Grievance Comm. In Dire Straits

by Paul Flanagan

The Social Science Grievance Committee is in trouble. The problem is that, at the present time, the committee may cease to exist.

The problem began when committee member Harry Whitehead put a ballot box in the student services building in order to solicit nominations. He found that after a week there had still been no nominations.

This worries Whitehead because in the past year the Grievance Committee has been the student's point of leverage in the Social Science department where he has been able to air his gripes about the faculty and curriculum. This year the committee's suggestions were helpful in having black history, anthropology, and pre-law added to the programs of study. Committee suggestions also aided Dr. Beggs, chairman of Social Science division, in his annual evaluation of instructors.

Nonetheless, the situation has reached the point where the Grievance Committee may cease to exist because of apathy. Disgusted with this student apathy, Whitehead will not stand for re-election to the committee.

To get the view from the faculty side, this reporter interviewed Tom Scott, faculty chairman of the committee. Scott differed with Whitehead, saying that there are indeed students interested in serving on the committee.

The Grievance Committee was born last winter when the Social Science faculty committee attempted to head off discontent by calling a meeting in room 202 of the Social Science building. That meeting elected the first of two committees. The original committee was composed of Dr. Thompson, Mr. Keith, and Mr. Scott for the faculty; and Del Eastman, Faye McCord, and Harry Whitehead for the students.

The committee met throughout the spring quarter to air student grievances.

The elections have not yet been rescheduled, and there are no definite plans for the future.

Students who are interested in serving on the Social Science Grievance Committee should act quickly before the committee fades away. There are places open for three student members and three alternatives. To become nominated for a committee seat, a person need only put his name in the ballot box in the student center.

The committee's decisions are advisory in nature in that the committee makes its suggestions to the division chairman. Dr. Beggs encourages the continuation of the committee.

Veterans Reveal Plans

by Gary Simmers

In a meeting of the Veteran's Club on Oct. 5, it was announced that anyone who is a veteran and feels that he needs extra help with his studies is eligible for $50 a month from the Veteran's Administration for private tutoring.

The club announced plans for purchasing POW, MIA (Prisoner of War, Missing in Action) bracelets and distributing them to the students for donations.

The initiation of a bowling league on campus was also discussed as a possibility in the near future.

The proposed Crisis Center still needs interested students to help with research and planning to produce a guideline of operation which would be acceptable to the administration and to the Board of Regents. All students interested in devoting a few minutes a week to this should contact Harry Whitehead, Chip Russel, or Kathy Sherlock.

Heap Takes A Trip

by Alfred Cabey

On September 22, members of the Higher Education Achievement Program (HEAP) at Kennesaw Junior College visited the historic site of Kennesaw Mountain.

The students viewed a film about the history of "The Battle of Kennesaw" and the role Kennesaw Mountain played during the Civil War.

The park rangers conducted a nature tour around the park grounds to acquaint the students with some of the ecological aspects of the park layout.

In addition, the students were afforded time to enjoy various recreational activities.

Board Revised

by John York

The SGA Constitution Review Committee has announced a major revision of the Judicial Board. At the October 4 SGA meeting, Grady Obier explained that the Judicial Board membership will be changed in order to "decentralize the judicial power and make the board more democratic."

According to committee recommendations, the new Judicial Board will be chaired by the SGA parliamentarian and will be composed of the SGA president, a non-voting faculty counselor, and three students elected at large from the SGA.

The present board is considerably larger, and is made up of the parliamentarian, all SGA officers and senators, and the non-voting faculty advisor.

Obier explained that the change is more significant than a mere reduction in the number of members. The elimination of SGA officers and senators from the Judicial Board will help prevent them from deliberating on the constitutionality of actions which they have already passed.

Obier added, however, that there will be no restrictions saying that officers and senators

Players Needed

The Marietta Symphony needs more players for the coming season. If you or any member of your family play an orchestral instrument and would like to join a community orchestra, we would like to have you join us. We rehearse on Monday evenings from 8:00 until 10:00 in the band room at Wheeler High School on Holt Road in East Marietta. For any further information call Mrs. Bennett at 428-5275 or Mrs. Louis Gibson at 428-0035. There will be at least five public performances this year — the first the Loli-Pops at Kennesaw Junior College on October 29th.

Charlie Brown

The cast has been determined for the Kennesaw Junior College production of "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown."

The parts are as follows:
Charlie Brown-Mr.

Walter Rydell, Linus-Mr. Russell York, Schroeder-Casey Gordon, Snoopy-Mr. Jon Menick, Lucy-Bobby Whitfield, and P. Patty-Rebecca Wheeler.

Sam Nicotine: The Library Episode

by Gary Simmers

PROLOGUE: Our hero, Sam Nicotine, a smoker, is looking for a place to study when he spies the student center.

Part I: In the Student Center, our hero sits down at one of the tables, places his books down on a soggy french fry laced with ketchup, and puffs away on his "Marlboro." The clamour of the buzzing students and the background music of the "popcorn song" create an excellent atmosphere for puffing but it's a little too hairy for Sam to attempt any reasonable intake of knowledge.

Part II: Our hero, still undaunted, not to be undone by a minor hindrance, decides to migrate to the peaceful serenity of the quadrangle, where he can blow smoke rings to his heart's content. Just as he sits down in the grass with his favorite brand secured between his lips and "Paradise Lost" placed carefully in the palm of his hand so the pages do not blow asunder, he promptly chokes as a strange flying object makes a clean part on his temple. "What the hell," our hero exclaims! Ah, 'tis a frisbee slightly off its flight pattern. Sam, being a gracious sort, relinquishes his claim to the trampled patch of grass and gallantly exits from the realm of the frisbee into the waiting arms of the great "mother of knowledge," the library.

Part III: "Ah," Sam sighs, "the library. That great hall of study where man is master, and the textbook the slave." With a look of triumph, he carefully extracts a cigarette from its crumpled home, savoring the delightful aroma. A cloud of smoke rises from his lips. "There will be no smoking except in the lounge," screeches a voice.

Our hero, face aglow, cups his cigarette and slinks over to the lounge, edging his way inside. Once safely through the door, he sits in the floor and opens his book. "Whoops, sorry man," rasps a burley voice as Sam extracts the corner of his book from his eye.

Sam tries to crunch up into the corner even further and again proceeds to study. "It's amazing," Sam thinks aloud, "Milton makes this so real that I can actually see the smoke billowing up from the depths of Hell." Soon the smoke becomes so thick that Sam can hardly distinguish the words in the book. Slowly, he is overcome with waves of euphoria as the smoke from a hundred brands assaults his senses. Reeling, gasping for air, our hero exits from the lounge.

EPILOGUE: Sam Nicotine sits in his seat in Lit. and stares at the "F" on his paper. Sam resigns himself to his fate, another victim of the rule that prohibits smoking in the individual study cubicles in the campus library.

Vox Populus

Dear Editor:

It has come to our attention that there are no facilities on campus available to those who wish to study in a quiet location and smoke at the same time.

The Conference Room in the library is ideal for study when it is not in use, but unfortunately it is relatively noisy with those people meeting there who are not talking elsewhere in the library; also it is the only room where smoking is permitted.

The study rooms would be the logical location for study but here again there is a drawback because no smoking is permitted.

Our suggestion is that there be a compromise in one of the above locations. Either smoking in the study cubicles or restrict talking in the Conference Room.

The Veterans Club

Dear Editor:

I am disappointed with the small turn-out for the orientation dance which was held last Friday night (Oct. 29, our parentheses). Less than 100 people were fortunate enough to enjoy the music of "Tractor" which is one of the most promising groups to ever perform at KJC. Since our student activities fees pay for entertainment, refreshments, and the use of the student activities building for these dances, I think it's a shame that so few enjoy what so many have paid for.

Maybe the Sentinel staff can generate more interest in activities similar to this dance. Informing the student body that the SGA does not fool around when it comes to entertainment may result in a larger scheduled attendance at the next scheduled dance or similar activity.

Name Withheld
Upon Request

Dear Editor:

Recently, I sent letters to the postsecondary education and lending communities explaining the effect of new, emergency legislation upon the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. In my letters, I included an information sheet for students and requested that it be made available to all who were interested in receiving Federal financial aid.

I would appreciate your assistance in helping us to reach as many additional students as possible with this information.

As you know, the Education Amendments of 1972 made significant changes in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. Perhaps of greatest personal interest to students was the establishment of new conditions under which the Federal Government would pay the interest on their loans. Since the 1972 amendments went into effect for this program only 8 days following enactment, the changes caused a great deal of confusion and loan activity was delayed.

Because this delay occurred near the beginning of a new academic year when students need loans to cover educational costs, the President asked for emergency legislation and the Congress concurred immediately. The emergency legislation, which the President signed on August 19, reinstates until March 1, 1973, the rules that governed the program prior to July 1, 1972. The one exception is that students must submit a notarized affidavit affirming that the loan proceeds will be used only for education purposes.

We have attached a sheet explaining rules that again apply to the program. We have also enclosed information for those who received loans after June 30 and prior to August 19 (when interim regulations based on the Education Amendments of 1972 were in effect).

We are making every effort to keep students informed of changes in this vitally important program. Thank you for your help.

Sincere best wishes,

Joseph P. Cosand

Vice is Nice

by Lucy Worley

Three of us returned Wednesday night from an NEC convention. We had received word Friday afternoon that the convention would be in Charleston, S.C. and we might find it very beneficial, to attend. We did. The Southeastern Unit of the National Entertainment Conference (NEC) was held from Saturday afternoon until Tuesday afternoon in the Francis Marion Hotel. It was a weekend of listening to talent, to agents, to students, and to yourself. The only thing that we regretted was that we had such a short notice that most of the people we tried to contact could not come.

The entire conference was one great learning experience. The agents, for the most part, really were concerned about our budgets for our school, and what performers would give us the most for our money. When checking into the prices for some performers, one agent suggested that I not buy one of his groups because he said that they were on a real ego trip and not worth the exorbitant price they were asking! The performers themselves were willing and anxious to talk to anyone who wanted to talk to them. They weren't so caught up in themselves that they couldn't have time for anyone else. One of the neatest things that happened was a jam session that was held in one of the suites in the hotel on Saturday night. It was impromptu and involved several of the entertainers who were staying at the hotel. There was very little personal jealousy going on between the performers or the agents—they enjoyed each others successes, and when any hassles came up they helped each other out.

There is going to be a National NEC convention in Cincinnati during February. As soon as I get more information on it I will let everyone know. At least we have some advanced notice on the national convention, so it won't be like it was last Friday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. when I was trying to find someone else to go to Charleston with me!

S.G.A.'s Lucy Worley

Enough of that. What I want to remind everyone of is that the Senatorial elections will be held this month. Anyone who has before believed that the people in SGA are a select, elite group now have the opportunity to join us. The group is always open, and anyone who is willing can become a part. All we have some advanced petition to Dean Carol Martin's office. The only requirement is a 2.0 average or better if you are not a first quarter Freshman. If you are a first quarter freshman, you are still urged to run for Senate—we need you!!

See you. Remember as the President of Vice I wish to remind you that moderation in the pursuit of vice is no virtue!

Problems Cured

by Joanne Butler

When in the course of human events, young adults sometimes find themselves in particularly delicate and frightening situations in their struggle to achieve maturity...In other words, we often get into a lot of trouble with no one to turn to.

Could you imagine the reactions of your parents if you had to confront them with certain problems: For example: drug abuse; pregnancy or how to prevent it; and venereal disease.

Seriously, being strung out on dope, pregnant, or suspecting that one has VD is just the kind of anxiety that pushes people into depression, desperation, and maybe even suicide. Face up people, it happens every day.

You are indeed fortunate if you can afford the expensive ordeal of a private doctor independently. If this is true in your case, don't wait around. Venereal disease won't disappear; pregnancy gets worse as the weeks roll by; drug addiction is almost impossible to kick without professional treatment.

Don't despair, though, if you're penniless, because there are dedicated people who want to help you. They are at The Community Crisis Center in Atlanta.

They work for free, and no appointment is necessary. All they ask is a few hours of your time.. Call 892-1358. Those who suspect pregnancy can obtain information from Problem Pregnancy Information Service at 875-4640.

Talk to these good folks about your problem, and, good luck.

And when Dawn showed again with her rosy fingers the long-suffering sophomore, son of Greider, and seed of Humanity lay spaced on the terra firma. And now gray-eyed Responsibility, daughter of Bureaucracy, leaned near to the Minnow, charging him, "Be off, oh long-suffering one.

Heap Holds Elections

by Lindsey Columbus Jr.

The Higher Education Achievement Program has started off this election year with some new faces. There are ten candidates for the office of HEAP Student Representative, four of whom will be elected.

Student Representatives will meet every Monday in room 223 of the Social Science building at 12:00 to discuss the progress of the HEAP program. These students will have the opportunity to openly discuss their views.

The ten candidates are: Anita T. Allison, John Brittan, David Dunaway, Samuel Foster, James Lavender, Michael Rice, Pierce Slade, Larry Wilburn, Elaine Williams, Bruce Zobel. They were scheduled to present their speeches to the voters in an assembly on Friday, October 6. Later the votes were to be tallied by two teachers.

"The students in the HEAP program have more voice in the way the program is being run than anywhere in the state," said Mr. Stewart Phillips, Director of the HEAP Program.

Reporter Explores Music Convention

by Paul Flanagan

The National Entertainment Committee held its regional convention in Charleston, South Carolina, from Saturday, Sept. 30 to Tuesday Oct. 2.

This affair, which is basically a sales convention, is an interesting example of how far salesmen will go to dress up their pitches in idealistic sounding cliches, inventing names worthy of N.A.S.A. to describe what remains a scheme to push their entertainments onto eager campuses after first extracting a hefty chunk of their modest budgets. Nonetheless, it wasn't all much ado about nothing. Most of the groups and performers were of a high quality generally, and there were a few performers who are clearly someday going to be very big indeed.

The conference began with the signing in and registration of conventioners at the Francis Marion Hotel. This was accomplished quickly enough except for one student who had tremendous difficulty getting a room.

Meanwhile the advertising salesmen, not wanting to waste time, had already set up their booths in the nearby municipal auditorium. However, few showed up for these exhibits at this time since bags had to be unpacked and clothes arranged. Also, many of the delegates didn't even have any inkling of where Municipal Auditorium was located.

At 5:30 Saturday, the opening banquet began. This banquet was remarkable, not because of the food which wasn't too bad but because of a rather whimsical keynote speech which gave the essence of the whole affair and what the student entertainment

ACTIVITIES SCHEDULED

There will be a lecture entitled "Women Writers in America," Oct. 12 at noon, in the seminar room of the library. The lecture will be given by Mrs. Franklin Nash who has lectured in Europe on American Literature in British Schools.

There will be a film, "The Secret of Michelangelo," on Oct. 10 at noon, in Room 202 of the Humanities Building.

programmer can get out of it.

What it said was this: the emphasis is on a work shop approach. The objectives will be complicated, but, however, the proceedings will always have connotations of fun and getting involved. Creativity will be channeled into a long list of activities, and the exchange between students should be interesting. There's a versatile group here and enthusiasm is encouraged. In other words the objective of the convention is to get the participants interested in as much of the merchandise as possible.

This banquet was phase I of a softening up campaign on the students, designed to weaken their sales resistance. Phase II was a "Moonlight Cruise" around the Charleston Harbor which was very enjoyable, though somewhat fizzled near the end as it got colder and damper.

Sunday was when the real nitty-gritty began. The exhibits pulled into high gear with videotape and film showcases, and the students found out where Municipality Auditorium was located, and the haggling began.

There was a short pause from 11:00 to 12:00 to hold a general session, which elected a steering committee and which procured a bid for hosting the next convention.

After lunch the first of the talent showcases was held, a sort of battle of the bands which bombarded the audience with music and just plain noise. These took up the bulk of the convention, along with several workshops which showed delegates how to get the best groups that they were working with during this time; pens were on the move and many deals were made. Finally there was a closing luncheon on Tuesday and the Convention passed into history.

The Sentinel's list of the top ten groups that performed at the convention is as follows:

1. Vince Vance and the Valiants
2. Stompin Suede Greasers
3. Hydra
4. Gene Cotton
5. Ju'ba
6. Siege
7. Black Lash
8. Denny Brooks
9. Great Midwestern Hillbilly Experiment
10. Lester Plant and the National Grass cannot run for election to the board. "My hope is that we'll get three people to run who are not affiliated with the organizational structure of the SGA," he said.

The SGA approved the committee's revisions by a vote of 8-0, and the recommendation, along with 17 other amendments, will be attached to the ballots used during the senatorial elections scheduled for October 17-

18. The student body will approve or reject the amendments at this time.

If the change receives approval from the student body, a special election will then be scheduled to recruit the three board members.

The four members of the SGA Constitution Review Committee are: Bill Wheeler, Cathy Sherlock, Lucy Worley, and Grady Obier.

Youth Fare Abolished?

Washington, D.C. — While nine million college students are returning to campus, the Civil Aeronautics Board is wondering when to break the news of their decision.

In January, 1968, CAB examiner Arthur S. Present ruled that discount fares limited to persons 12 to 21 years old are "unjustly discriminatory" because age alone isn't a valid distinction between passengers. Shortly thereafter, Mr Present received mail from college students by the sack load. Their expression of opinion was so overwhelming that the CAB ruled that airline youth fare discounts don't unjustly discriminate against adults. The board put off any decision on a petition to abolish the discounts until a study of whether the fares were reasonable in relation to carrier costs was completed.

After four years of study, the CAB planned to make an announcement of their decision in August, an official stated. Sources at several airlines agree the announcement will probably be delayed until after the November elections. They concur that chances for the fare to continue look bleak.

Originally, youth fares were challenged by National Trailways Bus System, a trade association of bus companies, and by TCO Industries, Inc.,

formerly Transcontinental Bus System, Inc.

U.S. Airlines were split on the issue during the examiner's investigation; 14 of the carriers offering youth discounts supported them and 10 opposed them or didn't take a position.

Over $300.-million is spent by young people on youth fare tickets annually. Each year over 1-million youth fare cards are bought by young people who believe that they are entitled to its benefits until age 22. If the fare is abolished, privileges of the card would be revoked.

It is interesting to note the delayed announcement of the CAB decision comes in the first election year allowing youth to vote at age 18. Such news might play an important part in the elections if young people sent inquiries to the presidential candidates.

Attention Students

The '71-'72 College Catalog is finally available and may be picked up at the Registrar's office. This catalog is necessary to inform students of their responsibilities while attending Kennesaw Junior College. Revised academic programs are contained in the catalog as well as student Academic Regulations including: Attendance Regulations, Scholastic Regulations, Examination and Degree Requirements. It is each student's personal responsibility to be familiar with all of these regulations.

Sophomores especially should examine their program of study in the new catalog to determine whether or not they would like to change from the program outlined in the 71-72 catalog. Areas 1 and 3 of the core curriculum have been drastically changed to include new and exciting electives to replace certain previously required courses. These new courses include: History 253; American Diplomatic History since 1865; History 254, Black American History, plus many others. Be sure to get your copy soon and take advantage of these outstanding opportunities.

Movie Review

Unconsummated Marriage

by Gary Simmers

Despite the exploitation of female flesh, the movie, "Bluebeard," starring Richard Burton, leaves much to be desired.

The story begins with the war hero, Burton, returning home to the fatherland after World War I. Burton fits nicely into the stereotyped male superego role that his countrymen offer him.

Burton, having descended from royalty, returns to his castle and begins to court the attentions of all the lovely frauleins who apparently want to become Mrs. Bluebeard. Bluebeard's only problem seems to be that the fact that he is immediately over-critical of his new brides and devises various ways with which to insure their timely demise.

Of course, these insights into the Baron's character are not revealed until he meets his last lovely, Anne, played by Joey Heatherton (of late Bob Hope fame).

At this point, we learn that "Mr. Germany" is not all he is cracked up to be. He is all man except in one very important (to his brides at any rate) area. It seems he is impotent and has never consummated his marriages. This, too, we view through Bluebeard's former playmates "on ice" in a freezer room of the castle. As you might expect, Miss Heatherton is immediately admonished for her curiosity and entered in the little "black" book. I'll stop the action here just in case you want to see the movie. After all, something ought to be salvaged for the $2.00 admission price.

In summation, "Bluebeard" is basically the story of a man with an Oedipus complex, the placement of the mother as the object for sexual love. In this case, impotence is induced and the result is a negative approach to relations with women. Despite the cast of lovely ladies...Raquel Welch, Virna Lisi, Natalie Delon, Joey Heatherton, and others...who are "revealed" in feminine splendor (except Miss Welch who apparently still views that sort of things as a definite no no), the movie had to resort to an occasional injection of the comic medium into what appears on the surface to be a serious film. Ultimately, "Bluebeard" tends to make one appreciate the saga of Snoopy and the Red Baron.

Play Alice Loud

For all of you who are raving Cooper fans, I will donate this article to Alice Cooper, Michael Bruce, Bob Ezrin, Dennis Dunaway, Neal Smith, and Glen Buxton. They are the men who make up the acid group "Alice Cooper." I am sure Mr. Cooper and his Boa would be happy to welcome you into their world of music with it's loud bass drum beat, it's wild slide guitar and their far-out vocalist.

Many of you may have heard about the rumor that Alice played Eddie Haskell on the "Leave It To Beaver" show. If this is so, Warner Brothers Record Company's public relations office knows little about their dynamic rock star. I feel that this is very improbable.

The Doctor's Bag

by Arnold Werner, M.D.

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

QUESTION: Sometime ago I wrote you about a compulsive cheek biting problem. You suggested that I was probably anxious about something. A divorce solved 90 per cent of my problems and the counseling the other ten per cent. Anyway, I haven't bit my cheek in two years now.

I have another minor problem or question. I worry about alcoholism because my fathers has this problem. Currently, I am going with a guy (we get along fine) who drinks about six beers a day and on the weekends gets what he calls drunk on beer, about 12 beers per day on Friday and Saturday. He is never obnoxious in any way; in fact, his disposition often improves with beer. My question is simply, is this a dangerous pattern? He never touches hard liquor because both of his parents have drinking problems.

ANSWER: There is no question that your friend has a very serious drinking problem. The amount of alcohol he consumes is such that he most likely would have some withdrawal symptoms if he had to stop suddenly. One clue to the extent of the problem is your comment that his disposition gets better as he drinks more. The natural question is: What happens to his disposition and how does he feel if he drinks less than what he does?

Getting drunk on beer is a personally interesting phenomenon. Unlike drinking hard liquor where small amounts are potent, it takes a prodigious effort to handle the volume of fluid involved in continually drinking beer. The drink a quart, urinate a quart cycle get tedious, leading a heavy drinking acquaintance of mine to observe that one doesn't really buy beer, one rents it.

People with drinking problems often come from families where one or both parents also have a drinking problem. Such a situation is another example of maladaptive patterns of dealing with stress being adopted by children. The situation is enhanced by cultural or sub-cultural attitudes toward alcohol that emphasize anti-social aspects of its use or forbidden uses. The problem is complex in that the forbidden aspects of alcohol use can be so emphasized that rigidly non-drinking families can provide the setting for a rebellious member to use alcohol as a destructive device. A startling number of women with alcoholic fathers tend to get involved with men who also have a drinking problem. Unless your friend can see his drinking as being a problem that he needs some help in solving, and unless he can alter his pattern of drinking, is headed for big trouble.

QUESTION: After my boyfriend and I have sexual intercourse, he feels like all his insides have moved up towards his chest and his stomach is empty. He has a great deal of pain and says that everything just tightens up. Is this normal and what can be done to prevent it?

ANSWER: Some people have a very strong reaction to orgasm which includes intense abdominal sensations. Most likely this is what your boyfriend has and the best advice would be for him to lie still following orgasm; in particular he shouldn't stand on his head. If the problem is very severe, medication to decrease gastrointestinal spasms might help. By the way, is it better or worse on an empty stomach?

We would like to introduce Miss Christine Crawford, who is attending the HEAP Program. Christine graduated with honors from Washington High School in 1972. Here at Kennesaw, she plans to further her education by studying to be a registered nurse.

Christine believes in Black Power and thinks that the best way to get it is in school, not in the street. She feels that a good education is a must.

"If you want to get ahead, stay in school and learn, baby, learn, instead of burn, baby, burn," Christine says.

Christine, like many of the girls on campus, is attractive. She is proud of being Black, and this shows in her picture.

When your years pass, and you are on top, look back at the Kennesaw HEAP Program and just say "Thanks a lot."

Flight Into Breakdown

by Caroline Harkleroad

How can a visiting British professor, overtaken as a progressive leader by the American youths around him and disastrously in love with one of his students, overcome the painful situation? Through headlong flight into a breakdown—at least, according to The Occupation, a moving, funny, lively new novel by the brilliant young English author, David Caute.

Steven Bright is a visiting professor in New York. The girl who obsesses him is less a person than a symbol for his masochism. Rebellious students, with whom he argues savagely and pitifully, humiliate and outrage him after invading his office—or is it his mind? In fact, he keeps intermittent control over them by assuring himself that they are figments of his imagination.

With dazzling sleight of hand, the author shuffles transparencies of subjective and objective reality so that they overlap, separate and come together again. He spares his protagonist nothing and his reader little, but the novel's progress is so swift and variegated, its tone of black farce so astringent, that it creates a mood of elation rather than one of despair.

David Caute's other books include At Fever Pitch, Comrade Jacob, The Decline of the West. He is also the author of plays, essays, and political studies.

Intermural Competition

Aardvarks Crush Opponents

by Sports Editor Rick Hayden

The Aardvarks, a team with an unquenchable thirst for scoring and relentless defense, have established themselves as the team to beat in KJC's Women's Volleyball League. The Aardvarks took the Robins in straight games Oct. 2, 15-5 and 15-4. At first the Robins seemed ample competition, but the Aardvarks took control midway through the first game and coasted the rest of the way. The Eaglettes, who had previously disposed of the Cardinals 15-3 and 15-2, was the next team to meet the Aardvarks "Doomsday Machine."

And the Eaglettes lost in straight games, 4-15 and 0-15, on Oct. 4. When asked to name the Aardvarks outstanding players, Brenda Amos, the captain, cited everyone on the Roster with special attention given to D. Orford, T. Keith, D. Loftice, and D. Adams.

The only other game scheduled for the 4th was decided by forfeit when the Cardinals failed to show up for their game with Nan Mulkey's Robins. The Robins were awarded both games 15-0, and 15-0.

Roadrunners Win

The Roadrunners and Gamecocks trudged their way to a 0-0 halftime score before the Roadrunners tallied three straight times in the second half. Wendall Porter, the RR's unstoppable end, caught two long passes from QB Fuller for TD's and halfback Green ran for another.

The Gamecocks lone score came on a Gary Lee to Bob Tucker pass with the extra point being awarded by penalty.

The game was marred by a display of poor sportsmanship by both teams, which resulted in numerous penalties.

Puma Shut-Out Ripples

The Puma's divided their scoring 12 points in each half, showed off a high-scoring offense and a stingy defense October 4 as they routed the Ripples, 24-0. Four different players, Dye, Waddel, Coppola, and Mills, evidenced the balance on the Puma team by each scoring a touchdown.

Baseball Overexpanded

by Assoc. Sports Editor Michael Klang

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn once said, "Baseball has overexpanded." In my opinion the Commissioner was right.

It has become apparent to Baseball fans that there are not enough cities that are able to successfully support Major League Sports. It is also apparent that our national pastime has too many teams and the talent is spread too thin across the teams. For example, the San Diego Padres could not draw even 600,000 fans to the ball park, finishing in the cellar of the National Western Division. (The Mets could draw 6000,000 fans in one night if Shea Stadium was big enough.) Furthermore, the Padres show no signs of improvement in the near future. The circumstances are the same with other teams. For instance, Cleveland, Texas, and California are becoming perennial losers. If these four teams could be dissolved, a great service would be done to baseball. (The players from the teams would be drafted to the remaining teams.)

This may not be the answer to the problem, but it is clear that something needs to be done to rekindle fan interest in Baseball.
