, but the tracks are easily recognized due to their distinct black color. The feeding grounds for the "Hoss" is -
