South African Journalist coming to KC

In the spirit of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday and the civil rights movement, Donald Woods, a persecuted white South African journalist, will be speaking on the KC campus Jan. 21 and 22.

Donald Woods is a fifth-generation white South African descended from British and Irish pioneers who settled in South Africa in 1820. He studied law at the University of Cape Town before entering journalism, and became Editor-in-Chief of the long-established (114 years ago) South African newspaper, the Daily Dispatch, in 1965 at the age of 31.

His editorial attacks on the racial policy of apartheid drew increasing fire from the South African government and from many white readers of the newspaper, and during twelve years of editorship he was prosecuted in court seven times by the State under South Africa's strict publication laws restricting criticism of governmental policy.

The author of three books on South Africa, "Biko," a biography which was translated into twelve languages, "Asking for Trouble," and award-winning autobiography, and "Black and White," about the South African situation, he travels extensively throughout the world, briefing governments and addressing audiences on the subject of apartheid.

For several years he has toured American campuses, urging divestment as a means of bringing economic pressure to bear on the South African government to end apartheid, and has testified before Congressional and Senate committees on the subject.

In 1977 he was arrested and punished without legal process for publishing details of the killing of his friend, the young black leader Steve Biko, by officers of the State Security Police. He was subjected to banning orders, being forbidden to write, to speak publicly, to be quoted in the press, to speak with more than one other person at a time or even to be in a room with more than one other person. This virtual house arrest was imposed for a five year period.

But three months after his arrest, following personal attacks on members of his family and even on his five-year old daughter by officers of the State Security Police, he escaped with his wife and five children across the border into the black-ruled country of Lesotho. The family reached London, England, where they now live and where Donald Woods works as a writer, broadcaster and lecturer on apartheid.

Mr. Woods is being presented by the Chautauqua Committee of the KC Student Union.

On Tuesday evening, he will give a lecture at 8:00 and Wednesday morning at 9:00, there will be a panel discussion with questions from the audience being fielded.

Dr. Royce Shaw will moderate the discussion and Political Science majors Richard Gilbert, Eva Johnson, and Jeff Browne will serve on the panel.

Donald Woods, author of three books on South Africa, will be on campus Jan. 21 and 22.

Medical College of Georgia defendants seek removal from College Press Law Center

The Board of Regents of the Medical College of Georgia and Brian Stone, a student editor, have pursued two different legal channels to have their names removed from a pending libel suit.

The suit was brought by a nursing student at the Medical College of Georgia against the school's satire magazine, the Cadaver. The nursing student, Susan Brooks, wrote a letter to the editor criticizing the style of humor which she labeled as fit to line "the bottom of bird cages." The editors wrote a scathing reply which Brooks has labeled as libelous.

Brooks lost her case at trial when a state court judge granted a summary judgment motion in favor of the Cadaver, stating that the publication was "a satirical articulation of opinion." The judge also considered the editors' reply as being provoked by Brooks' letter. The provoked libel doctrine states that the one at fault can not recover civil damages for retaliation in kind. Brooks appealed the finding of provoked libel to the Georgia Court of Appeals and won. The Cadaver then appealed to the Georgia Supreme Court, which upheld the lower court's finding that Brooks had not in fact provoked a harsh response by her letter (Stone v. Brooks, 322 S.E.2d 728 (1984)). The case is now back at the trial level to determine if Brooks was in fact libeled.

Stone, one of Cadaver's student editors, recently paid Brooks an undisclosed amount for a "covenant not to sue." This agreement removes his name from the suit but does not waive Brooks' right to continue her suit against the other parties.

In addition, a motion is pending to have the Medical College of Georgia Board of Regents dropped as a defendant in Brooks' suit. The senior assistant for the state attorney general in Atlanta, Alfred Evans Jr., who is representing the Board, said that he would be surprised if the board was left in the suit. "I don't see any connection between the Board of Regents and the student newspaper," he said. Evans also felt that there had been a statute of limitations violation in that the Board had not been named in the suit until over two years after the incident occurred while the Georgia statute sets a one year limit. Even if the Board remains in the suit, Evans said he feels that Brooks' chances of recovery against the Board of Regents are "slim to none."

Brooks' lawyer, Victor Hawk, said that a jury trial to determine if Brooks was in fact libeled should be held by January 1986.

Winter registration is good for some and bad for others

by Cheri Norris

Confused about registration, who isn't? This quarter the confusion seemed to be with the time.

If one bothered to look at his or her time cards one would have noticed that he or she could have registered anytime between 9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., Thursday or Friday.

The only problem was with those who showed up to register between 3:00 and 5:30. It seems that the registrar's office forgot to put that registration was closed between the hours of 3:00 and 5:30 on the registration time cards.

Lee Suddath, head of the registrar's office, admitted that this was a problem and said that it will be corrected next quarter.

Ms. Suddath commented, "It is the same as it has been every year and it was listed in the schedule of courses." New students as well as returning students still had some confusion.

Another problem Ms. Suddath relayed was the fact that many students never received their registration cards, because their addresses were incorrect. Ms. Suddath explained that many students who moved failed to notify the college and therefore did not receive their grades or their registration cards.

If a student has not received his or her grades, chances are they are at the registrar's office. Ms. Suddath urges all students who have moved to come by and fill out a change of address form at the registrar's office.

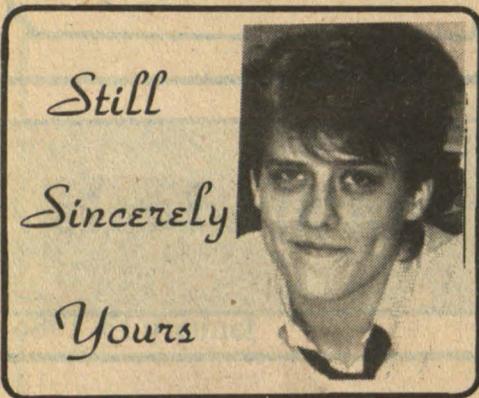

Students may not be receiving other mail from the college because of an incorrect address listed in the main computer in the registrar's office.

days and everyone gets a chance to test the waters of every class. What a deal! I'll give the Registrar's Office a "10" for Drop-Add, a "6" for registration.

The MLK Day Celebration is a great new happening on campus! Our President, Dr. Siegel, is a member of the MLK, Jr. State Holiday Commission and chair of the King Holiday Task Force for the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

KC is a "community leader" in the recognition of the new holiday. The Celebration Day promises to be a great success and KC should be proud to be pioneers of such a celebration.

For all of you Music majors, there's something new for you this week. At 10:00 a.m. this Thursday and Tuesday next week, Kathy Pollard, of the CAPS Center is holding a workshop entitled "Performance Anxiety for Music Students."

The title is self-explanatory in that the workshop deals with how to relieve anxiety while performing. Sounds like this could be most beneficial to any musician.

Although the music workshop is new, the idea is not. Ms. Pollard has been conducting test anxiety workshops since her arrival at KC six years ago.

She and Dr. Nancy Zumoff have been co-conducting math anxiety workshops for four years. And, Ms. Pollard successfully expanded the concept to include performance anxiety with the women's basketball team two and one half years ago.

From my understanding, the women's team has benefitted greatly from the program. So, music students, take advantage!

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sentinel Editor,

I am writing about the hijacking of the Egyptian Air jetliner, November 24th. Terrorism as defined by Webster is "the systematic use of terror as a means of coercion." I, like the majority of Americans I presume, want terrorism wiped out. It disgusted me to read how the young, navy, frogman was brutally beaten to death last June in a hijacking by Shi'ite moslems. Imagine your mother or father learning that you have been made to kneel, hands tied behind your back, shot in the back of the head, and left for dead in a pool of blood, or as a final insult: thrown out of the jet onto the tarmac. I do not understand the mentality of "terrorists."

We, as Americans though, must try to discern between "terrorists" and revolutionaries. There is a fine, a very fine line between the two. The western media has spoon fed us into thinking who are the "terrorists" and who are the freedom fighters. Generally, we categorize those that oppose our government as "terrorists." Why did our four marines get picked out and killed in El Salvador? Why do our bases in West Germany keep getting bombed? Why are Americans usually spot lighted for terror in Middle East hijackings? Why do third world countries never seem as grateful as we expect they should be?

Remember, we are dealing with politics, and I as an American suggest we always ask ourselves-why things happen. What are the facts? (Hard as they be to find.)

Before we go off "Rambo-ized" and pass judgement, lets just ask, WHY?

I do not endorse these acts of terror. I do not support the violence against innocent people. It sickens me to see women, children, and young men murdered and they do not even know why.

But, we as Americans must take responsibility for our government's actions. Examine the United States' foreign policies, examine Mr. Reagan's foreign policies and stances, and always try to ask why people must resort to unorthodox acts and understand the circumstances.

VIEWPOINT

Sentinel writer is now studying in Ireland

I have gone to Ireland. I don't say that to brag, but to offer an explanation. I have left this country to continue my education in another. I have left the world I know, to find a world which is very much different than my own.

In Ireland, there are no abortions, no contraceptives, no kissing a girl on the first date but maybe by the third, no touching any part of a girl's body that is covered by cloth. There are also supposed to be laws against the ownership of handguns. I support most of that. I'm sure Jerry Falwell would love to live in Ireland. Except for the fact that 78% of that country is Catholic. Sorry, Jerry. "Pope 1," Jerry minus 2 (that's for his stand on apartheid).

They do, however, have the Irish Republican Army in Ireland. That scares the hell out of me. The school I'll be going to is about a 40 minute drive from Belfast. The school by the way, for those of you who are interested, is called University College, Galway. They only accept 350 students a year (and how the HELL did I get in?). I'm afraid of the IRA just like any sane man would be. I've a little experience with those terrorists. They blew up a car during my last trip to England. I have scars, if you care to see them.

But all of this is really beside the point. You needed to know that to understand what I am about to tell you.

Many of you have touched my life in very special ways, and for that I thank you. You have helped a very cynical young man regain part of his faith in people. You did this in ways far too numerous to mention. Thanks. I would also like to thank a few of the various instructors I've had. Like Don Russ over in the English department; Randy Goodwin over in economics; and Valerie Noble wherever she may be.

I would also like to thank the ladies in the Student Activities Office; the people in the Union and of course the wonderful people on the various student publications, especially The Sentinel. For those people I will always have a warm space in my heart.

Sandy, keep trying, I know that eventually you'll get the world to save itself. Keep that innocent outlook, too. Thanks for the good times we've had. I hope we'll share a few more.

Adrienne, keep blushing at all those off-color jokes told in the office. Your blush is probably the reason most of them are told. You keep that innocent look, too. You made me feel very much at home, even when I felt alone.

Sissy, remember "Pickles and Beer" as long as you live. I've learned a great deal from you. You taught me patience, that I will carry with me to my grave. You have been a good friend.

Mark, I never really got a chance to know you. You were never around when I was. From the few brief encounters we had I did learn a little about confidence. I learned that sometimes being right and vocal are not the best thing. Good luck.

Michael, hang with it. Things have a way of working out for the best. Never give up on your dreams. Without dreams life loses a great deal of meaning.

Dr. Hopper, thanks for giving me so much to complain about.

To the rest of you I have failed to mention, forgive me. I have neither the space to time to tell all of you how wonderful you are. Besides, I've been sippy enough already. Let me get out of this with some dignity.

Oiin, you are the last person I address for one reason. You are the last person I figured I needed to say anything to. I didn't like you very much when I first met you. You reminded me that you have to get to know people before you can like or dislike them. Thanks for your kindness and sick sense of humor.

Well, its time to go. God, I hate flying. Good luck to all of you. In a strange way you have become my family. No man can ask for more, or expect to find anything greater than the friendships I have found here. God bless each of you.

I leave you with, appropriately enough, an Irish blessing:

"May the wind be at your back;
the road always rise to meet your feet,
the rains fall gentle upon your fields, and until we meet again
may God hold you in the palm of his hand."

Goodbye,

The "blue-jean dilemma" strikes again

By Layne Powell

The holidays are over. Christmas trees have been taken down, presents have been unwrapped, and waterpipes have been repaired. It seems as though all of those things would be enough to make me a little blue after Christmas—but they're not. It's the season that follows the holidays that makes me tremble with fear.

I should have been prepared for it. After all, it comes just like a bad dream, haunting me every year. But still, on the second of January, I always find myself asking the same foreboding question: "Did my blue-jeans shrink in the dryer?"

When I get presents on Christmas, I look forward to being able to put those gifts to good use. But as it is going right now, half of my gifts are either hanging in my closet or lying in my drawers unusable. Before I'll be able to enjoy my new Christmas gifts, I'll have to torture myself first. In other words, I'll have to go on a diet.

Being faced with this "blue-jean dilemma" year after year, I've reluctantly discovered many ways to lose weight. I must admit, however, that I have yet to find an enjoyable method of dieting. Very painful steps must be taken in order to fit into new Christmas clothes.

To begin with, I must make it through the post-Christmas Withdrawal Phase. This one is the most painful of all. Visions of sugarplums are still dancing in my head, but at the same time, I don't want a stomach like a bowl full of jelly. This predicament leaves me with only one of three choices:

1. Eat the bowl of jelly and have a stomach that resembles it when I laugh.
2. Eat the bowl of jelly and the sugarplums and never laugh.
3. Don't eat either one.

If I choose number three (which is the correct choice if dieting), then I can laugh without embarrassment. But if I don't eat either one, then I won't feel like laughing.

After I've suffered through the first few days of the post-Christmas Withdrawal Phase, I try to begin thinking in terms of diet and health as being interrelated. (In other words, I try to psych myself up for further torture.) Salad is the first word that comes to mind.

All of the restaurants have salad bars nowadays. I decided to go to one with a "diet attitude" one night. I paid $3.49 for my plate and headed toward the salad bar. I could feel the pounds and inches melting away as I caught a whiff of the lettuce.

But there was also another scent in the air. I couldn't quite make it out at first, but it soon began to flood my nose with memories of the pre-Christmas Binge Phase. Suddenly I recognized it. There on the salad bar was "real food." The restaurant had given me, a dieter, an empty plate and then headed me in the direction of my weakness. You can only guess the rest. (I had to get my money's worth, didn't I?)

Although salad bars didn't work for me, I've been having some success with the new diet foods. Many companies are now coming out with foods that contain fewer calories. One example is the new pancake syrup. Because it only has half of the number of calories as regular pancake syrup, I get to eat twice as much of it. Pancakes also taste a lot better than lettuce.

No matter which way I look at it though, dieting isn't any fun. It seems as though I would have learned that by now. But by the look of things (namely my stomach), the blue-jean dilemma will return next year too. I guess the only thing that I have learned about dieting is how much fun it is getting fat in the first place.

You can reduce the risk of heart attack in your family

Approximately 15 to 20 percent of all American employees have high blood pressure. 30 to 40 percent smoke. 20 to 25 percent are overweight. and only 10 to 30 percent exercise at least three times a week.

National health care costs now exceed $400 billion annually, including lost disability claims. Heart and blood vessel diseases account for more than $72.1 billion of the total costs.

With these facts in mind, the American Heart Association urges us to change the way we live so that our lives will be longer and healthier.

Clinical studies, laboratory investigations and population surveys show that certain personal characteristics and lifestyles point to increased danger of heart attack. These danger signs are called "risk factors".

The well-established risk factors are high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol, cigarette smoking, diabetes and obesity. Other factors that may affect a person's risk of heart attack are a sedentary lifestyle, an aggressive response to stress and certain drugs.

In the past two decades, millions of Americans have learned about these risk factors and have tried to modify them favorably by seeking medical attention and by changing the way they live.

Many adults have stopped smoking. The medical control of high blood pressure has greatly improved. The average cholesterol level has decreased continually over the past 20 years, probably due to changes in dietary habits and increased exercise.

This attempt to modify risk factors almost certainly has contributed to the declining death rate from heart disease in the United States. Overall, heart-related deaths have declined about 25 percent in the last 10 years.

What can we do to reduce the risk of heart disease? Here are some things the American Heart Association recommends:

1. If your blood pressure is high, keep it under control.
2. Don't smoke.
3. Achieve a desirable body weight.
4. Eat a diet low in saturated fats and cholesterol.
5. Engage in regular physical activity.

In efforts to reach everybody with these messages, the Heart Association has developed heart health curricula for youngsters from pre-school through 12th grade and a new "Heart At Work" program for employees at the worksite.

For more information on how you and your family can reduce your risk of heart disease, contact your local American Heart Association.

KC night school grads score well on real estate exam

from College Relations
 Fall graduates of a Kennesaw College continuing education course called Practices and Principles of Real Estate made an impressive showing on the licensing exam for salesmen offered by the Georgia Real Estate Commission a few weeks ago. All but two of the 28 KC students who took the November exam passed it, giving the school a 92.9 percent pass rate. Statewide, only 65.9 percent of the examinees passed the test, so Kennesaw's pass rate was 27 percent higher than the state average. Only one of the KC students who passed the exam was being retested—the rest took it in November for the first time. Course instructor James Clinkscales, a local realtor and author of the manual How to Get the Referral, will offer the eight-week night class again this winter, beginning January 21. He also teaches a course in real estate appraisal and the GREC-required six-hour refresher session for license renewal at Kennesaw. For information on these and other professional development courses, call the KC Continuing Education Department at 429-2959.

KC Professor receives statewide nursing award

from College Relations
 Annette Bairan, associate professor of nursing at KC, is the recipient of the Georgia Nurses Association's first annual Nurse Researcher Award.

The GNA cited Bairan for her extensive examination of prescription drug use and misuse patterns among the elderly, the topic of the dissertation she compiled for her doctorate degree. Bairan was recently asked to present papers detailing that research at conferences of the American Public Health Association and the Gerontological Society of America.

Bairan's study of drug use patterns revealed that the most common type of misuse among the elderly is underuse—patients either don't take enough of the prescribed medications, or they don't bother to have their prescriptions filled at all.

English as a second language helps International Students

from College Relations
 As Atlanta's population grows, the number of international students and business people in the area is rapidly expanding. Kennesaw College is meeting the needs of those that speak English as a second language with three special courses designed to break down communication barriers by improving English language skills.

"The courses will help students improve their listening, speaking, reading and writing capabilities while increasing their self-confidence and ability to interact in the community, at college and on the job," said Dr. Frank Pintozzi, chair of developmental studies at Kennesaw.

Students may take only one class, or two or all three concurrently. "English for Speakers of Other Languages," is offered evenings through the continuing education department. Students may register for this session up until the beginning of class January 21 by calling 429-2958.

Make a difference!

The Sentinel needs a spotter and a builder.

The spotter, who is also called the Managing Editor, is responsible for watching the campus and being aware of what might be of interest to our readers.

He or she assigns writers and/or photographers to cover the stories and then makes sure the stories are in by deadline.

The spotter's final job is to watch for errors and make corrections.

The job is not an easy one. However, if you are interested, self-motivated, ambitious and straight-forward, you could be the next Managing Editor.

The position pays $250 per quarter.

The builder, more commonly called the Production Manager, is responsible for the actual visual creation of the paper.

He or she takes the correct stories and photos from the Managing Editor, and the ads from the Business Manager and gives them to the typesetter to be typeset. Then he or she draws an outline of the newspaper.

The builder then gives the outline, or "lay-out" to his or her production staff and with the typeset material, they "paste-up" the paper. This is much like putting together a puzzle.

The builder's job is finished when the newspaper is given to the printer.

If you are patient, artistic, self-motivated, ambitious, sincere, and interested in $250 per quarter, this job could be for you.

KENNESAW COLLEGE ANNOUNCES

DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. CELEBRATION DAY and BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Congressman Walter Fauntroy is a leading civil rights activist, minister, congressman and freedom fighter. He was elected in 1971 as the Delegate to the House of Representatives in Washington, D.C. and the first person to represent the District of Columbia in 100 years. He was the most influential voice in legislating the Constitutional Amendment resolution calling for Full Voting Rights for District of Columbia citizens in the U.S. Congress. He argued that it was a question of fundamental rights and human justice that District Citizens should have the opportunity to partake in the decisions of the House and Senate.

Congressman Fauntroy is also Chairman of the Board of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. appointed him Director of the Washington Bureau of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference where he performed many valuable services for the movement of the 60's. He was D.C. Coordinator for the historic March on Washington Jobs and Freedom in 1963.

In the 96th Congress he is a member of the House Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs Committee. Fauntroy was a member of the House Select Committee on Assassination and Chairman of its Subcommittee on the Assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Dr. Poussaint, a renowned Black Psychiatrist, Harvard Medical School Dean and Professor of Psychiatry, and Script Consultant to the popular television program, The Bill Cosby Show. Dr. Poussaint has helped to break the old stereotypes of how Black people are portrayed in the media. This respected scientist and social activist has studied every aspect of interpersonal relationships as they affect Black America today, such as the Black family, the fallacy of I.Q. testing, race relations, homicide, and the effect of racism on the Black psyche, etc.

Dr. Poussaint is also on the staff of the Children's Hospital in Boston, where he is Medical Director of the Family Support Center and is active in research in grief and loss.

He is a best selling author of "Why Blacks Kill Blacks," 1972 and "Black Child Care," 1975. He has written dozens of articles for lay and professional publications. In the 60's he provided medical care to Civil Rights Workers and worked with such leaders as, Dr. Martin Luther King, Rev. Jesse Jackson, Mayor Andrew Young and Activist, Stokely Carmichael. He is currently a member of the Board of Directors of Operation PUSH. He was co-chairman of Rev. Jesse Jackson's Massachusetts State Campaign.

CELEBRATION DAY PARTICIPANTS

Ms. Julia Collier - Ms. Collier, assistant director of admissions, is currently serving as coordinator of minority affairs and affirmative action officer for Kennesaw College. Julia has been at Kennesaw College for two years. She is a member of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers and a participant in Leadership Kennesaw.

Mr. Lewis Cobb - Mr. Cobb is a student at Kennesaw College majoring in choral music education. He is the founder, director, and minister of music for the Douglas County Choir. He has written a number of original works which the choir will be recording next year.

Douglas County Choir - This outstanding gospel music performing group is composed of community members from the Douglas County area. The members range in age from 13 to 35. The choir has been performing locally for churches and civic groups since its creation three years ago. Next year the choir will produce a recording of original works by Mr. Lewis Cobb.

Dr. Oral L. Moses - Dr. Moses joined the Kennesaw faculty this year as assistant professor of music. He was actively involved in minority student recruitment and advisement at the University of Michigan, where he originated courses on the music of black America. Dr. Moses is particularly interested in the performance of music of black composers. He is organizing and coordinating the music program to be presented on February 25th as part of Black History Month.

Dr. Joseph H. "Pete" Silver - Dr. Silver was honored as a Regents Fellow for 1985-86 by the Board of Regents. He works in the office of Dr. Ray Cleere, vice chancellor for academic affairs. He has been a member of the Kennesaw faculty for nine years, and served as coordinator of minority student affairs and affirmative action officer for three of those years. He is a member of the executive board of the Cobb County NAACP and the executive board of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists. He was selected as Educator of the Year for 1985 by the Kennesaw Jaycees and the Cobb County Chapter of the NAACP.

"Murphy's Romance" deals with the right guy

Murphy's Romance, from Columbia Pictures, starring Sally Field and James Garner, opens soon at local theaters. The film was produced by Laura Ziskin, with Field serving as executive producer. Martin Ritt directed from a screenplay by Harriet Frank, Jr. & Irving Ravetch.

Murphy's Romance is the story of Emma Moriarty (Sally Field), the divorced mother of a 12-year-old son (Corey Haim) who starts life anew on an Arizona ranch where she boards and trains horses, launching the grand adventure of her life. When she meets the widowed town pharmacist, Murphy Jones (James Garner), their relationship blossoms slowly, unexpectedly, and even comically. Things get complicated with the reappearance of Emma's attractive, ne'er-do-well former husband, Bobby Jack (Brian Kerwin).

A contemporary, humorous love story about picking the right guy instead of the wrong guy, Columbia Pictures' Murphy's Romance stars Sally Field and James Garner. Produced by Laura Ziskin and directed by Martin Ritt from a screenplay by Harriet Frank, Jr. & Irving Ravetch, the film also stars Brian Kerwin and Corey Haim.

James Garner (L) stars with Sally Field (r.) in "MURPHY'S ROMANCE," Columbia Pictures' contemporary, humorous love story about picking the right guy.

"Jewel of the Nile" is showing in Cobb

The Jewel of the Nile, Twentieth Century Fox's action-packed sequel to Romancing the Stone, is now showing at the Galleria 8 and Cobb Center Theatres.

Academy Award-winning actor-producer Michael Douglas returns to those double duties with The Jewel of the Nile, in which he again stars as dashing adventurer Jack Colton, while his Romancing co-star Kathleen Turner, acclaimed for her performances in such films as Body Heat and Prizzi's Honor, reprises her role as Joan Wilder, sultry romance novelist. Joining them for new adventures is Danny DeVito, the Emmy-winning star of Taxi, as Ralph, the hot-tempered petty crook who is still dogging their trail.

The Jewel of the Nile picks up Jack and Joan six months after their thrilling adventure in the jungles of South American and sends them on a perilous trek into the deserts of North Africa, via the glamorous French Riviera.

Lewis Teague (Cujo) directs the screenplay by Mark Rosenthal and Lawrence Konner, based on the characters created by Diane Thomas. The Jewel of the Nile is produced by Michael Douglas. Joel Douglas and Jack Brodsky are co-producers.
