OWLS STAY AT TECH

Dr. Horace W. Sturgis, President, announced Friday that "unanticipated delays" make it impossible for Kennesaw Junior College to occupy the new campus near Kennesaw at the first of winter quarter as earlier planned.

Dr. Sturgis said the new delay is caused by "unavailability of some categories of workers and of some vital equipment." He said plans are being made to continue operation of the college in its temporary locations on Southern Tech campus, Marietta Place, and Banberry School.

Cobb County Draft Policies Outlined

Delinquents First To Get Call

Many students think of the draft as a lion prepared to pounce on them instead of thinking of it as a means of national defense.

In a recent interview with the Director of Selective Service for Cobb County, Mrs. Elizabeth James, I found that some of my thinking, along with that of some of my friends, was in error. Mrs. James tried to help me by correcting some of these false conceptions and by giving me a better idea of how the draft works.

Mrs. James is a Civil Service employe appointed by the State Director of Selective Service; she is the chief clerk of the Cobb County Office.

There are three members on the Board of Directors for Cobb County: Mr. Bill F. Rohner, Mr. Joe A. Sandmann, Mr. Harry L. Lassiter, all of whom have been in service and are local businessmen.

"The Selective Service system is set up to be as fair as possible," says Mrs. James, "for if you make exceptions for one eligible draftee, you will have to do the same for another; and this will never be fair to all men."

Every man must register within five days after his eighteenth birthday. Failure to do so can result in a fine of $10,000 or five years in prison; moreover, the person is declared a delinquent.

The State Headquarters informs Mrs. James of the total number of draftees needed for a month, and she complies by sending the said number of 1-A's for induction.

TEN MEN CALLED FOR DECEMBER

The files at the Selective Service office are arranged according to dates of birth with the oldest man first. If the call is for ten men, the actual December call for a month's quota, the first ten files under the 1-A classification would be pulled. As of now, the Board is only drafting sequences one through four which consists of (1) Delinquents, those who fail to register, etc. (2) Volunteers (3) Men 19-25 years old, single or married after August 26, 1965 (4) Men 19-25 years old, single or married before August 26, 1965.

PHYSICALS PRECEDE "GREETINGS"

Mrs. James said that many men daily expect their "Greetings" to be in the mail box. This is an unnecessary anxiety because all registered men are warned well in advance: first, they are classified in the 1-A group; second, they are told to report for a physical examination; and finally their "Greetings" arrive. Mrs. James said that the Draft Board doesn't just grab you; a man is always aware of his status.

The only thing college students like to hear from their draft board is the fact that they are being deferred; and in order to be deferred, a student has to have forty-five college credit hours a year, make over seventy on the College Qualification Test, be in the upper fifty percent of the freshman class, or in the upper two-thirds of the sophomore class. Mrs. James said that class standing and test scores were never looked at together; the Board will look at either one or the other. If a person makes below seventy on the College Qualification Test, which will be given in May or June of 1967, his test score is ignored and his class standing is examined. A student who has a low class standing may be deferred as a 1-SC if he is a full time student and the board is not pressed for men. If the student has passed the physical examination and is ready for induction, he can request the dean of the college to send a notice to the draft board, which states that the student is a full time student; the student may then request 1-SC classification.

There are some advantages and disadvantages of joining a branch of the military services to avoid the draft. The disadvantages are extended active duty and no choice of assignment. The advantages are choice of type of work or possibly educational benefits.

Mrs. James said "malingerers" ("draft-dodgers" or "delinquents") usually get caught, and the best thing to do is to have a positive attitude because the draft is inevitable.

Christmas Dance Set For Saturday Night At Y.W.C.A.

The first annual Kennesaw Junior College Christmas Dance will be held Saturday evening, December 3, 1966, at the Marietta YWCA on Henderson St. The dance will be held in the spacious Green Room from 8:30 till 12:00 p.m.

Providing the dance music and entertainment will be one of the most exciting new musical groups in the South, the EPICS. The EPICS are managed by Joe Morris, who also manages the popular MEDALIONS.

According to Mr. Bill Carrier of the Lowery Talent Agency, the EPICS are fast becoming one of the most popular groups managed by his agency. The group consists of nine musicians. According to Mr. Carrier the group is especially noted for having perhaps the finest brass section in the South. The band members are Rick Richardson, Jimmy Anderson, Larry Clark, Buster Elrod, Tommy Graham, Billy Deloach, Mike Tronco, Fred Perry, and Gene Lee.

Lynnda Bernard, Chairman of the decorations committee for the dance, indicates that a Christmas theme will be carried out in all of the decorations.

Kennesaw Junior College students and their dates will be admitted to the dance upon presentation of their Kennesaw Junior College identification cards. Students who do not have their ID card should obtain them as soon as possible from the Registrar's Office.

The entertainment committee for the dance indicates that an added attraction will be Kennesaw Junior College's own Dave Campbell and the "Pot Zot Swailing Nangsters."

Printed invitations will be mailed to all Kennesaw students and faculty members. Dress for the dance will be relatively informal. Men should wear coats and ties; ladies should wear Sunday dress.

Student Committee Makes Plans

The newly organized Student Activities Committee of Kennesaw Junior College is working with Dr. Mark E. Meadows, Dean of Students, in preparation for the Christmas Dance on Saturday night.

This committee includes faculty members Mr. I. David Harris, Acting Chairman of the Physical Education Department; Mr. Jim Keith, Assistant Professor of Sociology; Miss Mary Rogato, Instructor in English; and two student members, Lynnda Bernard, Feature Editor of the Sentinel; and Grady Eskew, Editor of "The Montage," Kennesaw Junior College yearbook.

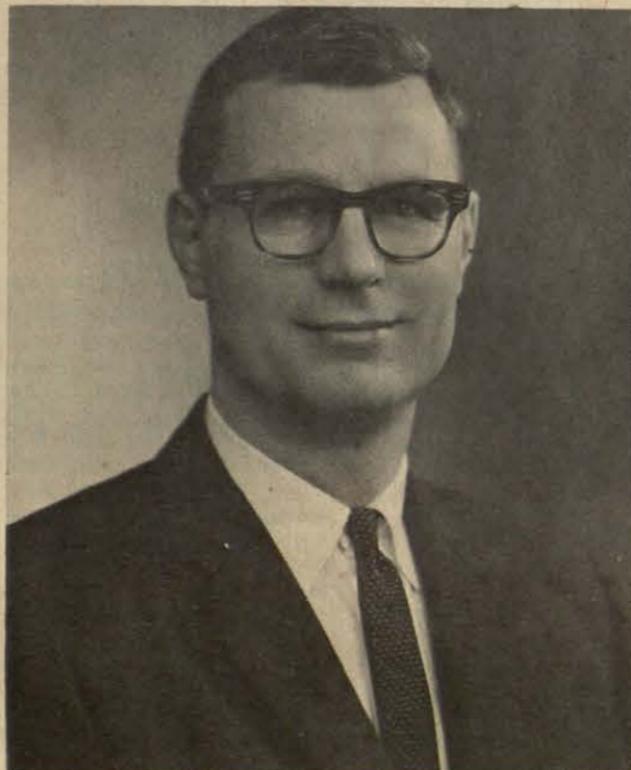

Members of the staffs of the "Sentinel" and "Montage" are assisting the committee in the preparation for the dance.

First Quarter Examination Schedule

Final examinations for the winter quarter will be given Monday through Friday, December 12-16.

Exams will be two hours in length. Since the schedule must be made in cooperation with Southern Technical Institute, a definite schedule is not available at present.

Students are urged to be alert when the schedule is released since room assignments for exams may be different from the locations in which regular classes are held.

Dr. Greider Awarded Doctorate

Dr. John Calhoun Greider, Chairman of the Humanities Division and Associate Professor of English at Kennesaw Junior College, will be awarded his doctorate In Absentia from the University of Liverpool, England, on December 10.

Dr. Greider recently returned to the campus from several weeks in Liverpool, where he completed his oral examinations. His dissertation concerns Sixteenth Century Literature.

Faculty Paper Named Vanguard

The registrar's office of Kennesaw Junior College is publishing a bi-weekly faculty newspaper entitled the "Vanguard."

Two copies of this mimeographed publication have been released to date, and the purpose is to keep faculty members posted on current happenings, the weekly calendar, and news of the activities of their colleagues. Mr. Ron Ingle, Assistant Registrar, says that although now the paper is mimeographed the "Vanguard" will be printed on a regular press when the college moves to the new campus.

Registration Set For January 2

Registration for Winter Quarter is being planned for Monday, January 2, at Marietta Place.

Regular classes begin on Tuesday, January 3.

Students can facilitate registration procedures by studying requirements of the various courses of study. Choices can then be made without having to spend an undue length of time talking with advisors.

Notice of specific hours for registration, along with other details, will be provided students by Dr. Cecil Jackson, Registrar.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Reason For Being Analyzed

The individuality of Kennesaw Junior College—its "reason for being"—is evolving as the first quarter closes on December 16. Administrators, faculty, students—and the long-awaited physical plant—all will play a part in shaping the distinctive character of this college.

The November issue of "Harper's" magazine carried an article analyzing the functions—the "reasons for being"—of Junior Colleges across the nation. Stirred by the sometimes critical tone of the Harper article, this writer interviewed President Horace Sturgis to see how our fledgling college compares to others which are mushrooming across the nation.

The article stated that there are three types and functions of junior colleges—those which provide technical training, those which provide transfer and terminal education, and those which provide "twilight education," meaning non-credit, adult-education type classes. (Some colleges, it should be pointed out, provide more than one of these types of education.)

Transfer and Terminal Courses Provided

Kennesaw, according to its president, falls into the second category. Since we do not offer a great variety of programs, and since we also do not have an "open door" policy of admissions, we cannot be classed as a comprehensive college. (Kennesaw's admission policy is based on college board scores, high school grades, sometimes interviews with the student and further testing. "Open to those," Dr. Sturgis said, "with a reasonable chance of success.") Nor are we a technical school.

"We are not here to compete with the fine comprehensive and technical schools in the area," Dr. Sturgis stressed. "Our primary emphasis is to prepare the student to move into his junior year in a four-year college with the least possible difficulty."

At present, since we are in temporary quarters, we have no non-credit, adult-education classes, (termed by President Sturgis as "continuing education" classes,) but we hope to include these types of courses in the future, according to the president.

Kennesaw does have a fine Developmental Program. As quoted from a brochure on Kennesaw's available classes and activities, the Developmental Program is described thus: "Some students show evidence that they can profit from a college education, yet, for various reasons, they do not meet all the standards required for admission. The Developmental Program is designed to serve such students by providing a learning situation in which they can sharpen their basic skills in reading, communications, and mathematics. Another phase of the program provides a group guidance situation in which the student investigates his aptitudes, abilities, interests, and other personal characteristics. He relates these to his vocational and educational goals so that he may better plan his future. While the courses in the Developmental Program carry no college credit, they provide a good background for future credit courses."

Kennesaw also provides loan funds, opportunities for employment, work-study programs and scholarships.

Faculties of Some Colleges Criticized

The Harper article stated that many college faculties have been criticized because they have lost touch with the students, do not like to teach and devote inordinate amounts of time to research. The staff at Kennesaw, according to President Sturgis, is a teaching staff whose main objective is to teach. However, this does not mean that Kennesaw's staff is not well qualified. On the contrary, masters, or higher, degrees, are the rule rather than the exception. "Our faculty is as well qualified as that of some four-year colleges," Dr. Sturgis noted.

Sentinel Staff Reorganizes For Winter Quarter

Students interested in joining the newspaper staff for winter quarter should see Dean Meadows or one of the Advisors immediately.

Plans call for reorganization of the staff and occupation of the permanent SENTINEL office on the new campus during the first week in January.

Appointments of the staff for winter quarter only will be confirmed by the Publications Board of the College. If a sufficient number of staff members are available a six page, bi-monthly publication will be forthcoming. Work on a college newspaper provides a welcome break from routine class study, an opportunity to know administrations and faculty on a personal basis, fellowship with staff colleagues and potentially valuable contacts with business men of the community as well as training in the mechanics of publishing.

If you like to write, or if you are interested in the business and advertising aspects of a college publication, don't wait to be invited, let your interest be known.

High School Students On a Spree?

Kennesaw College maintains a system of the type similar to the larger universities in its regulation of attendance. To wit, the regulation of attendance is left to the discretion of the individual instructor.

Many students at Kennesaw have taken the attitude that this system means "free cuts" and have proceeded to miss class whenever they feel like it. This attitude is quite indicative of an immature attitude towards the assumption of responsibilities.

The conscientious student realizes that the only way to pass the courses in which he is participating is to attend class regularly so that he may have the benefit of the class lectures. When he does miss a class, it is for a good reason, such as illness.

Many students have the idea that they can blithely miss class after class and still obtain a passing grade on examinations. This is a fallacy of the worst kind in that many instructors test on class lectures as well as textbook material.

It would be a great pity if the present system of absences is changed. Let the students take the responsibility of men and women in a college situation rather than acting like high school students on a spree.

Students Pass By On Other Side

As I trotted merrily to math class one day, I heard such awful words as had never before been spoken (at least where my ears could hear them). The world shall surely come to an end, methinks, but it is only the corner group "recussing" current events. And lo, it did appear that the lady behind me would faint, having heard such obscenities as only the devil himself would utter. I thought maybe a lightning bolt would strike those who used His name in vain so much; after reflection upon the matter, however, I realized that this small group, having fallen by the wayside of decent conversation, will not even be tended by a good Samaritan. Methinks they receive part punishment since most of their fellow students "pass by on the other side." Although I disapprove, many loose, unseemly words continue to be slung about, let us hope that from now on they are only whispered.

What Is Christmas

Christmas is a very special day which comes only once a year. It's Santa Claus, candy, fruit, Christmas trees, and worship with friends and family. Christmas is the time when money goes low and spirits high—the time when one should be jolly. It's grandma's and grandpa's, where food is good and the gifts are received. It's the day after the night little brother caught the rest of the family up placing gifts and toys under the tree. Christmas appears to be many things to people—maybe a wedding ring, a new car, mink stole, washing machine, television, radio, new clothes, or the end of another year.

Christmas is what you make of it. Yours will be as happy as you are, or as sad as you are. The ideal Christmas is one of peace of mind, joy of soul, warmth of giving, and love for fellow man. Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Sentinel Staff.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Ed,

The draft in this country seems to me to be unfair. First, it seems to be unconstitutional by being discriminatory. According to the Constitution and its Amendments, all citizens are equal regardless of race, religion, color, previous conditions of servitude, and most importantly lately, of sex. Therefore, men are discriminated against.

In order to make the system more equitable, a policy should be enacted which requires both men and women to register. Women have lately been winning fair employment and fair wages cases in the courts and have been receiving reimbursement for discriminatory actions. Should they not also be concerned with a fair draft law?

I have a number of suggestions regarding the draft in order to make it fairer and better.

1. Women should also register for the draft. They could do clerical and some other work now handled by men.
2. All people, including many of the mentally and physically deferred, should be put to work doing jobs that they are capable of doing.
3. A freedom of choice as to how draftees will serve, other than simply combat or military service should be given. Services such as the Peace Corps and VISTA should be offered, not in addition to, as they now are, but in lieu of military service.
4. All citizens of a given age group should enter this service and serve in their chosen field for an equal length of time.
5. A country-wide policy should be formulated in regard to the draft, rather than the fifty different state policies now in effect, to ensure equality of treatment.

The fairest draft system is to not have one at all; however, these suggestions may help to make it fairer since the lawmakers feel that everyone owes his country a portion of his life.

Under the present deferment system in Georgia, the draft could take, out of 100 per cent of the men entering into college, all but 8 per cent before they would graduate. Only 2 per cent would then be able to go on to school compared to 100 per cent of the women if the class standings were proportional in regards to sex.

Is the draft really congruous with our "democratic" society, our principles of individual freedom, and government? If you answer "Yes" then either the definition of democratic society and principles of individual freedom or the draft law must go and go quickly. J. H.

No Crying Towels For Sale

Lawrence E. Howland at the Kennesaw Junior College Book Store and his able assistant, Mrs. Gray, are sorry to announce that they will not have crying towels available for the exams which will run from December 12 through 16. Due to space considerations they are unable to stock them at this time but have placed an order for 10 gross and will offer them in January.

The towel will be 18 by 26 inches, will absorb a generous quantity of tears, and will have a gold and black owl in the lower right hand corner. The picture of the owl is a back view, signifying its departure from the nest.

For all students who make it through finals, registration will be on the new campus January 2, 1967.

Dear Ed,

In response to Mr. Hoffman's letter concerning the draft, I would like to offer a few thoughts. Whenever the subject of the draft is brought up today, the old idea of "It's not fair" crops up. This idea reminds me of the story of the man who was trying to get his mule across the bridge and tried to please each person there by trying each one's suggestions as to how to do it.

There has been a long history of "fairness" in American life. For example, our welfare system has enabled people to receive pay without working. Last summer, in a show of appreciation, these welfare recipients led protest marches in eleven major cities across the nation because they weren't receiving enough money.

I firmly believe that no matter how hard we try, we cannot possibly please everyone. This applies to the idea of "fairness."

One basic problem of the draft today is not the "fairness" or "unfairness" of the system, but of the attitude of those to be drafted. A number of today's young people have been so sheltered through life that they know very little of what real sacrifice means. If you could, ask those who are buried in Flanders Field, on Guadalcanal, and in countless other places. Ask those Marines who first raised our flag over Iwo Jima, and ask those who today are giving their lives in the rice paddies and jungles of Viet Nam in order to check the spread of Communism. They know what sacrifice is. And they have something that we too often lack—an old-fashioned, flag-waving type of patriotism that we have grown too sophisticated for. They know a love and respect for this country that we should all know.

Sure, let's draft women—not me, buddy! I quit hiding behind a woman's apron when I was twelve years old. I may be old-fashioned in this respect, but I believe that the man should take responsibility for the welfare of his family.

There is a popular song making the rounds now and a line from it reads, "Sure, I know you would have fought for your country when it was young, but things are just different now." The singer of this song shows the contempt which he holds for those who burn draft cards, show little responsibility in other areas, but who definitely want to take advantage of the freedoms that have been fought for and died for in post conflicts.

Whether we like to think of it or not, we have a responsibility on our shoulders. We have to leave this world in at least as good shape as our parents left it to us, preferably better, because there is always room for improvement. We're fighting for the wives and children that will someday be ours. I sincerely hope that the ones who follow us, our children, will show a deeper gratitude and responsibility to our country than some of our generation are showing.

P.D.Q. Bach

Rivals J. S. Bach

By BOB HERRIN

"P. D. Q. Bach was the last of Johann Sebastian Bach's twenty-odd children. He was also the oddest." So states Peter Schiekele, Professor of Music at the University of Southern North Dakota at Hoople. Mr. Schiekele has introduced to classical music the same element that Spike Jones introduced to the popular music of the forties and early fifties, the element of complete confusion.

The fertile mind of Peter Schiekele, under the guise of P.D.Q., has devised music for such varied instruments as the left-handed sewer flute, the hardart, and the double-reeded slide music stand as well as the more conventional instruments of the orchestra. The most amazing and interesting of these is the hardart. This instrument has an overall length of nine feet and is capable of producing two chromatic octaves, each note having a different tone quality. The little extra features, such as a shotgun and several balloons with needles for bursting them, add to the charm of the instrument.

This album offers quite a different experience for the music fan, as it offers an amazing example of music that has no organization whatsoever. It is an interesting and very funny album. As the "New York Times" puts it, "This disc has made the music of P.D.Q. Bach available for public avoidance for the first time."

UGA OFFICIALS TO VISIT KENNESAW

Paul R. Kea, Assistant Director of Admissions, accompanied by many Deans and Dept. Heads will visit KJC on Thursday, January 19, 1967 from 1:30 to 3:00 in the afternoon.

All students who plan to transfer to the U Ga. should report to the Registrar's Office and sign up for a personal interview with the Dean of the school they intend to transfer to.

WHO'S WHO

LYNDA BERNARD

Lynnda Bernard Student Of The Month

Although a scholarship student on a junior college campus is a rarity in the normal course of events, Kennesaw Junior College is fortunate to have a Regent's Scholarship winner attending classes. Lynnda Bernard, a native of Austell, Georgia, chose Kennesaw over both the University of Georgia and Georgia State College when she received her scholarship upon graduation from South Cobb High School. In her interview with the Sentinel, Lynnda said that she chose Kennesaw because she "likes new things" and because she wanted to stay fairly close to home.

As one of the most active students on campus, Lynnda feels that Kennesaw College is well organized and is mainly concerned with the student. Lynnda participates in many activities on the campus and is active on both the Sentinel staff and the Student activities Committee, which she recently represented at the S.U.S.G.A. workshop at the Dinkler Hotel in Atlanta.

Lynnda's main interests are horses and riding, along with all outdoor sports, including football ("I'm a tomboy — a bad one.") She trains and shows her own western horses and has participated in many horse shows. When asked if she had any pet peeves, Lynnda replied that she did not. "I like everything and everybody" was her only comment.

Although she does not have any plans for the future beyond completing her education major in college, Lynnda says that she plans to spend two years at Kennesaw. She feels that all the people at Kennesaw are friendly ("I've made lots of friends."), and that she is really enjoying herself in school.

DEAN ROBERTS

Dean Roberts Faculty Member Of The Month

Dr. Derrell Roberts, Dean of Faculty, makes a student talking to him for the first time feel at ease. He is a soft-voiced person with a kindly face; as one talks to him, one realizes that his mind is definitely keen and perceptive. The immensity of his job requires his time to be spent on the academic problems of the school, faculty matters, and the curriculum.

Dean Roberts attended a small rural high school in the typical southern community of Mystic, Georgia. He was raised on a farm. He continued his formal education through graduate school, earning the Ph. D. degree.

As a young man, Dr. Roberts attended Georgia Southern College, served in the Army, continuing his education at Georgia Teachers College, where he later received his B. D. degree in history in 1949. In 1950 Dean Roberts was awarded his M. A. degree in history from George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee, and completed his schooling in 1958 when he received his Ph. D. from the Uni-

Vista Recruits In Atlanta

The Office of Economic Opportunity held a recruiting drive in Atlanta on November 28th for VISTA (Volunteers In Service To America).

There is a need for 10,000 volunteers. VISTA volunteers leave their home cities to serve for one year (plus six weeks of training), living and working in poverty areas. They must have the desire and ability to help motivate those caught in poverty. They receive living expenses, medical care, transportation, and $50 per month, saved for them until service is completed. The minimum age requirement is 18, there is no upper age limit.

If you wish more information on VISTA, write or call:

Montage Distribution

The Kennesaw Junior College Yearbook, the MONTAGE, is beginning to take shape. The majority of the student pictures have already been taken and more will be taken sometime in early January.

The yearbook will be free to all students attending Kennesaw for three full quarters this year. The student fees pay for the major portion of this service. Students not attending Kennesaw for three full quarters will be able to purchase the MONTAGE for an extra fee, the amount to be fixed according to the number of quarters they have attended: for one quarter, the charge will be four dollars; and for two quarters, the charge will be two dollars.

The method of distribution is not yet settled. Facts about how to procure the MONTAGE should be available by the first of the year when we are on our new campus. The historic volume is slated for publication early in the summer. It will contain approximately 144 pages.

Professionalism On Campus

Prominent among students at Kennesaw Junior College is David Giles, a former student of North Cobb High School, who signed with the Los Angeles Dodgers on June 6.

David is certainly not a novice in the field of baseball. He played baseball for four years in high school, made the All-State team, was named a member of the All-Star team, pitcher of the week, and a member of the Dugout Club.

Baseball is not the only sport in which David participates. He also proved himself an outstanding athlete in football, basketball, and track.

During the Spring, David will be training on a baseball farm, preparing for the beginning of the regular season.

Faculty Dinner

A "covered dish" Christmas dinner will assemble members of the College faculty, and husbands and wives, on Friday evening, December 9.

Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church on Whitlock Avenue will be the scene of the party.

Dear Students and Parents:

We are highly honored to have been selected as the carrier of your "STUDENT PROTECTION POLICY", which we are making available to the students of the Kennesaw Junior College.

Your Administration has approved the kind of life insurance program we have found that a college student needs. Soon, you will be receiving a brochure explaining its benefits.

We are very happy to see the "University System" grow as evidenced by Kennesaw Junior College and are proud to be a part of that program.

Very truly yours,

WELCOME STUDENTS:

The Marietta Daily Journal is proud to congratulate you on your enrollment at the Kennesaw Junior College.

Here at the Marietta Daily Journal we have reported with much interest and pleasure the exciting developments of your new college—selection of the site, ground breaking ceremonies, progress reports on construction work, selection of a very dedicated and capable president and faculty, and now the official opening.

Our staff members look forward to continue to tell the story of Kennesaw Junior College, with special emphasis now on you—the students—, your activities and accomplishments.

We are also happy that you have selected the ultra-modern composing room of the Marietta Daily Journal for composition of THE SENTINEL. The type for your newspaper was set on high-speed photocomposition equipment that operates at speeds four times faster than conventional typesetting machines.

Glee Club Sings At Shopping Center

Holiday appearances of the newly organized Kennesaw Junior College Glee Club will include performances at two shopping centers in the Marietta - Smyrna area on Friday evening, December 2, and a special performance on Friday evening, December 9, at the Faculty Dinner.

Bob Herrin has been named President of the Glee Club. Section leaders include Dianne Bryan, on Soprano; Jack Driscoll, Tenor; Bob Herrin, bass.

Plans for the winter quarter have been started under the direction of Miss Lucy Lee. Practices will be held during the three times a week in the chorus room on the new campus.

Developmental Students Entertained

Mr. Morgan Stapleton, Instructor of Mathematics, and Mrs. Stapleton held open house for fifty-one students in the Developmental Program at their home on Brookhaven Drive.

Party refreshments were served to members of these classes and their dates.

Mrs. Ephram Sanchez, wife of one of the students, played the piano and sang Spanish selections.

Dr. Roberts, his wife, Leta Faye, and his three daughters Ree, 10, Marianna, 8, and Dana-lee, 6, reside in Kingswood Estates, a subdivision off Bells Ferry Road. The family attends the First Baptist Church in Marietta and takes an active part in the program of the Church. Dr. Roberts is a member of the Marietta Rotary Club.

Dean Roberts' two most interesting hobbies are wide reading for enjoyment and the study of post Civil War American History. He finds this era of American History to be most fascinating and interesting. Currently he is working on a paper that deals with this period in American History.

Dean Roberts' office is located at present in the Banberry Elementary School and is opened to students by appointment.

Faculty Members Attend Meetings

During the last month several Kennesaw faculty members have attended professional meetings in the South.

Mrs. Larsen, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Whitnel of the English Department attended the Southern Atlantic Modern Language Association, in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Mr. Bolton and Mr. Calhoun of the Business Education Department went to Atlanta for the Southeastern Economics and Management Association meeting.

Attending the Southern Historical Association in Memphis, Tennessee, were Dr. Roberts and Dr. Robertson of the Social Science Department.

Mr. Beggs, Chairman of the Social Studies Department, attended the Southern Political Association conference which was held recently in Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

In Appreciation

The Business Manager of the SENTINEL would like to thank the advertisers for the first quarter of advertising. In appreciation I would ask that the students and faculty patronize them.

Viet Nam Work-In

We have read about sit - ins and teach - ins. This is the story of a "work-in" at the Sunline, Inc., candy plant in St. Louis.

Hearing that the U.S. Information Agency wanted to distribute free candy as goodwill gifts in South Viet Nam, Sunline by mid-1965 had donated 3,600,000 packages.

Thank - yous and requests from Vietnamese children for more became so numerous that they could not be filled gratis without straining the company's facilities. An employe suggested a "work-in," and a Saturday was set aside for all who wanted to give a day's work without pay. Suppliers donated ingredients. About 200 employes put in a full day to produce and package 1,400 cases, or 840,000 packages, of candy. To top a million packages, employes worked until 8 p.m. so that 1,020,000 packages (17,000 cases) of Sweet-Tarts candy, worth approximately $50,000, could go to children and soldiers in Viet Nam.

That's what can happen when a group of people decide to do something constructive for a cause in which they believe—Don Gussow in Reader's Digest

The Office of Guidance and Counseling will have a staff member available for conferences with Kennesaw Junior College students on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, 5:30 p.m. 'till 9:00 p.m.

The Counselor will be available in the Registrar's office.

First Quarter Grades To Be Mailed After Dec. 16

"Student grades for first quarter," according to Dr. Derrell Roberts, Dean of the College, "will be mailed to the students' local address as soon as possible after December 16.

Examinations will be completed on Friday, October 16. Faculty members will turn in grades to the Registrar's office on or shortly after that date.

"Student Rules and Regulations" states the following policies on grades:

A—Excellent (4 quality points)
B—good (3 quality points)
C — satisfactory (2 quality points)

D — passing, but less than satisfactory (1 quality point)

F — failure, must be repeated if in a required course (no quality points)

S—Credit by transfer, examination for advanced standing, or satisfactory completion of a non - credit course (not included in the calculation of a scholastic average)

U—unsatisfactory completion of a non-credit course

V—audited, no credit (not included in the calculation of a scholastic average)

The following grades will be used in the cases indicated:

I—incomplete. Assigned only in combination with a passing letter grade and when the student is incomplete in some part of the course for reasons deemed satisfactory by the instructor.

X—absent from the final examination or final quiz after remaining enrolled until the second week from the end of the quarter and passing at the time of the student's last attendance.

XF—absent from the final examination or final quiz, failing at the time, after remaining enrolled until the second week from the end of the quarter. If the student's record is so poor as to preclude his passing, the instructor shall assign the grade of F.

WF—(with date) — dropped with the approval of the college dean after the third week and prior to the last week of the wuarter, failing at the time.

W—(with date) — dropped with the approval of the college dean before the end of the third week after having attended at least one class unless the course has been dropped by a schedule change during the first week of the quarter; or dropped while passing third week. During the last three weeks of a quarter, approval for the dropping of a course will not ordinarily be given.

Courses in which the grade W has been assigned will not be included in computing the scholastic average. The grade W is also assigned in cases where the student officially withdraws from school before the second week preceding the end of the quarter with the permission of the college dean. Students who withdraw from school and receive grades of W will not ordinarily be permitted to re-enroll the next succeeding quarter.
