

GOAT DAY 1978

by Andrew McGlaughlin

We arrived late to Goat Day. I was in time to take three shots with the wet sponges at the head of the Electrical Department, Mr. David Summers. Although I wasn't successful, others had been. His head and shirt were soaked.

We then moved over to the pole climbing contest. It was a difficult climb, and all contestants made it to the top. The man who did it in the fastest time had to be kin. to spider-man because of the way he walked up that pole.

The band began playing again but I was too late for the earlier performance. The band members were proficient in the use of many instruments. Their music was a combination of country, rock, jazz(at times) sound that went over quite well, I thought.

We listened some and strolled about checking out the goats and the pig. The animals didn't seem too happy with the festivities. Most of the people were having a very good time, though, with it all. The spirits were high at STI.

The band took its last break for the tug-of-war competition. The first two tugs went rather quickly. The third may have, except that I was in it, and to me, it seemed like an eternity. The non-fraternity group asked me to join in and I accepted. It was the best tug-of-war I had participated in. They pulled us, then we pulled them, then we just strained back and forth for a long time, until finally we pulled them across. I was exhausted and dazed after that. This morning my back is aching.

The band continued after the final tug-of-war competition. There was a little dancing. My daughter danced and sat in front of the stage. She loved it. I sat off to the side and recovered.

Barbecue plates were served and the band played a few more tunes before calling it a night. It was an enjoyable time and a successful Goat Day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Photographs of the students were of very poor quality. Many students' photographs (including mine) were omitted. Why?

Overall, I think that we as students did not get what we paid for.
Grier Sowell
Box 9151

Note: I have been working as a photographer since 1971. Six years of this I worked on yearbook staffs.

Editor's Note:

Due to space limitations, two of the letters that were received for publication will be run in the next issue

This letter is dedicated to:

To the Editor,

I was very disappointed with the new STI Log. The Southern Tech Hornets gained recognition with their GIAC and NAIA championships last year, to the point of being ranked nationally. What kind of recognition did the Log give to the individual players?

The dedication to Coach George Perides was well deserved, but he didn't win the games by himself.

The group picture of the Hornets, on page 59, is a very poorly done paste-up of an out-dated photograph. The faces of the players are nothing but fuzzy blurs. To top it off, the names of the players below the disgraceful picture are not even in any semblance of order. To an unknowing observer, Rodney Montgomery is identified as the blue-eyed blond, Mike Renfro, and Greg Stevens is listed as Mike Stroud, who didn't even play on the team last year. There is also another oddity. How come there are twelve names and fourteen people in the photograph?

The hard working Hornets deserved a lot more special attention than the Log apparently felt they were worth. These super guys had a right to a memento of their endeavors, something to look back on with pride. The champion Hornets did not suffer long hours of practice, sore muscles, and injuries for the mediocre section the STI Log allocated to them.

Thank you, Jan Gross

Dear Editor:

Last month, A.R.A. presented "The First Annual Great Pumpkin Carving Contest. About 15 students participated in it and the winners were:

- 1st prize Glitter Face
- 2nd prize Cowboy
- 3rd prize Skull

Since it was a carving contest, I don't know how the "Glitter Face" could win, because it was not carved and it was just decorated.

The same thing with the "Cowboy" because it only had the eyes carved and it had original designs on it such as a witch flying on a broom, a skull with the cross bones and a ghost.

I would like to know what were the things the judges took in consideration to make that choice.

Pheidias

Dear Editor:

I picked up my copy of the 1978 Log last week and was very disappointed in its quality. It appears that the staff took very little time to put the book together. The staff attempted to cover up this lack of time by spending hundreds or possibly even thousands of dollars of OUR money on special effects. These effects were poor and overused. The effects appear to have been used to disguise poor photography. They also ruined some good photographs with the excessive use of the effects.

The copy in the opening section of the book was very hard to read because of the colors used in the printing.

There were no names with the faculty and staff photos to identify the people. Some of the organization photographs were also without names. I realize that it can be a great deal of trouble to get these names, but I thought that this was what a yearbook was supposed to be about.

I was insulted to discover that the SGA (of which I am a member) and other organizations were tilted "cliques". This was in poor taste.

Dear Editor:

I have a question for the so-called "Iranian Student Association of STI." If the Iranian people want to be free from U.S. government domination, why do you all come here to go to school? Your letter is so full of contradictions, it must have been meant as a joke. It's funny how you say in paragraph four that Afghanistan is not under Communist rule and than at the end of the paragraph, you openly admit that Afghanistan is exploited by the Soviet Union. I would also like to see your proof that there are 40,000 U.S. military advisors in Iran. You must be counting the wives, children and pets of every American in Iran.

It is amazing how much difference there is between your account of the theater fire and what was seen on the TV news films. If the Shah is so bent on destroying the Iranian people, why is he letting 1000 political prisoners out of jail? Also, why is he trying modernize the country?

It is amazing to me the way you people talk about how poor the Iranian people are, considering how many of the Iranian students at STI have new cars and money to throw away.

I am not opposed to your fight with the Shah. That is your pleasure and privilege, but I don't want to listen to your distorted views.

Your letter comes across as quite a put down to every student at Southern Tech. If that's the way you feel, why don't you just pack up and go home.

Halloween night was a big success we had a large turnout of witches and goblins to go trick-or-treating for UNICEF. The families we visited were quite generous with their money and candy! A special thanks to Carter Ransom for helping us out.

After, we went to the Southern Tech "clubhouse" (alias gym parking lot) for a mixer with the fraternities. We enjoyed it and hope everyone else did as well. Thanks for coming!

Our bake sale has been postponed since Halloween and Goat Day festivities took up so much of our time. We want to have some really scrumptious goodies so it will be held Thursday, November 9, 1978 instead. Y'all Come!

Our football team is going stronger than ever. Last Monday we shut out TKE, and it looks like nothing can stop us now.

Brothers, don't forget about getting your pictures taken for the composite. They will be taken between 3:30 and 6:00 p.m. on November 14, in the Student Center. Don't forget to bring a white shirt at the time you signed up for.

On November 18, the Brother Pledges from Armstrong College will be coming up to observe how our pledge program works. We have several things planned that will make their visit an enjoyable one.

The Sigma Nu annual ski trip is rapidly approaching. If you are planning on going, make sure your name is on the list. If you have any questions about the trip contact Brother Pribble.

The Brothers of Sigma Nu would like to thank Alpha Xi Alpha and the IFC for the great Halloween Party. The Brothers of Sigma Nu would also like to congratulate those people that set up Goat Day. Sigma Nu did very well in all the events and we are very proud of all the Brothers that participated in this Goat Day.

The Sigma Nu football team has played two very rough football teams in a row. The first game was against a very good Geechees team which unfortunately beat us. The second game was against a very tough Cowboy team. The game went into overtime as well as darkness. But when the game was over, Sigma Nu was victorious. All the way Sigma Nu!
