AROUND CAMPUS

by Bud Wilson

Spring has finally arrived here in the pines of Kennesaw. Not only are the dogwoods budding, flowering, and coming to life, human activity also abounds.

Students are taking interest in anti-war activities. They are speaking out on behalf of Lt. Calley. COMMON CAUSE has members from both the student body and faculty of Kennesaw.

Faculty members are involved in writing and rewriting the proposed statutes for the college. Many long hours have been devoted to the formulation of these statutes, and, it appears, many more long hours will be devoted this quarter in an attempt to arrive at a final product which is acceptable to the instructors and administrators at KJC and also to The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia. The Faculty members involved are to be commended for the tremendous contribution they are making to the institution.

Spring Festival plans are being formulated by a student/faculty committee chaired by Mr. Richard Hanners. Anyone wishing to propose any type of activity—dance, wesson oil party, demonstration, water-melon roast, frisbee contest, blanket party, etc.—should contact Mr. Hanners, Mr. Salter, Mr. Hogge, Mr. Roe, or any member of The SENTINEL. For the uninitiated, Spring Festival is a week-long celebration of the rites of spring. Activities are diversified so as to include items which appeal to all students and faculty.

Campus involvement is also being demonstrated by the newly reformed Student Rules and Regulations Committee. On April 14, the committee met to discuss possible changes in grading policy. Of primary concern is the fact that under the present system an "F" cannot be changed or struck from one's record even if the course is repeated for credit. This has caused undue hardship for numerous students who would be considered for graduation. Dr. Carroll Martin stated "Under existing policy, it is possible for a student to graduate and to be dropped during the same quarter." Some solution must be reached. The committee will meet again on April 22. It is expected that positive results, in the form of recommendations to the faculty for approval, will be forthcoming.

College students have always been known to become vagabonds during the spring of the year. KJC scholars are no exception. Tales circulating around campus describe adventures of Jamaica, The Bahamas, Key West communes, Miami, and other intriguing spots. Watch for feature stories on student travelers in upcoming issues of The Sentinel.

Comment On Social Life

by Jack Long

The Student Government Association of Kennesaw Junior College sponsored a dance featuring "The Seventh Circle" on the evening of April 10, 1971, in the Student Activities Building. The band played music generally heard on three Atlanta based FM stations catering to the sounds that enchant the minds and souls of college aged youths. The fascination decorations were enjoyed along with the bewitching refreshments served free of charge.

The only thing missing from this festive atmosphere were the hordes of people usually present at KJC activities. An overly zealous estimate places only two hundred people in this party atmosphere. This lack of warm bodies brings forth several questions. Where were all those people usually found at dances? If those absent did not know about the dance, why didn't they? If those same people knew before hand that they had previous engagements, why was the dance held? If the SGA knew before they appropriated the funds for the dance that there would be such a lack of people, why were the funds appropriated?

First of all, this being Easter weekend, many people were out of town or had relatives visiting which prevented them from participating. Plenty of announcements of the upcoming dance were made so lack of knowledge about the dance being a reason for the low attendance can be disregarded. Taking all of this into consideration, the dance was common knowledge among the campus community the week preceeding it.

This leaves us with one final question: Why did the Student Government Association allow the dance to take place, therefore depleting the Student Activities Fund, when such a lack of attendance was estimated in the future? The blame does not lie with the president, the senators, or the other elected officials. The blame lies with you, the average student. The motion was made in a scheduled meeting to have a dance, there was discussion on the matter, and the motion was passed. The elected officials did their part. They decorated, watched the gate, filled paper cups with Cokes, they followed through on all the details.

As stated before, the blame lies with you, because you don't and won't participate in the running of the school. Go ahead and say you were too busy. Next Monday, the same ones will be sitting in the Student Activities Building, feeding their faces, talking about the bad things about the schools, but won't take 45 minutes to attend the SGA meeting where one can make improvements and do something positive for a change! You have the same voting privileges as a senator. Do something for a change!!

Scylla And Charybois

by Grady O'Bier

President Nixon—in response to rising antiwar sentiment—appeared on television Wednesday, April 7, and announced that 100,000 troops would be withdrawn from South Vietnam between May 1, and December 1. This is an increase in the monthly withdrawal rate from 12,500 to 14,285. This increased withdrawal rate would leave troop strength in South Vietnam at approximately 184,000. If this withdrawal rate is continued, troop strength would be approximately 55,000 Labor Day, 1972 (the beginning of the Presidential election campaign), and approximately 27,000 by Election Day, 1972.

Some White House sources fear this withdrawal rate is too high. They claim that the higher withdrawal rate will endanger the Vietnamization program (remember?). In addition, they fear the faster withdrawal rate will lead to more Tet-type offensives or the collapse of the Saigon government. Therefore, future slow-downs of the withdrawal rate should not be ruled out.

Despite continued and fervent requests for a date for the total withdrawal of all American troops from South Vietnam, President Nixon still stands firm in refusing to take such an action. His reasons for this refusal revolve on the idea that to announce such a date would be tipping his hand to the enemy.

In January, 1971, 73% of the people favored an immediate withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam. Broadening Congressional support of withdrawal, accelerating support of antiwar demonstrations (including endorsement by potential Presidential candidates), and the coming together of both left and right in support of immediate withdrawal bear testimony to the rising antiwar sentiment.

On the face of it, two things stand out: first, the increase in troop withdrawal was a sop to appease public outcry; second, President Nixon, as others before him, has a difficult time supporting two mutually contradictory policies—the first being the necessity of convincing Hanoi of American determination to stand firm, the other being the necessity of convincing the American public of lessening American involvement in South Vietnam.

You Missed

Henry Moore

by Fred Osborn

The Humanities Division is sponsoring this quarter a series of lectures, films, and exhibits. Scheduled for April 12, was a film interview of the contemporary British sculptor, Henry Moore. When the day arrived, only four people showed up, including myself and the projectionist, who, I'm sure, would rather have been at home asleep.

It was obvious that the people in the Humanities Division were not supporting their own program. Not one Humanities instructor showed up, and there was not a single notice of the event posted in or around the Humanities Building. Also, there was no mention of the film by any of the instructors. I begin to doubt if any of them knew about the film in the first place.

I suggest that the people in the Humanities Division either get behind their own projects or stop wasting their money on films nobody hears about, and let the library projectionist get some sleep.

Symposium

Five eminent speakers from all over the nation will come to Cobb County in April to share their views on America's changing values during Symposium '71 at Kennesaw Junior College.

Dr. Margaret Mead, universally known anthropologist, and Tom C. Clark, retired Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, will appear on the program, "America vs. America -- The Revolution in Values."

Other speakers include Dr. Mark D. Atlschule, faculty member of the Harvard School of Medicine and editor and publisher of Medical Counterpoint magazine Dr. David Mathews, the 35-year-old President of the University of Alabama; and Dr. William Pinson, Jr., professor of Christian Ethics at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas.

The sixth annual symposium will be held on the campus of Kennesaw Junior College April 29-30. The event is co-sponsored by the Cobb County Medical Society Committee on Medicine, Religion and Law, the Cobb Judicial Circuit Bar Association, the Marietta-Smyrna Ministerial Association and Kennesaw Junior College.

Dr. Pinson will speak at the opening session Thursday evening, when the public is invited without charge. The other speakers, except Dr. Mead, will appear Friday morning and will participate in a panel discussion Friday afternoon. Dr. Mead will address the final dinner meeting Friday evening at the Regency Hyatt House in Atlanta.

Dean's List

(PIO)---Twelve high school seniors---exactly half of the total number enrolled as freshmen in the JETS program at Kennesaw Junior College---are among 195 students named to the KJC Dean's List for winter quarter.

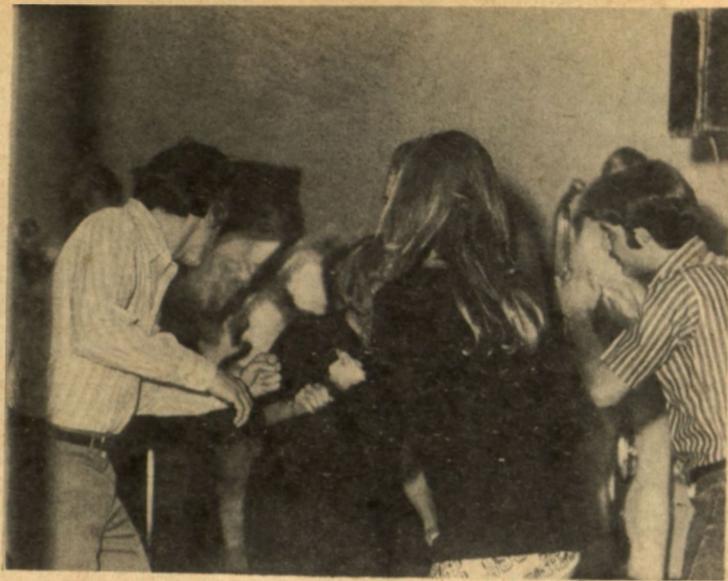

The total figure, representing 14 percent of the quarter's enrollment, is the largest Dean's List and the largest percentage in the history of the college.

JETS (Joint Enrollment for Twelfth Grade Students) was initiated at KJC in the fall of 1970 with 20 students. The plan enables high school seniors who meet certain qualifications to enroll as college freshmen while obtaining both high school and college credits. Some 24 high school seniors participated in the winter quarter JETS program at KJC.

JETS students named to the Dean's List are Sally Ann Acuff, Margaret V. Coleman, Elizabeth Ann Costello, Julia K. Plage, Linda Carol Spears, Larry Jerome Theisen, John David Toon, Elizabeth Wilson, Delores Jeanne Grimes, Donna Belinda Rogers and William L. Fulghum Jr.

Published quarterly, the Dean's List is based on the student's overall scholastic average. To be included on the list, a student must have a grade average of B or better and must have earned 15 quarter hours of credit in residence.

S. G. A. Dance

The Student Government Association sponsored a dance on Saturday, April 10. From 8 p.m. until midnight heavy sounds were provided by the Seventh Circle.

Student attendance at the dance was poor; approximately two hundred persons came to enjoy the band. Those who did attend were impressed with Seventh Circle's performance. One of the students, Sally Ryer, stated, "This is the best band and the smallest audience yet at Kennesaw."

You Can Help

The most wanted people in Georgia are not being hunted by the FBI.

The Georgia Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults is looking for 34 men and women, age 17 and older who are willing to put their backs and hearts into giving handicapped children one of the most thrilling experiences in their lives.

The Society wants these men and women to be Camp Easter Seal counselors from June 15 through July 31 in a summer camping program being provided by the Easter Seal Society for 240 handicapped children and young adults.

It takes a special kind of person to be a camp counselor--someone who really believes in and practices total involvement with his fellow man. It would mean having complete charge of the care, health, safety and morale of campers assigned to the counselor.

But more importantly, it is being a true friend to a crippled child. The campers look to their respective counselors for love, affection, guidance and help. Some of the children will be severely handicapped, needing help with everything they physically try to do; others will be able to help their counselors.

Camp Easter Seal will have three sessions during the camp period of June 15 through July 31, in the new facilities, designed and built by the State Parks Department at Fort Yargo State Park, Winder, Georgia.

For information and applications, write to the Georgia Easter Seal Society, 1211 Spring Street, N. W., Atlanta, Georgia 30309.

AFROTC

ATHENS, Ga. --Here is news for college students! If you think it is too late to apply for the Air Force ROTC two-year program for the fall of 1971, think again! The deadline for applying for the two-year program at the University of Georgia is 15 May 1971.

Transfer students who plan to attend the University for at least two years, are encouraged to contact the Professor of Aerospace Studies at the University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia 30601. Telephone number is 404-542-1751.

Entry into the two-year program is on a competitive basis. Applicants must qualify on a written exam (the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test) and the Air Force medical evaluation, and be selected by an interview board composed of Air Force officers.

Applicants must then successfully complete a six-week Field Training course on an Air Force base, designed to prepare them for entry into the two-year campus program. Those meeting all requirements may then enroll in Air Force ROTC upon return to the campus.

Cadets will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Air Force after graduation from college and successful completion of the AFROTC program. Students desiring to continue studies at the graduate level may apply for educational delays prior to active duty.

Students from the fourteen southern states may apply for the newly created Ralph McGill Scholarship. Grants up to $1,500 per year are being awarded on the basis of aptitude, interest, and need. Applications will be accepted by the Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund, Box 4689, Atlanta, Georgia. 30302.

Will Rogers

"Will Rogers: the Man Behind the Image," will be the topic Friday, April 23, of a lecture launching the annual spring Humanities series at Kennesaw Junior College.

Fred Roach, assistant professor of history at KJC, will deliver the initial address. Each program will be held in the library seminar room at 11 a.m. and the public is invited.

Professor Roach, who received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from Villanova University, presently is writing a dissertation on Will Rogers as part of the Ph. D. requirement at the University of Oklahoma.

Dr. Memye Tucker, a Marietta resident and former faculty member at Adelphi University in New York and also at Agnes Scott College and Emory University, will deliver the second lecture May 13. Dr. Tucker's topic will be "Paths in the Wood: Some Contemporary Approaches to Literary Criticism."

A graduate of Agnes Scott, Dr. Tucker received her M. S. from Columbia in 1957 and her Ph. D. from Emory in 1963.

Dr. Carl Wieck will conclude the series May 20 with a lecture on "The Artist as Conscience." Dr. Wieck, assistant professor of English and Humanities at Morehouse College, is a graduate of the University of Louisville and received his M. A. from Northwestern University. His Ph. D. was awarded by the University of Paris (Sorbonne) in 1966.

Dr. Wieck, who has studied at the Free University of Berlin, has been the recipient of a Fulbright grant and a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. He has taught at the University of Louisville and the University of Maryland (European division).

Writing Award

(PIO) --Jeff Tyson, a student at Marietta High School, received a writing award at a dinner climaxing the High School Journalism Workshop at Kennesaw Junior College last week.

Jeff, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tyson Jr., 421 Hardage Dr. N.W., was awarded a certificate for writing the best interview story during the 12-hour course. Terri Lipscomb, Cartersville High School, received the award for the best speech story. The workshop drew some 14 young journalists from schools in Cartersville, Marietta and Cobb County.

Among special guests at the dinner were Carrol Dadisman, editor of the Marietta Daily Journal; John Fleetwood, publisher of the Cartersville Daily Tribune; and Mrs. Charles H. Marler, advisor to "The Chipper," the Cartersville High School newspaper, and KJC President Horace W. Sturgis. Guest speaker was Dr. Robert H. Akerman, dean of Kennesaw Junior College.

The second annual workshop directed by the Community Services Office at KJC, emphasized professional journalistic techniques in writing and producing school newspapers. The Kennesaw Junior College Foundation was host for the banquet.

Margaret Mead

Margaret Mead, renowned anthropologist who has drawn fire for her controversial opinions on everything from marriage to marijuana, will speak at the Regency Hyatt House in Atlanta on Friday, April 30, and Kennesaw Junior College students are invited to hear her without charge.

Dr. Mead's address, the closing session of Symposium '71, will be held in the main ballroom (Lancaster Room, Hanover Hall) of the Regency following a dinner at 8 p.m. Estimated time of her talk is 8:45.

Although there is no charge to KJC students, those desiring to come should contact the KJC Community Services Office, extension 235, or Administration Room 107 for reservations. Kennesaw students will be admitted on presentation of I. D. cards and should wait outside the ballroom door until notified to enter following the dinner.

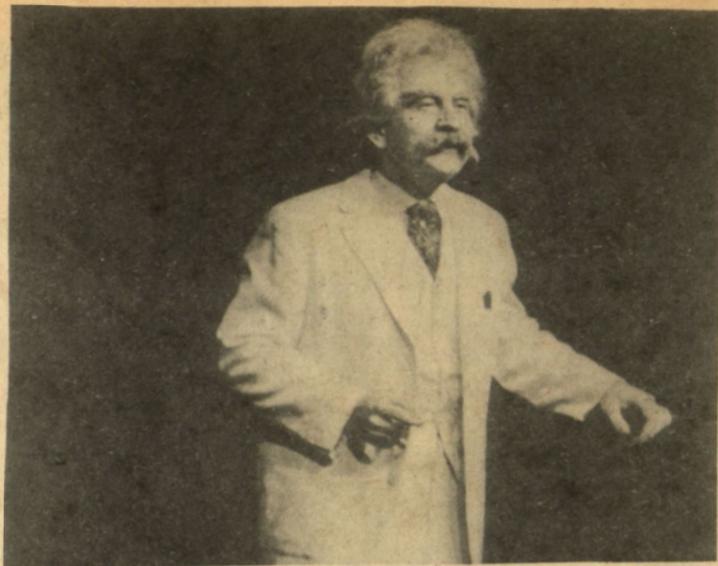

Regular dinner reservations and further information on Symposium '71 may be obtained through the Community Services Office.

Mark Twain Tonight!

--Mark Twain, a man who knew the power of laughter, will be re-created on stage at Kennesaw Junior College on Saturday, April 24, when John Chappell appears in the three-act presentation, "Mark Twain Tonight!"

The one-man show, sponsored by the Student Government Association, will begin in the KJC physical education building at 8 p.m.

John Chappell, who starred as Gov. John White in the production of America's longest running outdoor drama, "The Lost Colony," is completing work on his Ph.D at Emory University's Graduate Institute of the Liberal Arts. He began work on his characterization of Twain in 1968, when he received permission from Hal Holbrook for the use of the "Mark Twain Tonight!" material. Holbrook earlier won the Tony Award, the Drama Critics Circle Award and an Emmy nomination for his presentation.

The dramatization shows the American humorist as a philosopher famed for such one-line epigrams as "The lie is man's best and surest friend and it cannot perish from the earth while Congress remains in session" and "I'm opposed to millionaires, but it would be dangerous to offer me the position."

Chappell's performance as Twain has been called "a complete illusion of reality." Dressed in white suit, copy of one Mark Twain wore in his lifetime 60 years ago, the actor appears against simple staging depicting a 1910 lecture hall platform. Chappell's make-up which transforms him from a stout-faced fellow with dark eyes, black moustache and long black hair--takes three hours to apply.

The performance at Kennesaw Junior College is open to the public with $1 general admission. KJC students, faculty and staff members will be admitted without charge.

American Civil Liberties Union

Next year for the first time, college-age people all over the country will be able to vote for their representatives in Congress. Georgians have had this right for 25 years, but all congressmen are going to be especially sensitive, between now and November of next year, to what these new voters think.

One thing that senators and representatives think a whole lot about is getting reelected. They have found that not getting reelected has a bad effect on their influence on Capitol Hill. On the other hand, if they can stay in there long enough, they can become committee chairmen, and ultimately receive a State funeral, attended by Heads of State.

One thing that college-age people think a whole lot about is the draft. They have found that the draft has a bad effect on their life expectancy. On the other hand, if they can stay home long enough, they can not only enjoy life, but can test the parameters of liberty and pursue a little happiness.

College-age people who don't want young men to have a State funeral can kill the draft by making it clear to their congressmen that their State funerals may depend on how they vote on the draft.

Right now Congress is voting on bills to extend the draft, perhaps without student deferments. If you want to live long enough to see your congressman hauled down Pennsylvania Avenue, write to him and tell him that your interests may coincide, and that he should vote to:

1. Kill the draft; or if he doesn't like that,
2. Extend it for only one year (so that the vote will come up again in an election year) or if he can't hack that,
3. Keep the boys in college.

The senators from Georgia are Herman Talmadge and David Gambrell, and each has an office in the Old Senate Office Building. The House of Representatives will probably have voted by the time you see this, but it won't do any harm to write your letter addressed to John Doe, Congressman, Washington, D. C., will reach him if he happens to be named John Doe. Telegrams to congressmen are $1.00 for 15 words.

This message has been brought to you by your friendly Georgia affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Michener on Kent State

New York, March 25 -- Author James A. Michener says that his investigation of last May's shootings at Kent State University indicates that National Guardsmen were not under attack when they fired the shots that killed four students.

The author says that according to a photograph taken several minutes before the shooting began - at a time when many reports claim Guardsmen were under direct attack - at least 200 yards separated the Guards from the mass of students. Moreover, the photograph shows nearly 40 years of empty space plus a high steel fence between the Guards and the parking lot where the students were shot.

Michener says further that the Guard unit may unwittingly have trapped itself by taking up its position without realizing that it would be surrounded by a six-foot chain-link fence.

Michener's conclusions about the Kent State tragedy are contained in the April issue of Reader's Digest, which comes out March 25. His report is the second in a two-part condensation of a book commissioned by the Digest, to be published as a Reader's Digest Press Book in cooperation with Random House on April 30. In the April Digest's 12,500-word section, Michener traces moment by moment the events leading to the shooting and the upheavals that shook the nation afterward.

In the aftermath of the shootings, Michener says, an unparalleled outpouring of hatred was unleashed. It took the form of vilification of the dead students in particular and of young people in general. Of the 400 students he interviewed in preparing his story, Michener says, "at least 25 percent declared they had been told by their own parents that it might have been a good thing if they had been shot."

Michener describes the Kent State campus on Monday, May 4 - the day of the shootings - as "a scene of uncertainty, fear and planned riot." He says that incredibly, thousands of students and faculty members returning to campus were not even aware of the preceding weekend's riots, nor of the burning of the university's ROTC building on May 2.

In the wake of the riots, university and National Guard officials - the Guard had been summoned to the campus and arrived late Saturday - had prohibited all outdoor rallies, including those previously scheduled.

Yet, says Michener, despite distribution late Sunday and early Monday of thousands of leaflets and radio announcements of the ban, the word just did not get around to many of the returning students. Included in the ban was a rally set for noon on Monday to protest U. S. involvement in Cambodia. It was this rally that became the fatal confrontation.

At 11:48 a. m., Michener reports, somebody began ringing the school's victory bell. The bell, mounted on a low brick housing on Blanket Hill, continued clanging for the next 15 minutes. Michener declares it played "a major role, first in assembling the students and then in keeping them agitated." He says that no one knows who started ringing the bell. But he quotes, Prof. Murvin Perry of the Kent Journalism School, who says that careful study was made of photographs taken of speakers who led the rally at the bell. "No one could identify them as students who had ever been seen here before," Perry declares.

At 11:59 a. m., Michener says, Guard Brigadier General Robert H. Canterbury gave his troops orders to move on the crowd, first ordering a barrage of tear gas. Michener says that "careful calculations" indicate that at least 113 Guard officers and men were at this time arrayed in a skirmish line along the ruins of the burned-out ROTC building. He says that the crowd confronting the Guard was between 900 and 1000, with perhaps another 2000 - including citizens of Kent and high school students - on the outskirts as spectators.

As the Guard advanced, Michener says, students began throwing rocks, chunks of wood studded with nails, and jagged chunks of concrete. However, he declares, most of the thrown objects fell short of the advancing troops. Along with the missiles, "a steady barrage of verbal filth, curses and challenges came down upon the Guard. During the half hour that the Guard was in action, this rain of obscenity never let up."

The Guard pressed across the field. "But," writes Michener, "apparently none of the Guards realized that along the far side of this field ran a six-foot chain-link fence, topped by barbed wire. If a unit were to be surrounded in this steel pocket, there would be no escape."

As the troops took up their position against the fence, there was a flurry of rocks. Seventeen Guardsmen knelt on one knee and assumed a firing position.

At this point, Michener notes, many reports have told of "a constant shower of rocks" and "mad, screaming masses of students encircling the Guard, attacking them from all sides." But those reports are evidently untrue, according to photographic evidence.

The photograph was taken by Beverly K. Knowles, a Kent State student from Alliance, Ohio, from an upper window of Prentice Hall. It shows the Guardsmen kneeling in firing position. "At the far end of the practice field," Michener writes, "there were no students for at least 200 yards. Not one student is visible outside the fence bordering the length of the field."

"In the area directly between Prentice Hall and the Field, where the mob was supposed to have been, there was empty space for nearly 40 yards, then the Prentice Hall parking lot. On it could be counted a total of 22 students, five of them walking away from the Guard with books under their arms."

Other students support the evidence given by the photograph. Journalism major Harold Walker, who was taking pictures of the Guardsmen, says: "A few kids, maybe ten, ran inside the fence to throw rocks and junk at the Guards, but little of it reached them."

Another student, Peter Winnen, recalls what he saw from the porch at Taylor Hall: "The Guards were surrounded, but only by the fence. They all seemed damned irritable by being trapped against the fence. Then I saw the Guards go into a huddle, and it was obvious that a decision of some kind had been reached."

Was there an order to fire? To this crucial question, Michener says there is no answer. "Moreover, no Guardsman will now allow himself to be interrogated on this point." But, says the author, "It seems likely that at this time some of the troops agreed among themselves that they had taken enough." And a "secret report" cited by Michener contains this passage: "As the troops marched back up Blanket Hill, someone among the Guards said, 'If they charge us, shoot them.'"

Michener notes that dozens of reports of snipers were investigated, but that "no shred of evidence was found to support any of them."

"When the troops reached the pagoda," Michener writes, "some Guardsmen on the right flank suddenly stopped, wheeled, and aimed their rifles toward the students who had collected on the south side of Taylor Hall. There was a single shot, then a prolonged but thin fusillade. The shooting lasted 13 seconds."

Credit for the lack of even greater bloodshed is given by Michener to Kent faculty members who "taking upon themselves great risks, stood between the students and the riflemen and, over an extended period of fear and hysteria, stubbornly argued, pleaded, reasoned and cajoled."

"At this great crisis," he says, "no administrators were in evidence, no coaches, no counselors." Only the faculty teachers.

The author also describes the tragic efforts of parents to find out what happened to their children. He quotes Mrs. Barbara Agte, a faculty member: "No one felt responsibility for informing the parents of the dead students." (Actually they were not notified officially until the day after the deaths, when Kent State President Robert White sent telegrams to the parents.)

Why

Do They Riot?

Student opinion of parents and professors, God and religion, drugs and the draft, are candidly reported by students themselves in a book entitled THE COLLEGE SCENE by James A. Foley and Robert K. Foley (McGraw-Hill Paper backs, $2.95).

Under the co-direction of the Foley brothers, The College Poll of Connecticut's Greenwich College Research Center conducted 3,000 personal interviews of students from a cross section of 100 of the nation's universities. Using established scientific techniques, the findings were reduced to data-processed conclusions and have been turned into refreshing editorial dialogues.

Both authors encourage parents, and men and women of the older generation, to read this study involving such questions as why students riot; how big business rates on campus; whether or not professors wage war; and the latest information on abortion and sex, hippies and long hair. "For it is quite possible," comment the brothers, "that the generation gap is a chasm that can be closed with greater ease than either side imagines."

Still very active in student affairs, James S. Foley attended Norwalk College and now supervises the editorial board and commercial studies for the Poll. Robert K. Foley is presently an economics major at Villanova, and he supervises The Poll's field staff and international operations.

The College Poll was started at the urging of top newspaper editors to provide a dialogue with college students. Now in its third year and in 11 countries, The College Poll covers thousands of in-depth interviews which are processed and reported to more than 50 leading newspapers, and over NBC "Monitor" every week-end.

Do You Care?

May 9 is Mother's Day, a day when millions of students will follow the American tradition of giving Mom something special.

May 9 is also a day in which half of the world's population will go to bed hungry. A day in which half of the 200 human beings born each minute are destined to die before age one.

It's a day, too, when American students can pay tribute to their mothers in unique form. Bee H. Brown, Atlanta Regional Director of CARE, says that his organization has a gift plan through which students can give their mothers something special on May 9 and, at the same time help the world's needy. The plan: simply make a contribution of one dollar or more to CARE in the name of your mother.

Your mother will then receive a special Mother's Day card notifying her that needy people overseas have been aided by you in her name.

For example, money contributed to last year's honoring of American mothers helps support mother and preschool feeding programs in Colombia. CARE feeds 132,585 mothers and preschool children each day in Colombia - a land where the total income of many, many families is less than $200 per year. The preschoolers are part of 900,000 children receiving CARE food in Colombia.

Last year's Mother's Day funds also were used in Ecuador. Here some 300,000 school children eagerly drink the CARE milk so vital to their meager diets. About 290,000 of them also are fed a highly nutritious bread made of wheat flour and vegetable oil. Another 55,000 preschool children also are fed by CARE.

Funds from 1970's Mother's Day also are helping to provide food for 155,927 school children in far away Tunisia and in other countries around the world. As Americans honor their mothers in this meaningful way, there is a new life and hope, and many are blessed.

May 9 is Mother's Day, a day on which you can both "do your own thing" and "do a world of good." Students should be sure to include their mother's name and address with all contributions.

Spring quarter has brought with it a very busy intramural schedule. We find ourselves in the midst of competition in swimming, golf, handball, tennis, track and field, and softball.

Special events in swimming, and other sports are being held during the quarter. A swim-meet was held on April 12. Handball competition begins May 7. Tennis starts on April 16. A two-day track and field meet is planned with the first day devoted to preliminary heats, and the second day for final contests. The golf tournament will be held April 29.

Softball games are being held every Tuesday and Thursday. Team schedules are listed below.

GO AHEAD. IGNORE ME JUST BECAUSE I'M A COUPON.

Just because in your 18 to 21 years of middle-class American suburbia upbringing, you've been so overexposed to coupons that you could stuff them down some newspaperman's esophagus, you think I'm another run-of-the-mill, housewifey coupon.
