Kennesaw Junior College

A word from the Dean of Students. . .

HELLO!

Josh Langston Welcome

This is Kennesaw Junior College. It is obviously a small school, but it is a good one. No one can tell you THAT without being sure of the facts first. I feel confident that I am more than painfully aware of these very same facts. The shortcomings as well as the capabilities of the school are far too numerous to mention here. Let it suffice to say that as a junior college it is one of, if not THE best in the state. Okay, wow, you say. But there is more. This is the focal point of liberalism in Cobb County. The ante-bellum atmosphere, the quaint and oft-times curious methods found in the surrounding area, the customs, habits, and social structure of the adult natives of this same surrounding area are under constant pressure from the evolving strata of intelligencia found here at KJC.

Those of you who are new here might not be aware of it because the ways of the underground reformists on campus are usually strange and mysterious. There are, no doubt, those of you who balk at the idea that CHANGE IS ON THE WAY! But, though you be in the midst of it, do not fear. Your identity will remain anonymous. You, the future leaders of the world, are at the threshold of national prominence. Reach out, take my hand, you'll understand, it's very grand, it comes with drums and a great big brass band! My glutius maximus!

You are here because you want to be here. Why you want to be here may be as much of a mystery to you as it is to me. Be that as it may, you are here. You will be treated as adults in an adult society. You will experience pressure that you probably have never known before. You are beginning the metamorphosis common to most people who have just left high school. This place is different. You will not be watched. You will probably not even be badgered, solicited, or remembered...except in a computer. It will not forget you. It will not forget what you have done here. And if you do not do well, it will not let you forget that either.

So, welcome to the outside world. Actually you're not quite that far yet. You have left the shelter and the slow, drab, study of the "high" school. You have reached that middle ground which is often very unstable, known as College. With all of this top secret, highly controversial, ultra-revealing information, you are now ready to go out into this strange new world and make the "grade". Don't speak too loudly, someone might hear you, don't make a disturbance, someone might remember you, and don't hang around and socialize after classes, someone might see you. Don't make new friends, they will contaminate your mind. Don't try and join an organization, they all need someone. You must force yourself to be too busy to enjoy the other half of college...The Best Half. If you do these things you will be average, and you might possibly remain average for the rest of your sordid little lives.

AMO TE...

Mike Baker Free at Last!

"Free at last...Free at last...Thank God, I'm free at last." These now immortal words were spoken by the late Dr. Martin Luther King. But is he really 'free at last'? "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country..." These were the words of John Kennedy, a beloved leader and President. But what did his country do for him? Abe Lincoln freed the slaves and sought an end to the civil war...but in his search what did he find? Robert Kennedy spoke his mind and was a strong contender for the Presidency in 1968...now his mind and his promise for a better future are gone—blown apart by an assassins' bullet.

What else is it that these great men had in common—what made them men of destiny—what made them men that the world will never forget?

Too many times today we have our causes, but to whose advantage are these causes aimed? All too often the cause is personal. The gain is not FOR others, but rather, the gain is for the "Almighty Self." What causes a person to be outwardly concerned about something or someone? What causes a person to feel this way when on the inside, in their guts, where they live with themselves, they just don't give a damn? I wish I knew the answer to that question. I do know that those people who really care do do something for their cause. They receive the greatest kind of reward for their efforts. They are looked upon with love and thankfulness. To me, this look of love is greater than any personal monetary gain or reward.

It is very easy to commit oneself to a cause—It really doesn't matter what that cause is, as long as the commitment is sincere and honest. When working with people less fortunate than yourself, there can be no room for bigots.

It's hard to promote causes today, especially in our complex society. What are the rewards for involvement in a cause? A bullet? or love? The opportunity is available—what is your choice?

Mike Mauldin A Best Friend Remembered

The mass media once poured forth the slogan, "College is America's best friend." It's been quite a while since I've heard those words and they seem a little dated now.

The quickest way to win friends and influence people is certainly not by analyzing one's own generation, much less by criticizing it. Still, I could speak of things that sometimes make me ashamed of being a college student. I could cite events that occasionally cause me to question the very value of higher education itself. I could mention the S.D.S. and the like, but all the specifics can be covered by one brief and simple summary: NOTHING LASTS. The old rhyme seem to ring truer everyday:

"Some praise at morning what they blame at night,
But always think the last opinion right."

Perhaps we are only the mirrors of what we have been taught. Our generation is becoming well schooled in the philosophy of relative standards or what Joseph Fletcher propounds as "situation ethics." We are told that eternal values and absolute truths are nonexistent and good and evil are only hazy distinctions. We hear that environment is the great permeating force in the universe and that compromise and adjustment are preferable to discipline and principle. The message is repeated long and often, for the college world has many Joseph Fletchers.

Nevertheless, as definitions go, I still prefer the simple, majestic firmness in the words of Dr. Russell Kirk:

"A norm means an enduring standard. It is a law of nature which we ignore at our peril. It is a rule of human conduct and a measure of public virtue."

For logical reasons, all foundations are built out of nature's most solid and permanent materials. They are built to be lasting, not relative. Shifting sand does not give rise to oak trees. This is a law of common sense and of nature. Agents of change cannot manufacture enduring products. Enemies of permanent things cannot build lasting foundations. Our generation, the foundation of the future, is now being formed and shaped in colleges and universities across this nation. If the structure of tomorrow's America is to be unswerving and indomitable, the foundation molded today by education must likewise be deeply pillared in a knowledge of lasting values and permanent truths.

"College—America's best friend." College remains; America remains, but the slogan lives only in the memory of past days. I suppose it was truer once than it is today, but perhaps it can still be truer than ever before.

All opinions expressed in this newspaper are the thoughts of the authors of the articles and editorials involved and do not directly represent those opinions held by the administration or newspaper staff of Kennesaw Junior College.

J.M. Padgett New Appeal for the SENTINEL

Contrary to the popular belief of the "New management", the popular appeal of THE SENTINEL is still lacking among KJC students.

My complaint is that the only means of student expression is Col. Bull's bull. Try filling the pages with student articles, no matter how weak, instead of the usual six by eight photographs of what's happening off campus.

A campus newspaper is presumably what the name implies: a campus newspaper. Keep the content of the articles to campus affairs instead of jumping into neighboring counties for local news. So what if Joe Blow goes to the doctor, what do I care?

I am not trying to destroy THE SENTINEL. The SENTINEL has good articles excellently written. It also has bad articles excellently written. I'm just saying "cut the fat" and let the students in on more of the action.

Pet Peeve on Campus

Jimmy Townsend

During my attendance at Kennesaw Junior College, I have developed a dislike for many things. I don't like the campus police measuring how far you are from the parking lines. I don't like the short list of subjects available during summer quarter. I don't like the grading systems used by some instructors. Even though it sounds as if I am completely disenchanted with the entire college system, I feel the previously mentioned faults are of little importance when compared with my pet peeve. This peeve concerns the method of operation employed by the campus book store.

The campus book store is placed in a very advantageous position. I am given a reading assignment in each class I attend. To complete this reading assignment, I have to buy the books. The most logical place to buy these books is the campus book store. I live in a small town where book stores are few, so in my case it becomes almost compulsory for me to use the campus book store.

I don't mind giving the book store my business; but when I go into the book store and see some of the prices, I become infuriated. I must pay twelve dollars for a Western Civilization text. An algebra book costs me eight dollars. An English handbook costs me six dollars more. I realize the book store has nothing to do with my list of required books, but must the prices be so high? The books required for this quarter cost me no less than forty dollars. If I had ample time, I could have gone to Atlanta and bought the books for almost half-price at a discount store.

So, I hand out the forty dollars for my books. I use these books sparingly for about ten weeks. When the quarter ends, I try to sell the books back to the book store. I am then informed that I can only receive fifty percent of the list price for the books. I take my fifty percent loss, consoling myself with the fact that it was convenient to sell the books back to the book store. I resolve to buy only second hand books from now on. When I go back into the book store to buy these second hand books, I am now told that I have to pay three fourths of the list price for the book. This is outrageous! The book store had already made nearly one hundred percent profit, now it is trying to double the profit.

I realize the fact that the book store has expenses, but it seems to me that the initial price could be lowered on the books. The books could be sold for three fourths of the list price as new books and each time the books were sold as used books they could be sold at possibly half price. The book store could still make its profit even though it would not be as large a profit as before. I grant the individuals behind the bookstore their profit, but let these individuals grant my pocketbook a little mercy.

Night students and Noisy Stomachs

Jennifer Byrnes

At Kennesaw Junior College it is obvious that the student is the primary concern. Application, acceptance, and registration are amazingly and pleasantly simple. The faculty and staff are sincere and interested. This atmosphere makes learning a pleasure instead of a weary necessity.

With all the advantages that belong to Kennesaw Junior College, it is unbelievable that it is situated so far away from almost every conceivable comfort this modern age provides. If you get a run in a stocking, there is no place to quickly buy a replacement. You must just "grin and wear it".

Many night students can be recognized by their noisy, hungry stomachs. There is not an appetizing menu presented at supertime. After working all day and eating a sandwich for lunch, it is difficult to concentrate because the coke and crackers disagree with your empty stomach. There is a definite need for expansion of eating facilities. It would be agreeable if a short order restaurant could be convinced that this is a desirable location. Even an available sandwich machine would help considerably to students and teachers having to eat between the 6:00 o'clock and 8:20 o'clock classes.

An ideal solution would be to entice some type of "Seven to Eleven" store with a grill into branching into this area. This is highly improbable, however, because in order to do this we would have to lie.

LETTERS—

The flys get the best of everything

To the Editors—

Why is it that every day this past summer quarter I had to hurry through my lunch before the flies could get it? I think that it is utterly ridiculous for me to be plagued by these nasty insects. I know of several people who think the same way as I.

Is there a lack of funds or something that causes these insects to be free from the worries of insecticide? I have noticed the bug-killer strips over several doors leading into and out of the Student Services buildings. Obviously, these have had little or no effect on the "enemy."

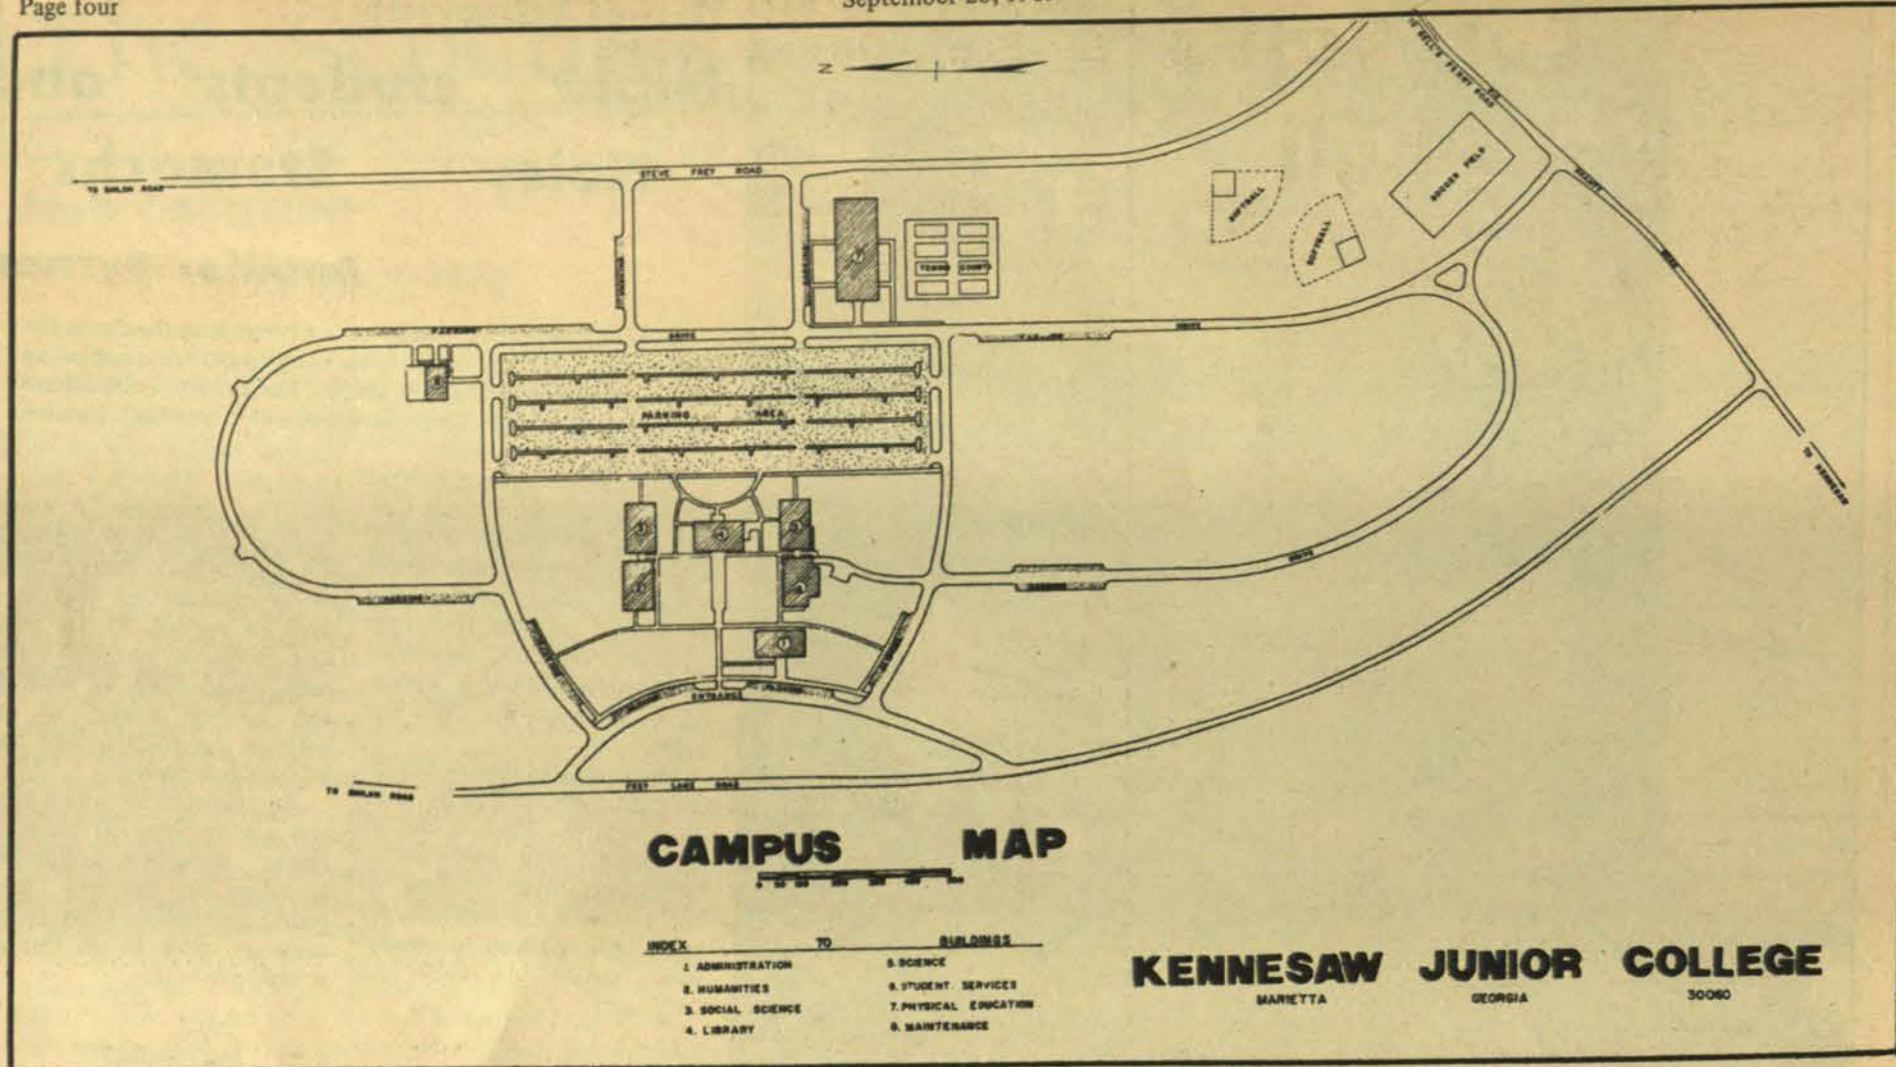

It is not only disgusting and unsanitary for these horrible creatures to be loose in the building, it makes one sick to think that he has to share his food with the damn things.

Please do not think that I am getting overly "worked-up" about this. But when you think about it, it really is enough to turn your stomach. This is the 20th century, not the second, and I should think that man has advanced far enough by now, to take care of the problem.

A Kennesaw student bows to the whims of one of the "new masters".

Problems . . .

These are the solutions

Q. How do I find Kennesaw?

A. According to the State Highway Dept. signs, you merely go straight!

Q. How do I obtain a degree from Kennesaw?

A. A formal petition for a degree must be presented to the faculty during the students' "final quarter in residence." The student then becomes a candidate for a degree, if and only if he has maintained a scholastic average of not less than 2.0 and has satisfied the requirements for the degree as specified in ANY catalogue during his enrollment. Also, at least 50% of the credit hour requirements must have been earned at this college.

Q. How are grades averaged?

A. Each instructor usually has his own system for obtaining a final grade; however, your scholastic average is calculated as the total number of quality points earned to the total number of credit hours in which a final grade has been assigned."

Q. What is the difference between a part-time and a full-time student?

A. Part time students are either women or they are men who are exempt from the draft. A student scheduled more than 12 credit hours per quarter is considered full-time.

Q. Is the library open to all students?

A. Yes, the library is available to all students and is also open at night. (hours to be announced.)

Q. Does KJC offer counseling and guidance services?

A. Professionally trained advisors who are genuinely interested in student problems are more than happy to help any student who is in need of and asks for guidance. Counselors aid students in selection of senior colleges, vocational schools, and academic and personal problems.

Q. How can I get some financial aid?

A. Besides state and federal loans and scholarships, KJC is involved in several loans and financing programs. The GERALD Dean Boggs fund, established by the Circle K Club in 1967, provides short-term loans to KJC students.

The Pickett and Hatcher loan fund makes available to students in need of financial assistance, low interest loans. For further information contact the Director of student aid or the President of the Circle K Club.

Q. Is it possible for me to get a job on campus?

A. Positively, talk to Mr. Howland, operator of the book store and snack bar in the student services building; other jobs on campus are available through the director of student aid.

Q. I have never done well in math, how can I get through College algebra?

A. The developmental program at KJC is excellent. This program is a series of non-credit courses (also includes English, reading, and problem solving) that prepare the student for a regular college career. Other non-credit courses are offered at night during fall, winter, and spring quarters.

Q. What does the Administration do?

A. Everything. . . and a good job, too.

Q. How do I save money at Kennesaw?

A. Bring your own coffee and take heed*. Big Shanty Road has a radar system set up. (Also avoid Josh Langston)

Interview with Lt. Moon

By Tyron Copeland

A new security officer has been added to the KJC force this year. He is Lt. W. F. Moon. Lt. Moon was born in Winder, Georgia and now resides in Woodstock.

The most significant idea behind this interview was brought to the editors by students who recognized in this man a new and delightfully different approach to the security operation here. They say that Lt. Moon's approach is a welcome change from the seemingly standard, cold, selfish, and un-sympathetic attitudes that some of the other security guards possess.

The following is a personal interview with Lt. Moon.

SENTINEL—What previous experience do you have in security work?

Lt. Moon—I've worked at Treasure Island (Marietta), numerous banks in Atlanta, and Western Electric on Roswell Road.

SENTINEL—How are the attitudes of the faculty and students toward you?

Lt. Moon—I've found them to be quite friendly; we get along beautifully. I haven't had anything that I could really classify as trouble.

SENTINEL—Do you have any objections to the way things are handled here? Any ideas for improvement?

Lt. Moon—I have improvements in mind, but at this time I would like to sit on them a while. I would like to see a, perhaps, newer and better image expressed security-wise at this establishment; a better relationship with students and better understanding between security and students.

SENTINEL—Do you get along very well with the other guards?

Lt. Moon—Well, we get along quite well, however, my being here during the daytime, I don't actually work too closely with the other men.

SENTINEL—Many of the students here have told us that you are understanding and know how to get along with them. Have you had previous experience with psychology?

Lt. Moon—I've spent a lifetime dealing with people. I use to be a salesman, and in that line you had to sell not only your product but yourself as well. I just try to be human.

SENTINEL—What are your plans for the future?

Lt. Moon—With fall quarter approaching, I'm going to have a lot of new people to get acquainted with. I just hope that I can get on as well with them as I did with the students this summer.

SENTINEL—What would you say is characteristic of the students here?

Lt. Moon—I think that they are a good bunch of kids!

SENTINEL—Thank you for your time and good luck this fall.

The small but significant friction between students and guards on this campus the previous year has brought about a feeling of disrespect and uneasiness between many. Lt. Moon has improved this relationship. He seems to use the "Carry a big stick, but speak softly" policy that Teddy Roosevelt adopted as his philosophy. Lt. Moon's stick may be padded, but it's still there.

It is the opinion of this writer that a new relationship between security and students on this campus is inevitable now that Lt. Moon is here.

New head of security, Lt. Moon.

A Panegyric Autobiography of Col. Bull

I, the retired Colonel Bullford Shite, have never written an autobiography in my life or of my life. I don't know quite where to begin, though. I would assume that I should begin at my birth as the usual practice is nowadays.

I was born on April 4, 1841, as was the common practice back in those days since there was usually nothing else to do at the time. When news of this event reached Washington, D.C., President Harrison took a deadly chill and passed away. A few months after I was born my mother died. She was run over by six white horses "highballing" it around a mountain in Upper Afreka, Texas, only a few miles from my home town, Wachikacki. As progress would have it Sneed Shite, my beloved father, thought it best to deuczay me—DEUCZAY is a common backwoodsman term meaning "to educate"—in reading, writing, robbin', cheatin', and makin' trouble. At the youthful age of 13 my father passed away when he drank a glass of water, a common poison to such an esteemed personage—a friend of his died in a similar manner, but his was a case of Michael Finn visiting him. At my father's funeral seven of his five children managed to come. His last piece of advice to us was something that didn't strike me as very worthwhile. He said that we're nothing but crab grass in the lawn of life, and since then, I have developed my own philosophy—anything worthwhile doesn't necessarily have to be honest.

I don't object to having, say in a card game, seven aces in a deck of cards. However, I do object when the gentleman sitting across from me has four aces of one suit and I have the aces of the other three suits.

When the Civil War began, I immediately offered my services to Jeff Davis. (I assume it was a Civil War for the Northern politicians kept saying that they wanted Civil Writes for the good of the country. Well, I was all for handin' this Civil Writes fellow over to those "yanques", but in the South, no one knew whom he was nor could they fathom the idea that, possibly, he was a run away slave, but this fact wasn't confirmed until 90 years after the war. So much for this nifty item.) Jeff Davis then advised the benevolent Gov. of Ga. to appoint me gardian of Cesspool Creek. I immediately went into that sin city Atlanter and loaded up on coat hangers and marshmallows. When Gen. "Gypsy Davy" Sherman stopped off in Tennessee to purchase a certain quantity of blow torches, I then asked Cpl. Clem Hennesee, my trusted aid, to help me in my defense of Cesspool Creek. He replied to my question by stating "To defend the South is to coaptd the drega of fretrical inacquicies without the crux of neo-isolationous finality." Where upon I replied that I so deemed it necessary to constitute such an elite group for the defense of our beloved area. With this idealistic realism thrust upon me, I immediately took the crux of the grateful dregs. When Gen. "Gypsy Davy" Sherman entered into the battle of Cesspool Creek, I and Cpl. Hennesee went crackers. This meaning that I met my first defeat—all two of us were thrust into that rancid creek because of an evil young lass. She was known as "Big Betty" because she wore a huge potato sack around her neck. And it was because of this potato sack that we at Cesspool Creek met our defeat. In this potato sack she pulled out three one hundred dollar bills, and with this deadly weapon we easily retreated back into Cesspool Creek—we're not proud! After this little incident I announced my retirement to the public and went into solitary confinement for the rest of my life. Since then I have indulged in secret writings. The first of my secret writings was entitled The History of Noses. In this book, I proceed to indulge on the discourse of the many uses of the human nose of the history of "Number Three." My second book which was written around the turn of the century was a treatise on "The Abolishment of Religion—with an indepth study of Christianity." In this book I referred to the article written by Jonathan Swift, "The Abolishment of Christianity." I wanted the abolishment of Sunday, for I reasoned, as did Mr. Swift, that if Sunday were abolished that we would have more time for our merchants to indulge in commerce. According to swift, the churches could be turned into theaters, market houses, and other public buildings. One might argue that with the abolishment of Christianity and Sunday, crime would run high, but I say this is false. For this extra time on Sunday one would be more inclined to go out and work at something constructive rather than sit at home idle—for idleness is the main cause of crime, especially in the upper classes. But with all due respect to the public and to the establishment, I did not go into publication with this article—this was known as public request.

Since 1920, I have been sitting idle in my four-story mansion located somewhere south of the border of Atlanta. Only recently the people from The Sentinel decided to employ me as a writer—witty statements, dull humor, and general bull feathers—after reading my secret article on the Abolishment of Religion. Since then I have gone back to writing secret journals for anyone who offers me money—I only work for The Sentinel so I can show my revenge on the defeat of Cesspool Creek.—$150 is hard to stretch over a 100 year period. Ever since I've been on The Sentinel, I have been referred to as the "Simple, Common Saviour of Georgia"—and now I leave you my Panegyric Autobiography.

As incoming freshmen you will, no doubt, be in the dark as to some of the lore that has evolved at KJC in these few years. The oldest member of this exhalted family is the Phantom.

It is a hard thing to describe this . . .personnage (personnage?), this . . .image (image?), well . . .the Phantom. The Phantom is neither he, she, it nor they. The Phantom is . . .just the Phantom! For simplicity's sake, let us use the pronoun 'he' to describe 'him.'

In the beginning there was Kennesaw Junior College. KJC was even smaller than it is now. There was no heraldry, no person (fictional or other-wise) that had to be remembered, in short we had no traditions. This then was the scene of the birth of the Phantom.

As a young phantom, his pranks were the type that usually went unnoticed. As time went by, he became more and more proficient at this sort of thing and today he is quite talented.

One can look back to that clear day in September, 1967, when a thousand people were preparing to register for classes in the new buildings. A large sign, painted on a sheet, mysteriously descended from the roof of the Natural Science building and welcomed the new students. Shortly thereafter, the clever and efficient Burns guards tore down this symbol of ancestry.

Not many of us can remember the day that the guards found a toilet, complete with potted plants, gaudily displayed on top of the breeze-way between Library and Science buildings.

Few can remember the day that the Phantom's homestead was disclosed to the world. . .the Phantom is alive and living in the storm drains. (Now all anyone has to do, is find the storm drains!)

It is rumored that guided tours of the storm drains will begin sometime early in the Fall quarter. Price. . .25c. For ticket information call 876-5456. Ask for the Worm.

There is really very little that one can say in regard to the Phantom as his actions are shielded in secrecy. However, we did manage to get these reactions from several people:

Lester Maddox says. . ."Phooey!"
 Dr. Horace Sturgis said. . ."If this radical is caught, let me assure you that he will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. We might even consider sending him back to DeKalb Jr. College where he belongs!"
 [In the Vatican last week. . .]
 Pope Paul said. . ."Pax."
 [Turning now to the world of sports. . .]
 Good night. . .Buy Bonds
 (Bonded?)

Then came Cpl. Hennesee

Corporal Clem Hennesee originally came from the outskirts of Richmond, Virginia, as a lance corporal in the Hampton County Militia.

The corporal fought in several battles and engagements in the early part of the Civil War in Virginia and southern Tennessee. It was during his last battle, at Cesspool Creek, Georgia, that he met and joined forces with Colonel Bullford Shite.

During this battle, both the Col.'s command and the other members of Cpl. Hennesee's outfit were wiped out. As a direct result of the events at this battle, both the Col. along with Clem decided to retire from the profession of war and retreated to Kennesaw Mountain. From their home on the mountain, both the corporal and Col. Bull have investigated and made recommendations on matters of public interest to the local citizens of Big Shanty, Ga. It has only been in recent months that there two crusaders for justice have undertaken the problems of both students and faculty here at KJC.

Circle K

There is a good chance that many of you freshmen are familiar with the activities of Key Clubs in the surrounding high schools. Circle K is the collegiate counterpart of Key Club. Both clubs are sponsored by Kiwanis International and are international in scope.

Circle K seeks to develop leadership in its members and understanding between people by encouraging projects and activities that are of benefit to the college and the community. Accordingly, KJC Circle K is active in many aspects of life on the campus. Many of the students you saw assisting at registration were Circle K members. The club provides ushers for official school functions. At events such as dances and free lunch days, members assist in the distribution of food and refreshments.

Circle K isn't all work, though. Interclub parties and ball games are held frequently. District conferences are always well attended. The high point of the Circle K year is the state convention, where state officers are elected.

Circle K invites all male students to come and see what the club has to offer. The first meeting of the Fall Quarter will be held Wednesday, Oct. 1, at 12:00. If you care about what happens on this campus, then Circle K has a place for you.

Mu Alpha Theta

The main objective of Mu Alpha Theta, an organization sponsored by the Mathematics Association of America, is to promote a better understanding of mathematics. The members of the KJC chapter of Mu Alpha Theta enjoy two unrivaled privileges: they belong to the only mathematics club at KJC and they belong to the only honorary club at KJC. The members not only excel in mathematics, but they excel in all of their courses as well.

Although Mu Alpha Theta is a mathematics club, a math-oriented program of study is not a qualification for admittance into the club. This means that anyone can be a potential member of Mu Alpha Theta. The only requirements are that the members must have at least a 3.0 grade in all mathematics courses and that the members must have at least a 3.0 average for all of their courses.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Linda R. May, the faculty advisor, Mu Alpha Theta has come a long way during its short existence. One of the tasks performed by Mu Alpha Theta members is to provide tours for visiting clubs or other groups.

Student Education Association

A time for new members and old veterans of the S.E.A.; meaning Students Except Authority, (Student Education Association), was begun at 1:00 (P.M.) by Gerald Martin and Jim Martin (don't believe that they are kin!).

The main topic was to get a collection of eight to ten poles of bamboo for a great masterpiece of art work; shaped like a cone with Indians (live!) running around.

After a short discussion of whether or not to have nominations for officers, a decision was made... might as well go ahead and get it over with. It was over quickly and the results were as follows: Jim Martin—President, Mike Kelly—Vice-President, Marina Godwin—Historian, Scott Brooks—Secretary, David Smith—Treasurer.

The President, Vice-President and Historian are veterans in the S.E.A. The Secretary and Treasurer are incoming freshmen. It is assumed that without the freshmen in the club, there might not be so large a generation gap! Jim Martin realizes that his age is catching up with him. His efforts are for the best though, and he is trying to think a few years younger than he would normally.

Inez Morgan, counselor for KJC, is the club sponsor for the coming year. Inez said that the Leadership Conference at Rock Eagle looked very promising. She feels that the leaders of the S.E.A. will give her more time to do her thing. Most of all, she will be consulted when student ability fails, for she is S.E.A.'s secret weapon. Members of the S.E.A. propose to let Inez use her "iron hand" to get through to Derrell Roberts—Dean of the College, and to Registrar Thomas Rogers, if any crises arise. Otherwise, there may be a revolt among militant students (watch out, they exist in large numbers).

The past actions of the S.E.A. have had the lack of involvement and commitment that appear to be sure things this fall. These two capacities are hard to fill, yet the percentage has been improved by new hopes and dreams as well as new knowledge gained from past failures. Hopefully, we can win another award on the state level.

Since the hippies have invaded KJC, it does not seem to be too unusual that some of them have managed to filter into the S.E.A. There will be a projection of love (if it's free!) peace, and a better understanding between students and faculty.

Join the S.E.A., you may see others the way they see you, and learn more about yourself through S.E.A.

Civitan's

By MARY SMITH

As outgoing President of Collegiate Civitan's at KJC let me welcome you to the campus.

I hope many of you were in Junior Civitan's while attending high school and plan to continue your work by joining Collegiate Civitan's. For those of you who weren't in Civitan's, or who know exactly what Civitan's are, give a listen...

PURPOSE...

Collegiate Civitan Clubs are primarily service organizations. Its members accomplish the objective of Civitan "Builders of Good Citizenship" in many and varied ways. They will learn to unselfishly serve their fellow members and campus community. They will develop the necessary training for a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship and qualities of true leadership.

OBJECTIVES...

The objectives of Collegiate Civitan Clubs shall be to emphasize the advantages of the American-Canadian way of life, to promote good fellowship and high scholarship, to serve on the campus and in the community for leadership training through service, to encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships, and to begin to be "Builders of Good Citizenship" in rendering altruistic service and in building better communities.

If you are wondering how much it will cost you to join Civitan's—Each Civitan member will pay two dollar dues per year. This minimal amount can be paid annually or semi-annually.

Now that you know something about Collegiate Civitan's and their purpose and objective, please consider very seriously becoming a part of this fine organization. Many offices will have to be filled in the fall and you might be just the person to fill one.

The two advisors for the Civitan's 1969-70 year are Marc Adams, and Dr. I. David Harris. Mr. Adams has been involved in Civitan's for the past two years. This is Dr. Harris' first time to work with this organization so... Freshmen... Sophomore... join with these two men and make "Builders of Good Citizenship" your motto.

Smithsonian here

(P.I.O)—Kennesaw Junior College will present a relatively new musical group, The Smithsonian Institute, in concert at 2 p.m., Sept. 26 in the gymnasium on the campus. This concert, a part of the freshman orientation program, is open to the public.

Baha'i Club

This fall there will be a new club on the Kennesaw Junior College Campus: The Baha'i Club. The Baha'i Faith is an independent world religion. It originated in Persia in the year 1884. Baha'is are established in 311 countries and territories. In the United States alone they reside in 2500 localities.

WHAT IS A BAHAI?

*A Baha'i is a lover of mankind, an upholder of the central Principle of the Faith: the oneness of Mankind.

*A Baha'i recognizes the essential unity of religions; such as those founded by previous Divine Educators, including Krishna, Moses, Zoroaster, Gautama Buddha, Jesus Christ, Muhammad and The Bab.

*A Baha'i strives to remove from his life all forms of prejudice—racial, religious, or social.

*A Baha'i adheres to principles of moral rectitude.

*A Baha'i acknowledges the basic harmony of religion and science.

*A Baha'i engages in the attainment and promotion of knowledge, in acquiring a means of livelihood, and in serving mankind.

*A Baha'i works toward world peace by encouraging the establishment of religious unity and world governments.

This information on the Faith has been given for the enlightenment of the student who wonders, "Why a Baha'i Club?" Future plans and activities of the Baha'i Club will be announced in a coming issue of the Sentinel. All students are invited to attend future meetings and become members if they want to help us serve the student body.

"The earth is but one country, and mankind its citizens." Baha'u'llah.

HOW THE CLUB WILL WORK

The Baha'i Club on the Kennesaw Junior College Campus will be open to all members of the student body. Any student may be a member of the club, and will have one vote in the election of the Board of Directors of the club. The only members of the club who shall be eligible for membership on the Board of Directors shall be those who are members of the Baha'i Faith. The elections shall be prepared listing all those eligible for the Board of Directors. Without any campaigning or electioneering, each member of the club shall mark five of the names listed, and this shall be a secret ballot. The five persons receiving the most votes shall be the Board of Directors. By the same process the Board of Directors shall elect the officers of the club.

There can be no dues to the club. All monies needed must be raised by voluntary and non-published contributions; and must be spent strictly for club activities.

The Board of Directors is empowered to appoint all committees; and committee members do not have to be Baha'is.

Student Government Association

The Student Government Association works to serve the best interests of Kennesaw Junior College students in all phases of campus life. The official, stated purposes of the S.G.A. include developing a firm spirit of citizenship among students, encouraging meaningful participation in student affairs, promoting a better understanding between the faculty and the student body, representing the interests of the students, and executing the student will in accordance with the privileges granted by the constitution of the Student Government Association.

The officers of S.G.A. include the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, five sophomore senators and five freshman senators. All senators are required to maintain at least a 2.0 grade point average in order to hold office. The other executive officers must maintain a 2.5. Freshman senators are elected every Fall Quarter. Sophomore senators and executive officers are elected every Spring Quarter. Any Kennesaw Junior College student may run for office provided he has the necessary grade point average. The only other prerequisite is a petition bearing the signatures of twenty-five supporters.

The Student Government Association office is located in the Student Services Building. The S.G.A. also maintains a suggestion box in the same building. The box is conveniently located near the snack bar.

Although the Student Government Association has only four executive officers and ten senators, all students, in effect, belong to the S.G.A. Meetings are usually held in the Conference Room of the Administration Building. All meetings are open to anyone who wishes to attend. Usually meetings are held at least once a week and special invitations for interested parties to attend are frequently issued over the college inter-com. Written notices of each and every meeting are posted by the S.G.A. secretary in the boxed bulletin board on the left-hand side of the entrance to the Student Services Building.

Dance planned

The first Fall quarter dance will be held in the Student Services building on Oct. 4.

This dance will be a casual affair and will begin at 8:30. Hopefully, this late start will allow more people to attend. The dance will end at or around 12:30.

Music will be supplied by "The Group."

Socc and Buskin

Socc and Buskin is the Drama Club. Socc and buskin are the names of the leggings worn in ancient Greek plays. One was worn in comedies and the other was worn in tragedies. The words have come down in history to be synonyms for comedy and tragedy.

Are you interested in the theater? Join the Drama Club and express your feelings. Even if you've never been on a stage, you can help. There is much more to a play than actors. Costumers, lighting technicians, artists and even people who just want to help; there is always something to do.

Since there is no theater on the Kennesaw Junior College campus, the gymnasium is where our productions are performed. The stage must be built; people who just like to build things are needed in the Drama Club.

In the past year, Socc and Buskin has produced Long Day's Journey into Night and The Fantasticks. Long Day's Journey into Night by Eugene O'Neill was presented last November. It is a play in four acts about the Tyrone family, James and Mary and their two sons, Edmund and Jamie, and their problems. Quite the opposite of Long Day's Journey into Night is The Fantasticks. The Fantasticks is a musical comedy that has something to say. The story is simple: girl and boy fall in love, they separate, learn about life and discover that they love each other more than they realized before. The whole feeling of the play is summed up in the opening and closing song, 'Try to Remember'.

All parts in the plays are cast from try-outs. Any student at Kennesaw Junior College is eligible to participate in the try-outs. The try-outs are conducted by the director and her assistants.

Meetings of Socc and Buskin are held during the activities period. Any student at Kennesaw Junior College is eligible to join the Drama Club. Officers of the club are elected by the members of the club. There are no membership dues to pay and any one interested in any form of drama is welcome to join. Please contact Jean Jeffrey, Sallie Wood or Miss Charlotte Stephenson for further information.

Some of the Socc and Buskin members; Steve DeArmoun Libby Hoffman, Steve Palmer, and Sallie Wood.

Sentinel?

The SENTINEL is the least modest of all the organizations on campus. Our purpose for existence is called "official publication" of Kennesaw Junior College. In the past, many people have chosen to disagree with the preceding statement. It has been, and remains to be proven, however, that such is actually the case. The case being that we are, indeed, the esteemed publication mentioned beforehand.

In the three years of our being, we have printed successively better editions. We are now mid-way into our fourth season, and we are proud to say that we have exceeded any previous efforts put out by past staffs. We are now printing every two weeks with editions coming out on every other Thursday night.

Our aim is to bring to light many of the events and activities on campus that, in the past, have not gotten very good publicity. By publishing on a more regular basis, we hope to report these news items while they remain "new."

Our staff, while small, has managed to produce fairly good papers every time. However, our faster-paced schedule demands that we increase the size of our staff. Each member will have to work under a rather tedious slave master, who goes by the name of Josh Langston.

Questions concerning the staff or the paper are welcomed. Any staff member can tell you that membership is an enjoyable duty if nothing else. Our office is in the Student Services Building. Our doors are usually open. Our Editor is usually there.

During the year, there are several conventions and trips that the staff will make. The biggest convention is the press Institute in Athens in late January or early February. Last year, the SENTINEL took top honors with awards for:

- Best news coverage
- Best feature coverage
- Best editorial
- Best feature story
- Best over-all paper in Jr. Col. class

A much larger staff will mean a much better paper. We have openings for writers, photographers, business managers, advertising personnel, typists, and lay-out people

PLEASE COME BY AND SEE US. WE NEED YOU!

KENNESAW JUNIOR COLLEGE
MARIETTA, GEORGIA 30060

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

September 25, 1969

Dear Students:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I greet each of you as we begin another year at Kennesaw Junior College. It is our desire that your experiences at Kennesaw will be very rewarding in terms of enjoyment and the ultimate attainment of your goals in life.

This is the fourth year in the history of our college and we have planned for your arrival with a great deal of anticipation. There will be many activities on the campus of a social or cultural nature to complement your academic experiences and it is hoped that these will be very enjoyable and meaningful to each of you.

Kennesaw Junior College has been very fortunate in the recruitment of an outstanding faculty and an exceptionally well prepared group of students. The faculty and staff of the college join me in wishing you success as you continue toward the realization of your educational goals.

Cordially yours,

Horace W. Sturgis

Horace W. Sturgis
President

P. E. Dept. revamped - Harris style

Dr. I. David Harris, after a leave of absence of two years, has returned to Kennesaw Junior College and is now the Chairman of the Physical Education Dept. Dr. Harris left to acquire his doctorate in Education which was granted to him by the University of Southern Mississippi.

Previously, Dr. Harris had done graduate work at the University of Georgia. He holds a Bachelor of Science with a major in physical education from Georgia Teachers' College and a Master of Education, also with a major in physical education, from Georgia Southern College.

Dr. Harris' return was effective June 25, 1969, and since then he has been working on several new innovations for the department. Some of his proposals include the organization of several new courses. A few of these new courses are involved with camping, fly casting, water sports, and possibly some trip and skeet shooting.

Some of Dr. Harris' ideas have already been put into operation. A video tape machine has been set up to aid both students and instructors. The machine will record the motions of a student and will allow closer examination of the student by the instructor. This technique is currently being used as a part of the tennis program.

The tapes will not only allow the teacher to evaluate the student, but will also offer the opportunity for the instructor to gauge his own teaching effectiveness of the skills required.

Future plans for the machine include the taping of a student with superior ability in a given field. These tapes will provide an example from which the student may learn. The tapes will also be invaluable in interpreting skill tests.

Pictures will be taken of the students at the beginning, middle and end of the term. In this manner, the student will be able to evaluate himself as he progresses.

Dr. Harris hopes that in the near future, course requirements will be set up so that students will take part in programs that differ widely. As it stands, there are four major divisions of the department: swimming, team sports, individual sports, and dacing courses.

Another innovation will be the addition of ability tests. These tests would help to determine the proper level of instruction that the student should have. This test would be, in essence, an individual physical fitness test.

Recently, a new piece of equipment was purchased for the department. The machine cost roughly $3,600.00. The huge metal structure is called a Universal Gymnasium. The name is apt in its description of its properties. At one time, the unit will accommodate 12 people. Over 150 different exercises can be done on the machine. Two representatives from the corporation which developed the unit will be out here in the fall to demonstrate some of the more complicated procedures of the machine.

Dr. Harris' plans include more stress on the individual improvement of each student.

Dr. Harris is an experienced coach and instructor. He has taught and coached at the Lovett School in Atlanta, Cherokee High School in Canton, and Ball Ground Junior College in Ball Ground, Georgia before coming to K.J.C.

Some of the spring intramurals are a little more than exhausting!

Fall intramurals

With the advent of fall, there is a freshness in the air that brings something of a new stimulation to life. This stimulation is reflected in the active spirit of the students. Old students as well as those that are incoming, find new amounts of energy and interest they hope to channel. One area that will receive a sizeable proportion of this interest is the intramural program.

The purpose of the intramural program is to provide an opportunity for students to make application of knowledge and skills learned in physical education classes, to develop interests in sports activities for use in leisure time throughout life, and most important, to develop social qualities and standards of conduct.

The intramural program is under the direction of Dr. David Harris, head of the P.E. department. He will be assisted by Mrs. Margret Waters and by Mr. Jerry Hogge, a new instructor at Kennesaw.

Participation in the intramural program is greatly encouraged by the Physical Education department. Each year an award is given to the most outstanding participants in both the men's and women's programs. Last year's awards went to Gerald Martin and Mary Smith.

Each quarter there is a team sport offered and several individual sports that students may become involved in. This fall, flag football (men) and volleyball (women) will be offered. During the quarter, there will be a tug-of-war between teams. The individual sports will include archery and table tennis. This year, team shirts will be given out.

Outstanding Intramural Competitors

The Outstanding Intramural Participants for 1968-69 at Kennesaw Junior College were Mary Smith and Gerald Martin. Miss Smith and Mr. Martin earned these honors during the year by participating in individual and team sports and by winning one of the top three places in several of the individual activities. Miss Smith earned her trophy over eighty-four other women participants, and Mr. Martin earned his trophy over one hundred, eighty-three other men participants.

Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Smith of Marietta, is a graduate of Sprayberry High School. She has completed her work at Kennesaw Junior College and will enter Georgia Southern College this fall where she plans to major in physical education. She served this year as captain of the Aardvarks, one of the four women's intramural teams, which won the Women's Volleyball and Softball Championships. The Aardvarks placed second for the year in the team standings. Miss Smith won first place trophies in Bowling, Badminton, and Free Throw Contest; placed second in Horseshoes; and third in Archery. In other campus activities she has been active in both the Civitans and the Student Education Association.

Mr. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Rockmart, graduated from Rockmart High School and is a rising sophomore at Kennesaw Junior College. This past year he was a member of the Gorillas, which participated in the six team intramural league. The Gorillas emerged as Softball Champions and placed fourth for the year in the team standings. For individual honors, Mr. Martin won first place trophies in Badminton, Bridge, and Wrestling. He is President of the Kennesaw Junior College Student Government Association for the coming year and has been active in Circle K, Civitans, and Student Education Association during his freshman year.

All KJC students are encouraged to register for intramurals in the Physical Education Building and to participate in the sports and activities planned for the coming year. Most activities are scheduled between 3-5 PM on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A team sport and four or five individual activities are scheduled each quarter, plus co-recreational sports.
