Is Southern Tech Being Sued? Not Yet, But an Audit Continues on Over 200 Computers

By PRESTON GOFORTH

Southern Tech received a letter from a law firm in California that stated they had been informed that SCT was illegally running programs on more computers than they had licenses to operate.

In the letter the Californian law firm inferred that if Southern Tech did not respond to them within five working days they would file a lawsuit.

Southern Tech wrote the law firm thanking them for notifying SCT of the situation and told the law firm that they would turn the situation over to their attorneys.

Then it was referred to the acting executive secretary, who is also the attorney for the Board of Regents, and she will route it to the Attorney General's office. Southern Tech is not dealing with the lawyers directly.

Sam Baker, Assistant to the President, stated "...at this time we don't know if there is anything to it or not."

Currently an internal audit is being headed by Sandy Lloyd. The audit involves looking at what is installed on every computer on Southern Tech's campus.

The auditors compare what is on the computer to licensing agreements or department requests that would prove the software had been purchased.

Basically 200 or more computers all over campus must be checked. The audit includes all the labs and faculty offices.

The software specified in the letter was mostly PC related, however, the audit is covering all Macintosh computers as well.

Dr. Nadella, Assistant to the President for Planning and Information Technology, stated that "...we concentrated on the PC's rather than the Macintoshes."

Because of the short period of time SCT had to complete this audit Dr. Nadella told the Director of Micro Computer support to "simply tell the department head that today we are going to do faculty offices to look at what software is installed on their computers."

Southern Tech kept the audit quiet because they were concerned that if it was widely publicized that people would start erasing what they were not supposed to have installed on their computers. "This would get Southern Tech into deeper trouble especially if someone can prove that we had it and when we received the letter we erased it" stated Dr. Nadella.

Southern Tech feels there is no danger of the violations that the law firm is claiming.

If any violations are found the companies affected by this will be notified and appropriate copies will be purchased.

According to Sam Baker, "...at this time there is nothing to it, however, this is nothing to laugh at. You can not ignore this situation you must check into it and see if there is any problems and if there are fix them."

SCT has no idea who contacted this law firm since the complaint was made anonymously. Southern Tech suspects that possibly a former employee contacted them and told them they needed to check into Southern Tech because they are using multiple copies of software. Sam Baker said "with as many people on campus using computers it is possible that it can occur."

Sources have told The Sting that this is one of the guys who is doing the auditing of the schools computers. Eric Thompson works for Micro Support and he had "No comment".

The audit will be completed by November 5, once it is complete Dr. Nadella will report the findings to the President.

Women in Architecture, SGA Recognizes a New Student Organization

By STEVE ROBBINS

At the November 1, 1994, Student Government Association meeting, a new organization was approved. This new organization is Women in Architecture, and it is a student chapter of a national organization of the same name.

Nikal Conti, the student chapter founder, hopes that the club will help the school since the minority enrollment of women is on the rise and the accreditation committee will be examining the architectural school shortly.

The next official meeting of Women in Architecture will be Tuesday, November 8, at noon in the Architectural department. To find the room, just follow the signs. Elections will be held for the officers. If you have any questions about the organization dial 528-7253.

When NOMA, the National Organization of Minority Architects, first came to the campus several years ago, it had a problem because women were not one of the seven recognized minorities.

Many women had joined and were quite upset when they found out that they could not vote or hold office. They could just pay dues.

The new organization is going to provide role models, and mentors for all its members. The organization will sponsor field trips, and help its members gain vital contacts with the companies that may in the future hire them.

It will serve as a connection between the professional members of architecture and the architectural students as well.

Unlike its national counterpart, the student chapter will admit any student in good standing or faculty member into its midst as a supporting member, however, only female, undergraduate students in either the architecture or environmental development classes may hold office.

It did not become ratified on its first attempt. This is largely due to the basis for the club constitution. According to Councilman Paul Elliot the SGA will not approve organizations that discriminate on the basis of sex or race.

Since the parent chapter of the organization does not allow men, the student chapter could not follow this discriminatory example, hence anybody can join, but only the women may hold office.

Parking Held Up By Faculty Senate

By BRENT TEMPLE

A long long time ago in an office in a building on the Southeast corner of a campus very close, a Chief of Police named Chasteen wrote down his ideas for a new set of parking regulations. The parking regulations, penned in the summer of Ninety-three were henceforth sent to the office of the President. The office of the President gave the parking regulations their approval, and sent them forth to be approved by the Faculty Senate. The Faculty Senate was also charged with two other duties concerning parking: 1) Establish an appeals process for faculty parking tickets, and 2) Establish a parking committee to evaluate parking lot usage (who can park where), and evaluate any complaints and ideas regarding parking. In a recent interview about the subject, Chief Chasteen said "Who gets to park where, should be determined by those who use the parking lots, my job is to enforce their decisions."

At this time, the new parking codes are in the Faculty Senate's Document Review Committee. According to the Faculty Senate Chair Professor Pierce, the Faculty Senate has a large amount of other work that has to be sent to the state Board of Regents. Because of this, the Senate, which meets once a month, will probably not be able to decide on the parking codes until the end of this quarter or the beginning of the Winter quarter.

In order to help streamline the parking guidelines, one of the im-

Drama Club Does Comedy

BY SHUJEN FANG

Did you know that there is a drama club at school? It has been here for over a year. The club was founded by Ray Smith, now the president of the drama club.

Ray is an architecture student at Southern Tech. When he first came to this school, he asked "Why aren't there any liberal arts activities available for students to join?" Create one yourself, he was told. And this quarter, Ray leads the drama club through its first birthday.

On November 4, 1994, at 8:00 p.m. the club presented its fifth performance - Early One Evening at the Rainbow Bar and Grille. This play continues through November 12. It is a comedy set at a time when the world is about to be destroyed and God chooses a bartender to rewrite the Bible, but THIS TIME to get it right. If you miss the play this time, the next one will be a musical scheduled for February.

There are currently fifteen members in the club working as actors, stage hands, and light and sound control technicians. The club is suffering from a lack of interest by students. Stories are difficult to find because there are so few actors. They also do not have an official meeting place.

Ray is hoping more students will join the club. No experience is required, just an interest. Bring your enthusiasm, and Ray will guide you into the world of drama.

The club meets every Tuesday at 7:30pm in the Student Center. Dr. John Tumlin is the supervisor of the drama club. Mrs. Denise Whitenton, wife of Professor James Whitenton, is the director. To get involved, call the drama club voice mail number 250-7254. Leave a message and your call will be returned. Go on! Support the club! See the plays and become a member.

The cast and crew of the Early One Evening at the Rainbow Bar and Grille completely unaware of the photographer, are captured on film in their natural state.

A Few Changes At The Library

By GARDINER RYNNE

The Library has been making quite a few changes lately. Although convenience in using the library is often overlooked, it is important.

The SCT Library has been responding to the requests it has received to expand its hours of operation. It also has conducted a study to determine when students are most likely to need the library's services. The study revealed that sixteen classes meet after 6 pm on Friday. In order to accommodate the students from these classes, Friday hours were expanded.

Sunday hours were also expanded to meet the needs of people studying on Sunday afternoon. Another change was the decision to stay open until 11 pm on the last night of classes and the first night of final exams.

The reference system in the library has also seen some improvement. Using the new Serials Modules on the computer reference system, students can find out where their favorite magazine is and whether or not it is in. With the Acquisition Term Search module, a professor or student can find out if a book he or she requested has come in yet.

In the future, faculty and students cannot reserve texts without knowing their specific call numbers. This measure is intended to eliminate confusion and save time for the library's staff. In order to make this process easier, a computer reference terminal is going to be installed right by the checkout counter.

Five new copy machines have also been installed in conjunction with the school bookstore.

While some of the library's recent improvement have taken a while, most delays were due to staff shortages. The director of the library staff since 1992, Dr. Joyce Mills, is in the process of building a comprehensive, full time staff to help or replace the part time staff of the past.

Student Life Committee Discusses Faculty-Dining-Room-Gate

By KASSIA CATO

The Student Life Committee met for the first time this year on Thursday October 13, 1994. Student Life was formed to address some of the issues that many students are concerned about. The committee is made up of faculty members from different departments, a staff member and SGA members. At this meeting William Hodges (ECET) was elected to chair the committee, and Dr. La Juana Cochran (SIS) was elected as secretary.

One topic brought up by Barry Birkhead (Director of the Joe Mack Wilson Student Center) was the concern some professors had with the students using the faculty/staff dining area in the bottom part of the Student Center.

A professor on the committee felt that sometimes it was hard to discuss a situation about problems they had with students in their class with other faculty, when students were present.

But the majority of the faculty on the committee really had a problem with students being in there.

The students on the council had no problems with the faculty and staff having their own dining area, and felt that the students using that dining area would get up and leave if they saw a group of faculty members coming to eat in there. The matter was tabled until the next committee meeting, to see if things improve.

SGA Discusses Athletics and Spends $350

By BILL GREVE

The last SGA meeting was a fun-filled hour, highlighted by a visit by Athletic Director George Perides and cheerleading representatives, approval of the Women in Architecture constitution, and SGA approving themselves to spend $325.

Under old business, President Shannon Ackerman brought up the Faculty & Staff dining area again. While Secretary/Treasurer Krista Winter commented that she noticed that the sign gets moved, no other SGA member had any comments. This issue was, again, tabled until the next meeting.

Paul Elliott, Internal Affairs chairman, reintroduced the Women in Architecture's bid to become a recognized organization. Paul reported that they had made the recommended changes since the last meeting. Now the constitution reads that all members pay dues and that all members can vote. Without any discussion, the Women in Architecture were unanimously approved.

A delegation consisting of Coach George Perides, cheerleader sponsor Judy Brooks, and one cheerleader addressed SGA. "What we're asking from you guys is some support", said Ms. Brooks, "Get your fraternity buddies, get your friends. The best way to get word out is by word of mouth." Southern Tech plays at Life College, November 8.

The next SAC conference is November 11-13 and SGA approved an expenditure of $325 to cover registration fees, lodging and food.

Under new business, Paul Elliott said he had received a request from the The Living Word to become a recognized organization. Internal Affairs will be reviewing their proposed constitution. As the SGA meeting broke up, Shannon requested all the chairpersons to meet with him to discuss the Southern Tech vision statement.

The next SGA meeting will be held November 15, at noon in the Student Center.

(NSNS) - Amidst the growing Hollywood clamor for more animated programming, one new show is catching on as a favorite among college students and other young people.

"Duckman," which aires 10:30 p.m. Saturdays, and 7:30 p.m. Sundays, on the USA Network, is an adult cartoon series about a crusty, irascible detective and his dysfunctional family.

Based on the underground comic strip of the same name created by famed graphic illustrator Everett Peck, "Duckman" centers on the adventures of the title character, an opinionated, outspoken yellow mallard, and his loyal sidekick Cornfed -- a pig in a gray suit and porkpie hat.

Jason Alexander, of "Seinfeld" fame, is the voice of Duckman, and Nancy Travis ("Three Men and a Baby") plays his abrasive sister-in-law Bernice. Dweezil Zappa does music for the show and plays the "profoundly stupid" oldest son Ajax, while Tim Curry portrays Duckman's archrival, King Chicken.

Oh yeah, there are some other kids and "a comatose Grandmama whose only form of communication is flatulence." You get the idea.

Although there are obvious comparisons to "The Simpsons" (which is drawn by the same animators) and "Beavis and Butthead," "Duckman" achieves its own comedic signature with dry, fastpaced wit to try an animated show due to their love for the classic old Jay Ward cartoons such as "Rocky and Bullwinkle" and "George of the Jungle."

"Duckman is about someone who wakes up with an attitude," Reno explained. "Duckman is a social critic, the voice of all of us, an extreme version of one who speaks out against all the things that make us mad."

In one episode, Duckman is wanted by the IRS for $29,000 in back-taxes. Sympathetic bikers assist him and Cornfed in their tax evasion getaway, complete with visual gags from "Easy Rider." The storyboard is dense with visual as well as verbal laughs.

"Our time slot couldn't be worse. A lot of our audience is either passed out in vomit or getting laid at that time," Osborn lamented. "USA has been very supportive, but it has been a difficult birthing process because they bought an underground comic."

Reno concluded the discussion with a typically satirical plea to college students everywhere: "We hear there are a lot of college 'Duckman' parties out there, and I just want to say, don't do that," he said. "Please, watch it separately, because that way our ratings go up."

and cynical, often-hilarious writing.

Ron Osborn and Jeff Reno serve as executive producers and writers for the show. The duo previously produced and/or wrote for such television hits as "Mork and Mindy" and "Night Court." They also worked on George Lucas' new film Radioland Murders.

Reno said the pair were inspired

Head of College Republicans Discusses Election

Bill Spadea, Chair of College Republican National Committee, or CRNC, and 1991 graduate of Boston University was interviewed about his organization, which has "tens of thousands" of members on 711 campuses.

What is the most important issue in your platform for the upcoming election?

The most important issues that CRs are focusing on this election are opposition to abortion, imposing term limits on lawmakers and regaining constitutional guaranteed gun rights for citizens.

What are some of the crucial races this year?

CRs are focusing on Ollie North's Senate race in Virginia, Chuck Haytaian's Senate race in New Jersey, and Jim Inhof's Senate race in Oklahoma, as well as hundreds of congressional and local races.

Members are involved in Get Out The Vote efforts on campus and in their local community -- these include door-to-door literature drops, visibility rallies, burma shaves and phone banks to turn out volunteers and voters. The CRNC also mailed out nearly 100,000 "Vote Republican" posters to local coordinators and campus chairs. Our last two Broadside newspaper issues were focused on election laws and targeted races.

Members are also supplying the majority of the volunteer staff for hundreds of congressional and local campaigns.

Throughout the election cycle, College Republicans are continuing to sign up more members. Since the middles of September, CRs have recruited more than 1,500 new students each week.

Does your party platform support a student's agenda? What are you supporting for students? Why is your platform good for students?

The CRNC platform of conservative principles that includes opposition to abortion, limited government and low taxes is finding overwhelming support among college students who are sick of the socialist rhetoric and action from the Clinton administration and their lackeys in congress.

Head of College Democrats Discusses Election

Jenny Ritter, President of the College Democrats of America and senior at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, was interviewed. Her organization has 80,000 members on 800 campuses.

What is the most important issue in your platform for the upcoming election?

There has been solid progress within the last two years toward reducing the deficit, creating jobs, lowering crime, and improving America's social welfare. That has a great deal to do with the leadership of Bill Clinton and the Democratic Congress. The Republicans had their chance for 12 years and as a result we saw enormous deficits and lost jobs, a combination that our generation was left to clean up. This election offers simple choices. Do we want to go back to the trickle-down economics of the '80s or do we want to move forward with an agenda of fiscal responsibility and social empowerment? If we want a future that isn't already mortgaged by the time we get there, then the answer is clear.

College Democrats are working just as hard in these elections as we did in the presidential election. We have many members who have taken off the semester from school to work for campaigns or to travel their state registering students and informing them of the issues. We are sponsoring invasion weekends where students from many states converge on one city for a weekend to walk door-to-door in neighborhoods and do any other work that the campaign may need. We are hosting major rallies on campuses to get the student bodies excited about these elections. Our work may not always be glamorous, but it's the work that wins elections—one vote at a time.

Does your party platform support a student's agenda? What are you supporting for students? Why is your platform good for students?

The Democratic Party has always strongly supported the student agenda. The Democratic National Committee Chairman actually consults with students to find out our opinions. I can not think of a single piece of pro-student legislation that wasn't supported by Democrats and likely opposed by Republicans.

In just the past two years, we have passed the Student Loan Reform Act to make it easier to repay college loans, and we started AmeriCorps so that students may now pay for college through community service.

Thanks to Democrats, there are now more jobs for college graduates and it is easier for students to register to vote because of the Motor Voter bill. As College Democrats, we take our first name as seriously as our last. We lobbied hard for these pro-student bills, and we are now working for further advances in higher education, such as increases in Pell Grants.

Down East Barbecue Better Than Georgia!

By KASSIA CATO

Located on South Cobb Drive, surrounded by other Bar-B-Que restaurants, is a little eating place called the Down East Bar-B-Que Restaurant.

As a Georgia born native, I have always felt that Georgia had the other 49 states beat when it came to Bar-B-Que.

However, I was proven wrong because Down East put Georgia to shame in Bar-B-Que. Whatever is in the marinade that is put on the meat will make you want to stand up and slap your mother.

The chopped Bar-B-Que pork had a semi-sweet, spicy flavor to it that was out of this world. Being a person that likes hot spicy food, I never knew chopped pork could be so hot! It felt like a 2 alarm fire going down my throat. Man was it good! The baked beans were very spicy also with green peppers, onions, cooked in a brown sugar tasting syrup. If I would have had a large food spending budget, I would have tried everything on the menu.

Down East Bar-B-Que offers a variety of bar-b-que plates ranging from chicken to large baby back pork ribs. They also serve bar-b-que sandwiches and salad combos.

On the front of the menu it states to "Enjoy the special taste of true Carolina style Bar-B-Que", and that is what I would recommend students, faculty, and staff to do. Because once you've tasted Carolina Bar-B-Que, the others fail in comparison.

KASSIA CATO still pronounces her name Kassie. Casio is a trademark for a calculator manufacturer, who might sue if misuse of their name by the Athletic Director continues.

The Professional Is the Perfect Date Movie!

By THE TWINS

The Professional was a terrific movie. It's worth going to see if you like excellently done cinematography or off beat love stories where there is no sex.

The movie starts off with the cinematography causing the viewers to experience every event in the movie. Love forms between two close friends Louie and Matilda (the main characters), who are forced together by a unforeseen tragedy.

It was a love story that even I

(the female twin who never cries for any reason) could relate to. It was not one bit mushy.

Its violence is a bit on the truly graphic side; especially by the director's use of the camera's ability to give the viewer the sensation of being there. Sitting watching the movie I (the male twin who stares blankly at the screen) found myself following the way the camera made the action seem to jump off the screen.

Louie is the ultimate professional assassin; he takes it to an art form. Matilda is an twelve year old abused girl who witnesses a great tragedy. When it came to Louie's cleaning he was like a ghost.

The end is not fully predictable, which in our opinion makes it a best movie we have seen in long while.

This movie depicts the story line very well. The sense of justice and the code of honor was excellently portrayed.

The love between Louie and Matilda is not the mushy Hollywood garbage that has been done over and over again but something that is felt only between people who care unconditionally to the point of death.

THE TWINS stay crispy, even in milk.

In The Professional, Louis asks Matilda, "If guns are made illegal, how will I kill burglars and Mommy when I get really, really drunk?"

No Need To Argue

By CORNFED PIG

Feargal Lawlor and his bandmates have released a second full-length album called No Need To Argue.

Feargal beats the drums for the band that calls itself the Cranberries

Other Band Members include Mike Hogan the Bassist and Noel Hogan who plays guitar.

The singer is Dolores O'Riordan. O'Riordan also writes the lyrics.

The band is from Limerick. Limerick where? Limerick, Ireland. Dolores' voice has been compared to Sinead O'Connor's voice.

Well of course there are similarities, both are female lead singers with beautiful voices and Irish accents.

Udo Dirkschneider and Lemmy have undoubtedly been compared as well.

Feargal's second album is more politically oriented than Everybody Else Is Doing It So Why Can't We, his first album. The singles from the first album were "Dreams" and "Linger". "Linger" is a song about love and romantic feelings, while "Dreams" is about romantic feelings and, oddly enough, dreams.

On Feargal Lawlor's second album the biggest hit so far is "Zombie," a song about "their tanks and their bombs and their bombs and their guns, in your head in your head they are fighting."

Not exactly romantic. But a good subject if you live in Ireland.

I am not saying either album is better than the other, but they have certain differences.

On the cover of both albums you can see the same couch.

It is a couch that can fit three people side by side, since there are four band members, one of them has to sit somewhere else.

On the first album the problem was solved by making someone sit on the floor in front of the couch.

On the second album they let him sit on the arm while Dolores sat on the floor.

Probably by then the couch was older and they didn't care if anyone sat on the arm.

In my biased opinion, No Need To Argue has three excellent songs and ten okay songs. The terrific songs are "Zombie" (on every radio station), "I Can't Be With You", and "Ridiculous Thoughts."

Feargal is a first-rate drummer that any band would be glad to associate with.

CORNFED PIG grew up in a small Midwest town, where he was chased by the town bully, Jimmy Dean.

By JASON WATSON

SPECIAL NOTICE: It has been brought to my attention that e-mail addressing schemes here at Southern Tech may be changing in the near future. To help ease this process, all e-mail should be addressed to sct.edu instead of st6000.sct.edu. Example: my address would be jwatson@sct.edu. Not only is this address more flexible for system changes, but it's also shorter.

In this column, I will explain the basic concepts of Anonymous FTP. FTP is an acronym for File Transfer Protocol. Basically, it lets you copy a file or program from the file system of another computer on the Internet. The people who maintain these computers set up a special area (sometimes a whole dedicated machine), and allow anyone access into that area to download files.

To log on to an Anonymous FTP site, type "ftp sitename" where sitename is the Internet address of the computer you wish to connect to. The remote computer will prompt you for a login ID. Type "anonymous" to signify that you would like access to the public areas. The remote computer will then ask for your password and tell you to use your e-mail address as the password. Type your e-mail address on the SCT computer (for example: "username@sct.edu") and you will be logged in. You might be tempted to type a bogus address as the password, but be warned that the remote site already knows what address you are FTPing from.

Not every computer on the Internet allows Anonymous FTP. For example, Southern Tech does not have Anonymous FTP. It's not a good idea to try and log in anonymously to just any computer. Just stick to the published sites. Some sites limit the number of anonymous users that can be logged in at one time. If you are denied access because of a user limit, just try again in a few minutes.

Hazel Virtue: A Band, Not a 50's Live-in Maid

BY LEIGH BOROS

Hazel Virtue, a Georgia rock n' roll band, played at The Edge in Marietta November 1.

They have a unique sound and have a single CD out that is self entitled and a full length one coming out in January. Their music has a spectacular overall sound.

Their stage performance was good especially when they started jamming in middle of their songs. This band is enthusiastic live.

Dave Hydrik, the drummer had a orgasmic beat going until finally his cymbal flew off.

The lead singer and guitarist Eric Britt has a great original voice and a Richenbocker guitar which he bounced around stage with, to the rhythm of the songs Steve Pless (a former Southern Tech student) played as if he was communicating to the world through his bass.

Jim Hughs played his guitar as if he was meditating to find the answers to all of life's questions.

LEIGH BOROS is quite possibly the nicest girl on the Sting staff. But we're going to kill her.

We're late, we're late! We're very, very late! Oh our ears and whiskers, we're very, very late!

portant changes would be in sign posting. Under the current (old) system, the signs were prohibitive. This means that signs indicated where you were not allowed to park. Implying that where there are no signs, you can park. In the new proposed system signs are permissive, meaning that you can park only where the signs allow you to. Therefore, where there are no signs, you cannot park. This simplifies the jobs of the Police and the people who have to post signs. Instead of placing No Parking signs everywhere outside of the parking lots, signs will only need to be placed at the parking lots. In the case of a map that indicates a different type of parking than a sign, the sign is always right.

Another issue in the new proposed parking code will be faculty parking tickets. Under the current system, a member of faculty can park illegally, get a ticket, tear it up and continue with their lives completely unaffected. With the new code in place, faculty who leave tickets unpaid for six months will have the ticket subtracted from their paycheck. Since this is a new concept, a faculty appeals process is needed to allow faculty to have their tickets reviewed if they disagree.

The new code would also be harder on repeat offenders. According to Chief Chasteen, some students with good finances will park wherever they want during the quarter, get several hundred dollars worth of tickets and then pay them off and continue parking wherever they feel like. If the new code gets approved, parking privileges can be revoked for excessive violations. A student who receives five tickets a quarter or ten tickets a year has their parking privileges removed for 30 days. If they park at Southern Tech while suspended, then they win the grand prize of chasing a tow truck for their car. Three tickets for failing to register a vehicle is rewarded with suspension of parking privileges until the vehicle is registered. If they park on campus after three tickets, they also get the tow truck chase.

Stiffer fines will be awarded for illegally parking in handicapped spaces. The fines will be incremental, that is $25 for the first offense, $50 dollars for the second, and $100 thereafter. If you have an injury that gives you a need to park close to your classrooms temporarily, a temporary handicap permit can be obtained from Public Safety with the appropriate doctor's statement. If you are not handicapped, leave the spaces for those who need them. Don't be a Jerk.

HELP WANTED: Southern Gentleman

By BILL FINNICK

It was recently announced in one of my classes that Professor Tate will be retiring and that the Dean of the School of Technology was preparing a list of qualifications for his replacement.

Professional engineer or no, Doctorate or no, Civil Engineer or Technologist. All the normal, everyday academician discussions of propriety; but these are not what makes Professor Tate so hard to replace.

I transferred to Civil in the Spring of 91 from a larger department. There I was mere lecture fodder filling an empty desk. While all my business in the old department was conducted through a secretary, in the Civil department you have an entry interview with the department head.

When I returned after a one-year sabbatical, the last day before I would have to re-apply for admission, I had four holds on my records. With just thirty minutes left to register Professor Tate not only helped me by identifying who I had to see to clear up the mess I had created, but waited for me to come back and registered me into the class I wanted.

My ego wants me to think this was some sort of preferential treatment. The truth is many of my fellow students can attest to this just being an average everyday occurrence. Just another sacrifice our big hearted Department Head makes for the Civil student body.

There is something about people caring about people that I like. You have a sense of belonging to something after meeting Professor Tate. The more interaction I had with him the more he became a role model I can use for life.

Boyce D. Tate is a team player, no matter how he personally felt about things, he never publicly denounced anything or anybody.

When people are down and everyone else is kicking them he holds his tongue and with a mere nod and a wink acknowledges the ruckus around him.

Through the entire episode of the department's move he constantly accentuated the positives that we would all eventually reap.

There has been a lot of talk about teaching students to think and visualize what they are trying to analyze. Professor Tate was a dynamic force in virtual reality for me as he hammered Civil graphics through this thick skull.

Concepts foreign to other engineers are easily accepted because he taught me how to graphically visualize the most complex of problems.

Professor Tate will be missed by many because he was dedicated to his students; but not at the expense of his faculty and staff. We cannot prerequisite Kentucky Gentleman for his position but we will surely miss all that he was to the Civil Engineering Technology Department.

Bill Finnick thinks the new Civil Building (SJ) should be dedicated to Professor Tate.

Mr. Negative Takes a Vacation

By BILL GREVE

Encouraged by last issue's editorial - where I discussed how to pay for an athletic center we can't currently pay for and provided ways to improve Southern Tech's ability to promote itself - I had a revelation. Positive news is good news. It isn't necessary to write negative editorials. Why, people appreciate reading about how the school can provide additional services at no additional cost. So enlightened, I've decided to write about other aspects of Southern Tech I enjoy.

WGHR 102.5 FM - Our campus radio station. When ever I visit a new city I always check out the left hand side of the radio dial. There, you'll find public radio, community radio, and college stations. Unlike commercial stations, these have true variety. But, some of you might say, 102.5 isn't on the left side of the dial. Well, that's a long story that General Manager John McAleer would love to discuss with you.

Even though WGHR is stuck out in the middle of commercial land, you won't get the two confused. No, WGHR is eclecticism in all its possible forms. Want to listen to Spanish rock, rap, metal, alternative, jazz; or check out the latest in booty-shake and many other types of music? Southern Tech plays all. It's all up to the DJ of the hour. Don't like what's on now? Tune back in 60 minutes. The request line is occasionally open at 528-7300.

Another aspect of Southern Tech that needs complementing is the lighting. A number of areas have recently been improved by the addition of lights, making for a safer walk around campus. One light though, remains an iconoclast. Out by the library is a light with a motion detector. I know this because the light always goes off when I near it, plunging me into darkness. Initially bothered by this, I came to realize that Southern Tech must be doing this on purpose. Yes, concerned that students might become so focused on studies as to shut out the real world, some thoughtful person has designed a light that forces you out of your self-absorption and makes you look at the world. To this unnamed person, I thank you.

Campus Forum Letters. Actually this is the best part of job - seeing what other people on campus are concerned about. Sadly, there has been a steady decline of people sending letters into The Sting. Whether someone wants to address an issue raised in The Sting or bring up one of their own, we look forward to them all. We especially enjoy those letter writers - be they Dept. Heads or baseball players - that lambast us for printing "biased opinion" editorials, yet have no problem with the same paper printing their own "biased opinion" letters. This denial of incongruity is very refreshing.

There are many other areas of campus and Southern Tech life that should be praised, unfortunately I was so overwhelmed by the number of positives, I forgot to write the other one down. Oh well, maybe next issue.

Taking more copies of an issue that constitutes 0.25% of the print run of that issue is THEFT and a criminal offense.

CONSENSUS EDITORIAL

We, the members of The Sting staff, find it practically impossible to come to a consensus on any topic of a political nature. One thing we can all agree on though is that you should vote, TODAY. If you are reading this after Tuesday, November 8 and you didn't vote, you suck. Let's qualify that.

If you meet all the eligibility requirements to vote, and didn't, or didn't even register to vote, you must keep your mouth shut for the next two years. No carping, no whining, no complaining that he/she did/didn't do this/that. You blew your chance to participate in a Democracy and are represented by no one.

Unless, of course, you didn't register to vote because you don't want to be called for jury duty. That's Okay.

The Sting is a Waste, Not Athletics Dept.

Dear Mr. Greve,
I am writing in response to your article in the October 25 issue of The Sting, concerning the "Athletic Department is a waste of money" article. I am a senior on the baseball team, and I realize it is your opinion, but I would like to voice mine.

Mr. Greve, God blesses people in different ways. I am using my God given athletic talents to help further my education. If it was not for my athletic ability, I could not afford this or any other school. My teammates and I are living proof that the Athletic Department is not a waste of money.

While I am on my high horse, Mr. Greve, I think The Sting is a waste of money. The only place I ever see the school newspaper is being left behind on a desk or in the garbage. All the newspaper is, is an opportunity for you to voice your bias opinion. Mr. Greve, I am not trying to offend your paper, the point of this paragraph is to put you in the position I was in, after reading your article.

How can you expect people, especially students, to support us when our own newspaper criticizes us? We athletes have done nothing to humiliate your organization and I think it is wrong what you are doing to ours. I hope that, in the future, you will consider what you are saying and think of the people you are affecting.

Sincerely, Greg Shook

Cheshier Thanks Campus for Work

To Campus,

Thanks to all of you who participated in the various presentations made by Lloyd Dobyns on our campus Tuesday of last week. Many have indicated to me how much they enjoyed and appreciated this opportunity for interaction with Dr. Dobyns. I am pleased we were able to bring him to our campus, and I am glad so many of you adjusted your schedule to permit your participation.

Also, thanks to each one who took advantage of the opportunity to hear Dr. Frank Six last evening in our Wilson Student Center Theater. As Associate Director for Science for NASA, Dr. Six is very knowledgeable about the Hubble Space Telescope and the impact of the Shoemaker-Levy 9 Comet with Jupiter, his subjects for the evening. I know that all who heard Dr. Six speak found his presentation and informative just as I did.

President S.R. Cheshier

Campus Forum exists to provide a place for the students, faculty and staff of Southern Tech to discuss campus issues. The Sting welcomes all letters praising or criticizing editorial policies or opinions. Hello once again from Sigma Nu, Iota Pi Chapter. We would like to thank everyone who came out to our annual Halloween Party.

Like years past, it was a great success. Many people showed their Halloween spirit by showing up in their most inventive and exotic costumes. Some of these costumes to note were: the "McSlosh" girls, Mark "The Crow", Mrs. Crumley, Paul "Squeal like a Pig" Trail, and appearances by Jimmy the Pooh &

Tigger Doug.

On a more serious note, we put on our annual Haunted Forest at Laurel Park, in conjunction with their October carnival. This was done to raise money for the park, as well as entertain the kids.

We would like to recognize and show our appreciation for our Little Sisters and Little Sister candidates. They have helped Sigma Nu to be the best. They are Cara Baughman, Jennye Blount, Rhonda Buster, Dana Greene, Tera Hammontree, Julie Thomas, Cindy Quilling, Karla Sampson, Lori Lewis, Lori Braswell, Allison Chitwood, Kristie Corley, Nicole Faller, Missy Hayes, Britt Louis and Heather Vereen.

Our football team, the Knights, is having a great year, sporting a 3-1 record. Look out for the shadow-deep!

Flaggers Near End of Season

By CHRISTOPHER ERIC COBB

This year in flag football a very interesting predicament has developed.

Last year's flag football champion (and the champion for the three previous years), has dropped out of the Flag Football Tourney. Therefore, there is no returning champion.

Thus, everyone who played this year has an excellent chance to win the tournament.

For those of you who haven't seen flag football, the only difference between college football and flag football is there is no contact in flag football.

A person who blocks is a moving statue and the defensive lineman tries to maneuver around the blocker to reach the quarterback. In flag football a person is not stopped by being tackled, but by having the flag around his waist removed.

At this point, three-fourths of the season is over and four out of the ten teams look like they have a very good chance of taking it all, BSUII (4 and 0), TKE (4 and 0), BEARS (3 and 1), and BSUI (3 and 1).

The winners of the competition receive T-shirts and the losers receive a pat on the back and a chance to compete for the title next year. Also, the two best teams will compete against other schools in the state flag football tournament.

So far this year the participants seem to be enjoying themselves. "We had a good time" remarked Shawn Haiers from Deep Penetration 2 (0 and 5) also Mark Duncan had his mind focused when he mentioned "It's fun as long as your winning."

During this season, there have been two injuries: a fractured cheekbone and a sprained knee.
