Faint Victim Upsets KJC

by John York

A KJC student suffering from concussions fainted in the Humanities building on the morning of September 25. The incident dramatically spotlighted the need for proper first aid facilities on the campus.

The student, Hamilton Boone, had received a head wound while working the previous weekend and had been treated and released by the Kennestone Hospital emergency room. His repercussions occurred after he returned to school Monday morning.

Gary Simmers, student assistant for the Humanities division, was present when Boone became ill.

"I saw this guy fall on his knees in the hallway," Simmers recalled. "He was sliding on his knees and throwing up at the same time. Somebody got a trash can. Ms. Miles, the secretary, came up with a cold, wet napkin... Dr. Hinton rushed down and brought up a cold napkin. I asked if anyone was getting a nurse, but no one responded."

When asked if he knew there was a first aid kit in the Humanities division office, Simmers replied, "I know now. It's mounted on the wall...You can see it." Simmers explained that when he started working for Humanities he was neither shown the location of the first aid kit nor instructed in its proper use.

Ms. Sybil Williams, Administrative Assistant in Community Services, became aware of the emergency and rushed to give aid.

"He was sick at his stomach and could not speak or sit up," Ms. Williams recalled. "You could tell he was quite ill."

"We tried to help him with paper towels," she continued. "A maintenance man found a cloth towel so I wet it and put it on the back of his neck. We needed a blanket to cover him up with. He was pale and completely listless."

Blankets are not available as first aid supplies in any of the buildings. Likewise, pillows and cloth towels for emergency use are nonexistent.

So Hamilton Boone lay slumped on the cold concrete floor, comforted only by the jackets of Ms. Williams and Ms. Miles.

When Tom Salter of the art department heard of Boone's misfortune, he found a blanket and rushed to the scene.

"I just knew someone was sick and needed help," Salter said later, "and I had a blanket in my office. We really were not prepared."

While several faculty members tried to comfort Boone, Ms. Miles called the office of the Dean of Student Affairs to find out what to do. The secretary at the office relayed the message to the switchboard operator, who is turn called the ambulance.

Within a few minutes an ambulance arrived from Kennesaw and took Boone to the emergency room at Kennestone Hospital. As the ambulance departed Ms. Miles called Boone's doctor and asked him to notify the emergency room that the ambulance was on its way.

Boone's parents were in Florida.

As this article goes to press, Hamilton Boone is in satisfactory condition at Kennestone Hospital.

Retrospect

KJC's meager first aid facilities and lack of trained personnel came into glaring prominence as a result of the Boone incident.

According to Ms. Miles, a directive went out to each instructor at the time the first aid kits were installed in the various buildings; but new instructors have not been formally notified of the presence of a kit.

Ms. Miles also pointed out that the kits are so simple that one does not need any training in order to be able to use them.

Intercollegiate Competition

by Marie Burns

Some students have remarked that they would like to have a football team. What they really mean is they would like some intercollegiate competition. The President of the P.E. Club, Herb Hendrix, may have the answer.

A few days ago Hendrix received a letter from Danny O'Sullivan, the chairman of the Association of College Union-International, that contained information on campus, regional and national competitions that KJC students have a chance to participate in.

If you're not the athletic type, don't despair if you would like to join in. In campus, regional and national competition a few of the activities will be such things as Bowling, billiards, table tennis, bridge and trap and skeet. In campus and Regional competition, chess buffs will have a chance.

The entry fees are $2.50 to $5.00 for regional and only $1.00 for campus. If you want any information, contact Herb Hendrix, Jane Burnup or Eddie Cappola of the P.E. and Recreation Majors Club.

Drastic Changes Coming

by Paul Flanagan

At the October 4 meeting of SGA, the student statues committee will submit two constitutional amendments that could critically change student government at Kennesaw.

The first change is to abolish the Student Judicial Committee. In the past, an offender had two choices. He could go before the Dean of Student Affairs or he could stand trial before the Student Judicial Committee. But the new proposal would give the offender no choice but to see the dean; there would be no Judicial committee.

This proposal stems from the fact that the present Judicial committee has been maribund for some time.

The second proposal would allow the S.G.A. to suspend the constitution for a specified time in order to meet emergencies not forseen by the constitution this has been prompted by the frequent vacancies in the student senate, which under the constitution cannot be filled again by appointment.

These amendments both deal with a perennial plaque of student govern-

Chess Club

Attention new and returning students! The Kennesaw Junior College Chess Club is holding its first meeting Monday, October 8, 1972 at noon in front of Sentinel Office in Students Services Center. All students are welcome to join. No knowledge of chess is required. Chess boards and pieces will be provided by the club.

S G A Bylaw Amendments

Since it appears that the time for SGA Senatorial elections is once again drawing close, the editors of The Sentinel feel that the time has come to discuss the subject of amendments to the SGA Bylaws.

If our information is correct, there are approximately twenty proposed amendments to be ratified by the students sometime in the near future. We just wonder if it will do any good for the students to vote in the ones they want.

Since Spring Quarter, two instances have occurred where SGA has ignored and completely by-passed the Bylaws. The first instance occurred at the end of Spring Quarter when the SGA President took it upon himself to appoint more temporary senators for the summer quarter than authorized by the SGA Bylaws.

The second instance has occurred and is occurring this quarter. The SGA is now holding Bi-weekly meetings rather than weekly meetings, again in direct violation of their Bylaws. SGA Bylaws, article VI, Section 1: "The regular meetings of the Association shall be held once a week."

We feel that in order to work for the students, SGA must operate according to the procedures outlined in their Bylaws until these are officially amended. It is not fair to the student body for SGA to make decisions and initiate changes which affect the students without availing them of the opportunity to have a voice in these decisions.

The Sentinel feels that it must voice its opinion on at least one of the proposed amendments. An amendment proposed by the Student Statutes Committee would allow the SGA to suspend the Bylaws for a specified time in order to meet emergencies not foreseen by the Bylaws. . . . We do not feel that such a broad amendment would create anything but dictatorial license within SGA. Such an amendment would allow a very loose interpretation of the term "emergency." Anything could be deemed an emergency and then acted on without the voice of the student body. We feel that most of these so-called "emergencies" could be foreseen and specifically taken into consideration when writing the Bylaws. Our suggestion is that SGA take previous problems and profit by their mistakes when drafting these new Bylaws, rather than initiating vague articles into them.

In an interview with a Sentinel staff member, one of our prominent students, Harry Whitehead, said "SGA has reached the state of being a defunct government." We now leave it up to SGA to prove him wrong.

Symposium '72 on TV

(KJC-PIO) Highlights of Cobb County Symposium '72 will be featured in a special 30-minute, color program on Channel 8-WGTV-Monday, October 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The program is a repeat of a similar production in August.

Narrator for the program will be Larry Custer, Marietta attorney who served as chairman of Symposium '72.

The symposium, held in April on the Kennesaw Junior College campus, explored the theme, "The Search for Relevance in the Seventies. Speakers included Bill Burry, center for the Baltimore Colts, and Dr. Elisabeth K. Ross author of the book "On Death and Dying."

"I think you'd better take another look at your blueprints."

Editor Cites Policy

We're Not Dead!

by Barry Banks

A lot of campus traditions and clubs have died quietly here at K.J.C., but the student newspaper, The Sentinel, is not one of them.

The Sentinel exists primarily to keep the student informed about events happening around campus and to reflect on student opinions. In order to accomplish this we are changing from a monthly to a weekly newspaper. So far as we know, we are the first junior college to do so (even many four year schools have yet to run weekly).

This weekly publication is possible due to the fine potential in our new staff members and our hard working veteran reporters. Thanks to their new ideas and suggestions, there will be several new changes in order to keep up with the character of this college and in the student body.

New and different columnists will be added, voicing some new and different points of view. These columnists are Lucy Worley, covering the pulse of the S.G.A.; Geoffrey Ann Baker, in charge of the Black Awareness column; Wesley Channel, who will keep up with the God's Forever Family; and Del Eastman, who achieves excellence in everything he writes.

We are setting up a new system for covering the campus news which will make our coverage more thorough. We have reporters assigned to each of the different departments on campus. Also, staff members will write on subjects they have had previous experience with, bringing in news that we may have missed before.

In the sports department, there will be some new changes under the direction of Rick Hayden (our new sports editor.) He will be working with Carla McClure, Michael Klang, and Larry Russell, so as to make the sport page as interesting as possible to the students.

We hope to become better acquainted with the students and faculty on campus in order to cover everything as fairly and honestly as possible. But we will refuse to become a puppet organization, as a few other groups on campus have become, unable to speak out when we see something that is unfair or unjust to the students.

The Sentinel was an award-winning newspaper last year at the Georgia Press Association, and we will strive to do even better this year.

A staff meeting will be held every Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. in our new office, located where the S.G.A. use to be (we needed more space), on the left corner by the television set in the Student Center. If you would like to join us, come to the meeting.

Age Discussed

(KJC-PIO) Problems of aging—ranging from where to meet new friends to how to get the right kind of exercise—will be explored this fall in a series of seminars on campus.

The "AGE" (Attitude-Growth - Enthusiasm) seminars will be held on the second Thursday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon in the library seminar room.

"Aid and Care for the Over-Sixty—How You Can Help," will be the topic of the October 12 seminar, to be led by Julie Cohn, director of the Golden Age Information Referral Service, in Atlanta, and Kitty Butler, of Volunteer Atlanta.

On Nov. 9, Dr. I. David Harris, associate professor of physical education and Chairman of the Physical Education Department at Kennesaw Junior College, will speak on "As Fit As You Can Be," a program of helpful hints with demonstrations of appropriate exercises for keeping physically fit.

"I'm So Glad To Be Here," will be the topic Dec. 14, when Richard Davy, director of counseling and placement at Kennesaw Junior College, will lead the concluding seminar.

Discussed will be such topics as depression and guilt feelings faced by many older people.

The "AGE" seminars, designed primarily for older people, are open also to interested professionals and volunteers. The sessions will offer help for situations and problems faced by many older people.

There will be no registration fee for the programs.

Black Awareness

Apathy vs Involvement

by Geoffrey Baker

The Student Government Association is only as good as the students make it. Apathy is a sense of unconcern, a lack of attention and interest. The students of Kennesaw are being attacked by one of the most effective diseases on earth: Apathy.

We have lost a concern for the betterment of our school. It is the individual student's responsibility to work with his students government in order to make his life on campus more meaningful and enjoyable.

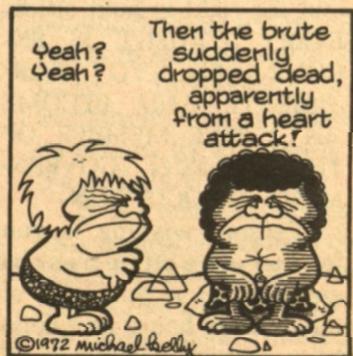

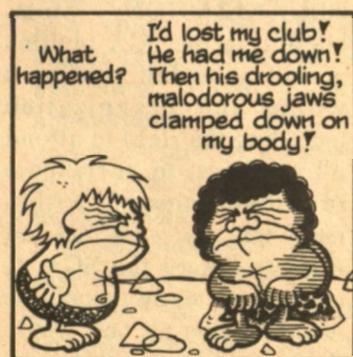

The purposes of the Student Government Association are to develop a firm spirit of responsible citizenship among students, to encourage meaningful participation in student affairs, to promote a better understanding between faculty and student body, to represent the interest of the students, and to execute the student will in accordance with the privileges granted the Student Government Association by the faculty and administration. In short, SGA is an organization designed to help you, the student, as you proceed to mold your life here at Kennesaw.

At the first meeting of the SGA at Kennesaw Junior College, only 34 of approximately 1800 students attended. What happened to the other 1766 students? Of these 34 students, only three were Black. Black people, you have a responsibility to yourself. Stand up for the injustice bestowed upon you. Let the world know that you are still alive. SGA needs you! If there is ever to be peace and unity on a college campus, there must be involvement from the students themselves. Don't sit in the background and let everything be done for you. Get a piece of the action. Let the people know what "Black Soul" is really about.

Who will win the battle? What is your choice? Think about it!

Williams Added

(KJC-PIO) Sybil Compton Williams, a former newspaper writer, has joined the staff of Kennesaw Junior College as an administrative assistant in the Office of Community Services.

She will handle news releases and college publications and assist in planning continuing education programs.

Mrs. Williams has served as editor of the "Cobb County Times," a weekly newspaper which was converted to a Sunday supplement of the "Marietta Daily Journal," and has worked in advertising sales and layout for the "Smyrna Herald," now the Smyrna Neighbor," and as a reporter for the "Marietta Daily Journal." She was a part-time writer at Kennesaw Junior College from 1969-1971.

A journalism graduate of the University of Georgia, Mrs. Williams is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism fraternity for women.

She and her husband, George Williams, and four children live at 536 Flintwood Dr. NE in Marietta.

campaign of Senator McGovern as he re-vitalizes the dreams of the new frontier.

In order to be able to share in the political experience of 1972 one must step from the sweet smelling, smoke-filled rooms to the streets and ring doorbells. The end result of this action will be to become a part of the voice of political involvement. If people mean more to you than corporations, and peace is more important than war, then you should have enough human compassion in you to join the Kennesaw McGovern movement. For information contact Patrick S. Wisniewski at 941-6510 after 5 p.m., or McGovern Campaign Headquarters, 84 Cherokee Ave., Marietta.

In order to give peace a chance we must give Senator George McGovern a chance to enact peace by electing him President of the United States.

Vox Populus

Dear Editor:

Although 18 year olds have been able to vote in Georgia for a longer period of time than most other 18 year olds in other states, never before has their vote been so crucial. The political establishment believes students are a disinterested group of marijuana smokers and beer drinkers, but my faith in students has not waned since students helped to elect John F. Kennedy in 1960. The youthful supporters were influential in shaping the structure of the campaign.

In the last national Democratic convention the youth played a large role in nominating Senator George McGovern. This was a history making event, but history is not yet completed. The election of Senator George McGovern will definitely show that the youth of America have a strong voice in the framework of politics. The youth can generate a force of enthusiasm into the

The Observant Teacher of the Week Award goes to Mr. Chan who has observed that a bachelor's life is not all that it's made-out to be. Congratulations to Mr. Chan and his new wife.

Something strange seems to be happening around campus. Some maintenance men on campus have suddenly become food handlers and serve themselves behind the counter. What's even stranger is the minimal amount of money deposited in the cash register by same. Now come on fellows. How is Jolly Roger going to make his five percent if you guys keep doing things like that?

Dr. Virginia Hinton wrote an article in the first issue of The Sentinel about cultural events. The only problem is that all of the events are happening in the Humanities Division. Come, come, Dr. Hinton, there must be something going on in the other divisions. Why not try a canoe trip. There may not be any big names in the group, but I hear that they do a good job singing White Water Blues.

Plea for the week: Will the real Dr. Staff please stand up.

SGA Needs Students

by Frank Wilson

The Student Government Association exists to develop a sense of individual and group responsibility, promote understanding and involvement among all members of the college community, encourage meaningful participation in student affairs, and to represent and legislate the interest of the student body in accordance with the faculty statutes and the policies of the Board of Regents.

EACH AND EVERY STUDENT ENROLLED AT THE COLLEGE IS A MEMBER OF THIS ORGANIZATION. Membership in the SGA entitles a student to full privileges within the organization including the right to attend all meetings, to participate in discussions within meetings, to vote on all matters before the SGA, to assume as many committee memberships as one would desire and be appointed to, and the right to hold office. EVERY STUDENT IS ENCOURAGED TO PARTICIPATE AND BECOME AN ACTIVE MEMBER OF THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION.

Persons wishing to run for executive office must be enrolled for a minimum of ten quarter hours and must have earned a minimum of fifteen quarter hours at Kennesaw Junior College prior to taking office with a 2.0 average or having earned a 2.0 average for the preceding two quarters. These elections occur during the Spring Quarter of each academic year. Specific duties of officers and procedures for running for office are listed within the SGA Bylaws. A copy of this document may be obtained from the SGA office which is located in the Student Services Building.

Senatorial elections are held in the Fall Quarter. Qualifications for running for the office of Senator are the same as those required of an executive office candidate except that a beginning freshman may run. However, a first quarter freshman assuming the position of Senator must have earned at least a 2.0 average after two quarters in attendance.

Various committee memberships are open to the student body at large while some are part of the duties and responsibilities of an elected officer. Some of these are committees of the Student Government Association while others are faculty committees. Those committees open to membership from the student body at large are the Student Aid, Entertainment, and Curriculum Committees of the Student Government Association. Faculty committees include the Academic Council, Drug Use and Abuse Committee, and the Judicial Committee. Students also are represented on the Student Affairs Council, the Administrative Council, and the Student Activities Committee by virtue of holding elected office. Any student interested in assuming committee or council membership should make his intentions known to the president of the Student Government Association. However, any student assuming such a position should be aware that membership on any of the above carries a great deal of responsibility in that they (the committees and councils) are responsible for either the expenditure of large amounts of money or for establishing, amending, and carrying out the policies of the college.

Again, all students are encouraged to become involved and active in their student government. Meetings are held bi-weekly in the Private Dining Room in the Student Services Building. Announcements as to the date and time of meetings are posted on the SGA bulletin board and in the calendar of events which was distributed during registration. Often times information concerning anticipated business to come before the Association will also be posted.

Your student government is only as strong and viable as you make it. Your participation and support of the Association is necessary if it is to be a truly functional and meaningful governmental body. See you at the next meeting.

will be Georgia T. Henry, curriculum specialist with the Northwest Georgia Regional Health Council. Mrs. Henry holds the B.S. degree in early childhood education and varying exceptionalities in exceptional child education. Both degrees were awarded by Florida State University.

The course will cover the causes and characteristics of mental retardation, the establishing of realistic goals, characteristics of hyper-active, withdrawn and emotionally-disturbed children and how to handle these children.

Registration information may be obtained from the Community Services Office at Kennesaw Junior College.

Breakfast Launches KJC Fund Drive

(KJC-PIO) A breakfast held on the KJC campus recently launched the fourth annual Kennesaw Junior College Foundation fund drive.

Some 24 trustees of the Foundation were scheduled to attend the function, according to drive chairman Dr. Henry D. Meaders.

This year's goal is $40,000. Approximately $68,000 has been raised by the Foundation during the past three years to provide student scholarships, salary supplements and graduate study for faculty members and other benefits for which state funds are not available.

Further impetus will be given to the drive October 5, when the Foundation will sponsor the Cobb County Chamber of Commerce Early Bird Breakfast. Speaker for the breakfast will be Dr. Vernon D. Crawford, vice president for academic affairs at Georgia Tech.

Sidney Clotfelter, chairman of the initial three fund drives conducted by the Foundation, was honored this year by the college faculty with a special commendation at commencement exercises in June.

Salter Paintings In Fairburn Show

(KJC-PIO) Paintings by Thomson Salter, assistant professor of art at Kennesaw Junior College, are among works by 27 artists on exhibit this month in an individual show at the South Metro Arts Alliance gallery in Fairburn.

Salter has two paintings on display at the exhibit, which initiated the opening of the gallery at 45 Broad Street. The Salter paintings are titled "Spanish Landscape" and "Festival."

reporter revealed the first aid kits to consist primarily of: 14 improved Red Cross bandages, 2 yards of gauze, an ounce of cotton, 36 gauze pads, tweezers, a pencil and pad, eye wash, and ammonia inhalant.

No additional provisions have been included for use in treating a victim for shock, epileptic fits, diabetic problems, or similar emergency situations. Nor have administration and faculty personnel been trained to provide proper treatment to the victims of these problems.

Action

As a direct result of the incident, tentative plans have been made to establish a first aid course for faculty and administrative personnel. Ms. Cullene Harper, director of Community Services, informed The Sentinel that such a course might be sponsored by her office and coordinated with Dr. Harris in the Physical Education department. She added, however, that such a course would require permission from Dr. Horace Sturgis, president of the college.

Due to a heavy schedule, Dr. Sturgis was not available for comment.

Improvements

At least one definite improvement is being made in campus emergency procedure, according to Frank Wilson, Coordinator of Student Activities.

"We're in the process of making arrangements with the ambulance service," Wilson explained. "We're going to send them a map of the college and all the facilities so they'll have all the information on hand." When asked if he felt that the college has a lack of planned emergency procedure, Wilson replied, "If The Sentinel suspects a lack of planned procedure, I think it's a justified reaction."

Wilson went on to explain that improvements in first aid facilities were being considered long before the Boone incident. A health station is scheduled to be installed in the near future in the Student Services building. The station will occupy one of the offices presently held by The Sentinel. According to Wilson, the station will have a small cot and other equipment.

"Who will man the station? I'm not sure," Wilson admitted. "But I know we will not have a resident nurse or a resident doctor. None of the junior colleges have them. None of them can justify the need of full-time medical care."

Wilson said that it has become standard procedure to designate those people on campus who have first aid experience.

"I can definitely tell you that this station will be set up," Wilson emphasized. "It was a directive from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools...the accrediting committee. We're in the process of meeting all their recommendations."

Additional emergency facilities are being considered for the other buildings on campus, according to Dr. Carroll Martin, Dean of Student Affairs.

Ms. Charlotte Sachs, the director of nursing, is working up a list of equipment that will be needed in emergency situations," Dr. Martin explained. "Blankets and pillows located in each building would be a necessity." He added that the list was being compiled before Boone's misfortune.

When questioned about the destitute condition of existing first aid kits, Dr. Martin replied, "It doesn't mean much I know, but it's one step in the whole progress."

Dr. Martin's office, Student Affairs, will be responsible for disseminating written emergency procedures. At present, the sole directive is a paragraph in the KJC telephone book: "Report all calls for the Fire Department, as well as emergency calls to your PBX Operator. She will report to the proper place as well as others on the campus who should be informed."

Emergency numbers are listed on the first page of the directory.

Dr. Martin informed The Sentinel that his office is making plans for a more comprehensive emergency guide.

"We want to get out a separate fact sheet that tells step-by-step what to do in case of an accident. But we can't get highly technical in terms of diagnosing what's wrong with a person," he said.

"We'll run it off and send it to everyone (faculty and administration), and we'll keep it posted in strategic locations," he added.

Student Responsibilities

Dr. Martin reminded The Sentinel that there are a number of precautions the students can take to protect themselves in case of an emergency, and he pointed out the school's policy toward health care as stated on page 120 of the school catalog; "Kennesaw Junior College, being a non-residential college, does not assume the parental responsibility for the overall health and physical well-being of its students. The college does assume, however, a reasonable degree of responsibility for the safety and welfare of its student body by encouraging all students to participate in a nominally priced accident and sickness insurance plan, maintaining adequately equipped first aid stations at strategic locations on campus, and providing conscientious supervision at all extra-curricular activities and functions."

Part of the burden of emergency preparedness, therefore, rests with the individual.

Dr. Martin emphasized that student insurance costs only $18.00 per year or may be pro-rated to cover only certain academic quarters. Forms for the insurance are available in his office.

Another area in which student concern is lacking is in filling out the Student Statement of Health forms, Dr. Martin stressed. The health forms should have been filled out as part of each student's application for admission, but many students failed to complete section four of the form: Authorization for emergencies.

This authorization is important because it gives the college permission to call an ambulance and a doctor in the event of an emergency. Yet many of the students neglected to fill in

by Del Eastman

Captain Jonson and Sergeant R. Tootle were on campus recently in an effort to stimulate interest in the Marine Corps Officer Programs.

Armed with an impressive array of attractive brochures, indepth information and 12 years of service between them, they were ready and able to answer any questions.

The program, designated The U.S. Marine Corps Platoon Leaders

Class, allows undergrads an opportunity to prepare themselves for 2nd Lieutenant bars while drawing $100 per month. There is even a program for PLC members to get their pilot license free.

Captain Jonson indicated that response to the program has exceeded all expectations in the middle south Georgia area. The quotas have been running 120%.

Changes

[continued from page 1] ment. That plaque, if you haven't guessed already is apathy. Or as Statutes committee Grady O'bier puts it, "We've been getting no input."

The case of the statutes committee is typical, the present committee is the successor to a committee which was decimated by graduation and drop-outs. The committee has four active members, two of which were not present at the meeting I attended. (This meeting was taken up by my interview of the two remaining members.) Nonetheless this committee has accomplished many things. Besides the two amendments, the committee has clarified the wording of the constitution which has been attack as too vague in the past. The committee's other job is of interpretation of the statutes which will be accomplished at the next SGA meeting.

The understaffed conditions of the whole student government is reflected in the statutes committee. Chairman O'bier for example holds positions on three other committees and his com-this section. "On the new health form," Dr. Martin explained, "we ask parents if they will assume responsibility for paying if an ambulance is called. But if we need an ambulance patriots are similarly over-extended.

A partial reason for this apathy is the fact that the administration will only let the student government function under its close supervision. It is the faculty standing committee that makes all new additions to the statutes which cover student conduct. The SGA then must comply with the new rules, being allowed only to protest them but not overturn them. Then, amendments to the constitution must be approved by the same committee after passing SGA.

Nonetheless, O'bier insists that SGA is not yet reduced to a debating society. He cites the undeniable fact that the administration allows the students government a far more powerful and meaningful role in running its affairs than is usual on the college scene.

If the amendments pass SGA 5 days afterword they will be publically reviewed before the student body in the dining room. Finally the measures will be voted on in a plebiscite to be held along with the senate elections next month.

Introduction To Myself

by Randall Lynn

It is often noted, by all those who take note of such things, that the music of a particular day and time is a uniquely accurate barometer by which all the various tensions, frustrations, elations, and exultations of the social cauldron may be clearly read and defined. While the truth of this focusing of cultural interest on some other form of creative expression, it is abundantly evident today that our music is as inseparable a part of our times as our times are our music.

But what exactly is "our music?" Certainly, it is the music that we — our generation and our society — thrive on. Indeed, it is the medium through which we cast before the world our thoughts, our visions, our longings, and our shortcomings. It is the robe in which we cloak ourselves and the mask beneath which we sometimes hide, hoping things will be a little better when next we venture out. It is you, and it is me. It is, at some points, everything you think you are, and, at other points, everything you would like to be. It also reflects a step further along from what you were.

If music today is such an integral part of what we collectively represent and individually present to one another, can it be ultimately defined? I doubt it. It is at once a feeling, a mood, a concept, a force, a touching, a reaching out, a regeneration, and a sharing. To attempt to define it would be to attempt to define ourselves — what we are to each other and what we try to be ourselves. Although I've tried to set such a definition inaccurate.

So why bother? Let us simply enjoy.

It is to further the experience of music in our time that I intend to write a series of articles on the sounds that flow in and out of our past, our present, and our future. I'll begin in the issue two weeks from today and continue every other week. I hope we'll be able to share some experiences together. I don't pretend for a moment to be an expert in the technical side of this field, so if you're looking for something to help build your particular instrumental talent, you'd better look elsewhere. Neither do I pretend to be the final word on what is musically valid in today's culture. I know only that I was born into a musical world with music all around me and that I've spent the better part of my life trying to get a bit deeper into the things our generation's leading musicians and performers have been saying to us all.

Over the years I've developed my own personal tastes, and, although I'm generally quite open-minded, I think you will find that I'm a bit biased musically. Hence, I more than likely will step on a few toes from time to time in my articles about this group, that group, this album, or that album. I'm likely to put down someone you may think is really great or praise a recording you may think the worst ever made. Then, again, you and I are likely to concur at times.

I hope, at any rate, you will not hesitate to read and respond to what I've written. I plan in the coming weeks and months to use this article to bring to your attention artists and sounds from around the world that you may or may not be completely familiar with. We will discuss rock and musical forms other than rock, the musicians of our generation and musicians of generations far removed, socially, culturally, and, sometimes, geographically, from ours. I hope to present to you descriptions and photographs of concerts given by major artists in and around Georgia, bits and pieces from the lives and philosophies of many of these artists, album reviews, single reviews, and descriptions of any motion pictures released based on rock subjects. You will be reading about Ravi Shankar; Arlo Guthrie; The Band; Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young; Rod McKuen; Richard Harris; Frank Sinatra; Rod Stewart and the Faces; the late Janis Joplin; Elvis Presley; Simon and Garfunkel; Jefferson Airplane; and Leon Russell, among others. You will also be reading, someday out in tomorrow, a rather extended series of articles on the lives and careers of that trinity of 1960's demagogues — The Beatles, Bob Dylan, and The Rolling Stones.

I may not hit everybody, and there are a few concerts I won't bother seeing. In view of this, please feel free to write of your own experiences with modern music, concerts you've seen, or records you've enjoyed, and send it on in to us. I'm sure The Sentinel won't mind. At any rate, there's a lot of good music happening all around, and a lot of bad. My name is Randall Lynn, and, in the time we have left to us, I hope we can explore some of it together.

Sugar and spice and everything nice, that's what little girls are made of—and big girls, too. And Miss Connie Walker amply fits this description. (Miss in lieu of Ms. inserted at Connie's request.)

Connie is working toward a degree in education and plans on teaching in a Montessori school when she gets her certification. Connie's college career started at the University of Arkansas. (known affectionately as Hog U.). She is a fourth quarter freshman.

Connie's busy schedule extends beyond her school work. Her hobbies include chess, cats and motorcycles, before she sustained a very serious injury. She is also running for a place in the SGA senate. "The SGA is kind of flimsy at this point, but I think Allen and Lucy (SGA Pres. and Vice-Pres.) are trying, and I'm going to be there working to improve the situation, too."

Right-on Connie!

Counselor Likes Student Body

by Gary Simmers

"A lot more to college than textbooks," is the philosophy of Frank Wilson, Coordinator of Student Activities at Kennesaw Junior College.

Frank, originally a native of Brunswick, Georgia, attended Brunswick Junior College where he became involved with and developed respect for the junior college system. Frank then attended West Georgia College where he received his A.B. in Psychology.

After a decision to study educational guidance and counseling, Frank received his master's at West Georgia in the field of Student Personnel in Higher Education.

Frank did his practical work in the field of student activities and developed a deep respect for the extra-curricular aspect of college life.

Of his job at Kennesaw, Frank says it provides an excellent opportunity to work in all areas of interest. His duties involve directing student activities, counseling, and some teaching in Psychology.

Frank views college life as "somewhat of a mini-society" and says that the "student body at KJC is a great bunch of people."

Falling In A Pit

by Wesley Channel

Sincerity—most people are sincere about something in life. Now with the Fall Quarter here everyone's sincere about doing well and making better grades, but sincerity alone won't get one the grades he wants; it takes action. How many times have we started out the new quarter with the intention of doing our best and then fallen back into the pit we were originally in?

Don't most people have a problem making their desires to do better turn into actions? How many times have we heard someone say that he's going to quit something, and maybe he does for a while, but later he's back doing the same thing. There's no problem with the individual's sincerity, but there is a problem in the ability to change the behavior pattern. We can clearly see that there's more needed than sincerity to change a person's life and really more than sincere actions; it takes a total transformation.

Where do we look for that total transformation? Most people would say God, but the paradox in the matter is that most people believe that all we need to do is to be sincere about our belief in God. Yet haven't we just seen how sincerity alone will get an individual little, or no place whatsoever? The Bible says that the demons believe in God and tremble (James 1:19)—even the demons believe in God and they're so sincere about it they tremble! It's plain to see that there must be more than just believing in God if we want to change our lives, and there is. We must come to know and have a daily relationship with Jesus Christ because He's the only way to God (John 14:6, I Tim. 2:5).

Jesus helps a person carry out those sincere desires for changing his life to their fullness and makes him a brand new person on the inside. The thirst for change is continually quenched within and he finds drinking of the living water that Jesus gives new life welling up and flowing out our lives in an abundance that only Jesus can give.

"Bonnie and Clyde" will be shown on Friday night, Oct. 6, 8 p.m. in the gym. Admission is free with student I.D.

They're Young, They're In Love, They Kill People

Warner Bros.' "Bonnie and Clyde" revives the Depression-ridden Southwest of the 1930's. It was the time when bank robber Clyde Barrow and his cigar-smoking sweetheart, Bonnie Parker, held sheriffs and bank tellers in terror and frequently captured headlines with their daring, reckless, and often pointless crimes. The motion picture, Friday night, Oct. 6, 8 p.m. at the gym, stars Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway in the title roles. The film was directed by Arthur Penn and produced by Beatty.

Beatty and Penn first collaborated on the deceptive and allegorical decline of "Mickey One." However, it is their second effort, "Bonnie and Clyde," that has become an undisputed milestone in movie making. Controversial enough to make critics damn and then praise it, and important enough to change the entire intent and purpose of filmmaking for years to come, "Bonnie and Clyde" speaks of innovation—the violence erupting out of playfulness, the lovemaking fulfilled be a sense of impending death, the actual presence of time and place, and characterization.

Besides Beatty and Miss Dunaway, the cast includes Michael J. Pollard as C.W. Moss, the driver for the Barrow gang; Gene Hackman as Clyde's brother, Buck; Estelle Parsons as Buck's wife, Blanche; Denver Pyle as the sheriff who hunted down Bonnie and Clyde in an obscure wood in Arcadia, La., on May 23, 1934; and Gene Wilder in a sensational comic "chase" scene that launched his career as a comedian.

The Doctor's Bag

by Arnold Werner, M.D.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

QUESTION: Enclosed is an ad from a magazine that suggests that a woman can increase her bustline three to five inches. It is based on an Excerciser. Please comment. Does it work?

ANSWER: The ad is for the Mark Eden Developer and Bustline Contouring Course. It shows the usual before and after pictures—women increasing their bust from 34 or 35 inches to 39 or 40 inches in just eight weeks. Indeed, the pictures look impressive. But closer examination revealed that all the women in the "before" pictures had very poor posture and since they were fully clothed it was impossible to tell what kind of supporting bra they were wearing. The "after" pictures, in addition to demonstrating better posture, also have the women wearing bikini bathing suits with a top that looks like it gives considerable uplift.

Seizing upon the opportunity to do a quick experiment, I whipped out my tape measure and rounded up a few volunteers. I had them simulate the poor posture illustrated in the magazine ad and measured them. I then had them stand properly and re-measured them. All subjects increased their bustline by at least two inches, including myself and another man who volunteered for the experiment. The women in the ad were very well endowed to begin with and I am sure that an uplift bra would account for another inch or two. There is little doubt that exercise muscles in the chest can maximize a bustline, but it cannot make the breast itself any larger. I think that you would be perfectly safe to follow the recommendations in the ad, but I doubt that you have to spend $9.95 for an exerciser to find out what to do. Check with the people in the physical education department of your school.

QUESTION: I was told by a doctor that hickies on the breast can lead to breast cancer. Do you know if there is any truth in that or is he just trying to spoil part of my fun?

ANSWER: Hickies, for the uninformed, are bruises produced by application of strong suction to a small area of skin resulting in blood leaking out of superficial capillaries. Some people use the term to refer to similar small bruises that result from bites. The term is almost always confined to bruises produced in the course of lovemaking or other affectionate play. Occasionally, a small child might be seen with a hickey-like lesion resulting from playing a suction cup dart on his forehead. The idea of hickies causing breast cancer sounds preposterous and I imagine that the physician you saw was either jealous or kidding you and you didn't realize it.

Biting and nibbling, in addition to other forms of oral stimulation during sex play, are found in quite a few mammals other than humans. A possible biological explanation for the pleasurable sensations of oral activity in a sexual context is suggested by the fact that parts of the brain responding to oral and genital sensations are located next to each other and stimulation of the oral areas results in excitation of the genital area.

Sentinel's Top Ten

by Sports Editor
Rick Hayden

Oklahoma has been appointed heir apparent to the NCAA football throne by the Sentinel sports staff. Though rated number 2 in the "other" (AP-UPI) polls, The Sentinel feels that the Sooners' composite score of 117-3 thus far in the season deserves a number one ranking.

Southern Cal., #2, has swapped places with Oklahoma in The Sentinel's ratings. Colorado, another big-eight team, is #3. Tennessee and Alabama, both of whom could win the National Championship if Oklahoma or USC falters, are rated 4th and 5th and will play each other in the future.

Team	Votes
1. Oklahoma	96
2. USC	92
3. Colorado	80
4. Tennessee	70
5. Alabama	60
6. Ohio State	50
7. Nebraska	45
8. LSU	30
9. Michigan	20
10. Arizona State	9

Blumenthal Plugs Physical Fitness

by Assoc. Sports Editor
Michael Klang

KJC's physical education department has imported an instructor from Las Vegas who doesn't gamble, smoke, or drink. "When you live in Las Vegas, you know not to gamble," stated Mr. Blumenthal in a recent Sentinel interview. Blumenthal, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ Of Latter Day Saints (the Mormon Church) adheres to the Mormon policy of not drinking alcoholic beverages. "We don't drink coffee or tea, either. God has given us the stewardship of our bodies, and we are expected to maintain them in the best possible condition."

Mr. Blumenthal came to Kennesaw by way of Northside Junior High in Vegas, where he coached and taught. When asked how he heard about KJC, Blumenthal explained that "I was interviewed by Dr. Harris in Houston at the National Convention of the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation. While visiting the campus in March and June, I was impressed by both the administration and P.E. Department."

Mr. Blumenthal reminds one of a history professor, neatly trimmed hair, goatee, and knowledgeable, easy-going manner; but his favorite hobby, rodeo-riding and observing, illustrates that he could not be satisfied in the less exciting atmosphere of a classroom. Needless to say, Blumenthal "enjoys athletics and working with young people."

Not wanting to let Mr. Blumenthal get off the hook too easily, The Sentinel asked him how his work justified his philosophy of life: "I feel that one of my main goals in life is to help people keep fit so they can enjoy life."

Mr. Blumenthal enjoys life with his expectant wife and his two children, Gina and Christopher.
