From the Pennsylvania Packet, of 0.7. 27 Mef. BRADFORDS, please to infert the following in your paper, and you will oblige Your's, &c. CASCA.

people of England no longer look upon the flourishing state of their Colonies, with the same degree of with an evil-eye, and jealous of our encreasing numbers and wealth, think they discern their own destruction in our prosperity. This is the presage of a People remarkable throughout the world for a melancholy cast of mind, whose enjoyment of the present is ever distributed by a dislant view of the trues. A true Englishman, who reads Pos. the juture. A true Englishman, who reads Pof-tlethwait's Dictionary of Commerce, with the same spirit, with which it was wrote, will sadden at every page at accounts of a woollen manufactury at Abbeville, the great importation of French bar-bers and valets, or the declension of the Turky state, and will find the ruin of his country in the finuggling of a hoghead of claret. Enveloped the foggy atmosphere, and breathing nothing but the grollness of a fea-coal air, every Citizen of London is a rueful Politician predicting the most

But, if this is not fufficient to disturb their repose, there is another ingredient, in the national character, of a still more malignant influence: For, being a commercial People, and acculomed to view all objects through the medium of self-interest, every public undertaking is the result of dry calculations, wherein all liberal ideas are thrown out of the question. —So far from embracing all mankind with expanded hearts, the human race, in every quarter of the globe, is fa-crificed with ease to prospects of national advan-tage: —Hence the cruel despotism exercised over tage: —Hence the cruel despotism exercises over the East-Indians, and the late expedition to St. Vincent.—This too is their notion of Patriotisis.

direful calamities, from every untoward occurrence

in public affairs.

With this prevailing character it is in vain to hope, that our liberties and properties will not be facrificed to the ease and greatness of Britain, equally with those of other People. less closely allied.—The relation, which she stands in to us, as the parent state, is a bond of amity too seeble to suspend for a moment the operation of such selfish and powerful passions, as avarice and the lust of empire.—Let Ireland, a fister kingdon, winess the weight of her oppressive hand.

Nor let us conceive, that the free form of his own constitution will inspire an Englishman with a tenderer regard for the rights of others.—He values them not, provided their destruction convalues them not, provided their destruction contributes to his own henesit.—A trader of London not at all qualified, by nature or education, to controul the fortunes of men—protected in his own person and property by a thousand legal forms, shall issue orders, from his compting-house, to tear 1000 unhappy Africans from their country and samilies, and every thing held dear by them, and lead them into a dissual captivity.

I am drawn into these reslections, and justified in them, by a late publication, in England, of political Essays, on which the greatest encomiums have been bestowed.—It seems to be the principal purpose of the Author to encrease the jealous against the Northern Colonies, by representing them as dangerous Rivals in Commerce, and very benevolently proposes to despoil them of their benevolently proposes to despoil them of their Manusatures and I rade, that they may be obliged to confine themselves solely to tilling the earth. The means to effect the former, he says, should be, "to fell the inanusatures of Britain so cheap the throughout the colonies as to min all their own. throughout the colonies as to ruin all their own throughout the colonies as to ruin all their own manufactures and this to be done by means of Factors to be established by Government, in the chief towns of America, with goods purchased by Government, and to be fold at such prices, as would immediately ruin all the colony manufactures, and consequently multitudes of out the Factors, who have established houses for the fale of British goods, which they must have a purchased there, at the common market-Price."

I leave this to be commented upon by the A-I leave this to be commented upon by the Americans, observing only, that it seems not an extravagant conjecture to suppose the present project of the India Company, in concert with the Ministry, of sending Tea to the Colonies, may have been suggested by this publication, and embraced by them, not only as the best expedient to enforce a revenue act, but as an experiment to be made of Government Factors, for the righteous purpose of ruining our private traders.

be made of Government Factors, for the righteous purpose of ruining our private traders.

But I trust to my Countrymen, that to open violence they will oppose courage, and to artifice wisdom: and I hope the same virtues, which have been hitherto tried with effect, will be always on the watch to defeat such baneful and pernicious designs; and that this accursed Tea will be rejected with the same firmness, as in the time of the general non-importation agreement, when the general non-importation agreement, when a love of the publick good so nobly triumphed over avarice, and every base and selfish passion.

To the RIGHT REVEREND JONATHAN,
LORD BISHOT of ST. ASAPH.

BEG leave, in the name of my country, to call upon your Lordship to mingle your
"indignation" with ours, against the "artifices"
of the Ministry, for their late attempt to "seperate
the interest of the colonies from that of Great Britain," through the medium of the East India Company, and at the same time to thank your Company, and at the fame time to thank your Lordship, in this public manner, for your excel-lent Sermon, preached before the Society for pro-lent Sermon, preached before the Society for propagating the gospel in foreign parts.

It was reserved for you to pluck a quill from some Angel's wing, to mark the commou interests and duties of Britain and her colonies. It was reserved for you to rescue the Bench and the Lawn Sleeve from the reproach under which they have fallen, during our late struggles for liberty. You have removed the just and upjust prejudices entertained against prelacy by people of every denomination in America. You have made us forget the Bishop, in the Man, and the Baron of the realm, in the British American Patriot. realm, in the British American Patriot.

You are too happy in the possession of that virtue, and in the contemplation of those abilities, which gave birth to your Sermon, to receive the least addition to your happiness from the approleast addition to your happiness from the approbation or gratitude of the Americans. But allow us, my Lord, for our own sakes to affure you, that we pore over it as the most finished piece of composition in our language.—We view it as a monument of the strength and extent of human genius in discovering and enforcing the inost complex truths;—we prize it as a common Magna Charta of Britain, and her empire in America.

Accept, my Lord, of the incense of gratitude from millions of American breasts. It rises from the altar of Justice, perfumed with the love of liberty. Laurels—not such as are raised in the hot beds of Court tavor, but the spontaneous, un-hot beds of Court favor, but the spontaneous, unnot beds of Court favor, but the ipontaneous, un-fading laurels of America, shall cluster thick around your brow, and when you "leep in dult cold marble," your name shall live in this western world ('o borrow an Indian phrase) while the sun shines HAMPDEN.

HORN are various on Hors concer dry the the province in grouped firstion syculor to Col. the whin and where he flouds think grop r. If He c resolv knows that Melli-s, Clarkes, Mr. Faed inil unents to prevent the good effects of the had endeavoured to nip in the bud, and to put into execution the detelled revenue act. The Aso ricen merchants had to generally dopped the importation of English Tea, in confequence of that agreement, as greatly toalarm the EaftIndiaComthat company is allowed to laid their tes to Americe. Thus the company is ested, their tens are paid, and the falutary resolution of the merchants Mr. Clarke, and others before-mentioned, are the chosen men to receive and fell the tea, and pay the tribute. The people therefore or to execut; the revenue acts, as Mr. Oliver and others were, to execute a former revenue-act, under the title of the flamp act, and the tea is confidered as detellable as were the flampt-papers. Hence an equal necellity of preventing the feattering the ducid tea through the province, as there was of preventing that of the flamped papers. In fhort, the minitry appear ng the old game again, tho' with more art and fabilety, and the people fee through it, and feem determined, as before, to put them to their trumps. To speak plainly, the people think this rea is as much the offspring of the ministry, as the flamped papers were; and that as much is expected from the care and affiduity of Meffirs. Clarkes and others, under the patronage and direction of Mr. Hutchinfon, in nurling this fecond child and ufhuring it into life, as was expeded be-fore from Mr. Oliver and others, under the like patronage and direction of Mr. Bernard, in cherifling the first born, and fitting that for eminent Perfons of all ranks are as much exafperated at this ministerial manusture, as ever they were amount the flump-act; they detect the teacommillioners as thoro'ly as they did the stampofficers. They appear to be as much offended with Mr. Hutchinfon's prefent conduct, as they were with the conduct of Bernard in the year 1765 They are particularly aftonished at his calling for the Military, to be in readiness in Arms nohene the Colonel floadd think proper! This is a part of conduct whichMr. Hutchinfon's friends may booth of ; for we have not heard that either of the Go vernors of Pennsylvania or New York have even contemplated fuch an order, though cargoes of the fame rea are deftined for those places, and the people there are as much exasperated at it, as the people are here: Such an order has not been fixed, that we have heard of even by Gov. Tryon, who was bred a Soldier, from whom therefore it might first have been expected. For what purpose were they to be in readiness in arms, but to do mi-litary execution, and fied blood? And perhaps they would afterwards have been thanked for their (pirited behavior," in imitation of the memorable example of Lord B -n, when a few years ago a number of his Majelly's innocent fubjects, by the gallantry of the king's troops, were laid dead in St. George's Fields. It is well remembered that orders were then given out to foldiers, previous to any tunnell's happening, to be in readiness in gras : and there can be no doubt but a reforming justice may be found here, a man of foirit, as in that case, to give a colouring to the "action," But did his Excellency recollect the part which Mr. Hancock has always taken, fo much to his honor, in opposition to the destructive measures of a most abandoned administration? Did his Excellency think that Mr. Hancock would fo far degrade his name in the lift of Patriots, as to aid, in any capacity, in enforcing a detellable revenue act? For after all the talk of securing property, that is the whole delign. Or, let me further alk, Whether his Escellency made it clear to the officers of the Cadet company, who afterwards waited on him, that they were "obliged or even authorized" by any law of this province which is the only rule for foldiers or citizens within this jurifliction, in carrying fuch an order into execution? If no law of the province will inflify the order, if it was abhorrent to the principles of the conflitution, what right had Mr. Clarke, or any of his friends to expect, when a number of people were provoked to break his windows, (as it is commonly faid can be proved by plentiful evidence), by the dicharge of a pillol from one of them before the leaft infule had been effered them -I fay, what right had they to exp & that Col. military company on fuch an occasion, without a legal call? It is reported that great pains were taken to findMr. Hancock, and that he was fought for in many places, the not his own boufe, he was to be found, to give him notice of the necellity of his appearance. Probably a repre-fentation is or will foon be made of this great negled of duty, as an evidence that Mr. Hancock is not to be depended upon as a friend of goalways been true) and he may be called upon to refign a commission, after having sustain'd it to the great mortification of his E -y, with uarival'd honor to himself as an officer, and to the AN OLD CADET.
